NAZIS EXTEND U-BOAT WAR

CREDIT DISPUTE BRINGS SPLIT IN EMBARGO FIGHT

Some Advocates of Repeal Balk.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—The administration's program to repeal the neutrality act was threatened in the senate today by increasing factionalism among opponents of the existing embargo on shipments of arms, ammunition, and implements of war to belligerents.

Senator Key Pittman.

The admission by Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], chairman of the foreign relations committee, that the so-called cash and carry bill bearing his name is intended in effect to exempt Great Britain and France from the Johnson act brought further protests from administration followers. The Johnson act prohibits loans and credits to nations in default on their obligations to the United States.

Credit for 90 Days.

Altogether apart from the controversy over the Johnson act, other administration supporters objected to the credit provisions of the bill reported by the foreign relations committee. The measure would repeal the existing neutrality act and provide for the sale of munitions, as well as all other commodities, to belligerents, and would permit credit of not more than 90 days. American ships could not transport passengers or materials to belligerents, or through combat areas proclaimed by the President.

One Democratic senator asserted privately that from 15 to 18 supporters of the administration's demand for repeal of the arms embargo would oppose the credit provisions of the bill. The American people, he said, had been led to believe that it was "a cash and carry, not a credit and carry bill."

Thomas Favors Amendment.

Senator Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah], an administration supporter on the foreign relations committee, disagreed with Pittman's contention that the bill would modify the Johnson act, but said he would support an amendment specifically exempting that statute to prevent any confusion on that point. Senator Pittman said yesterday that he would oppose such an amendment. Senator Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.], author of the Johnson act, said he would offer one.

"If congress ever sees fit to modify the Johnson act let it do so by direct action on that act, not through repeal by implication or indirection," said Senator Thomas. "The American people are entitled to know just what is being done."

Senator Pittman argued that without amendment of the Johnson act Germany could obtain credit without limit in the United States while England and France could not. Calling attention to the fact that Germany, also, is in default on its obligations to the United States, the senate noninterventionists said Pittman was seeking by specious argument to rationalize circumvention of the Johnson act.

Assails Pittman's Argument.

Senator Thomas also assailed the Pittman argument. "It was not correct reasoning," he said. "Germany is in default on her obligations entered into as late as 1930, and Germany, too, was given notice by our government when she went into Austria to the effect that Germany would be held responsible for Austria's obligations to us."

Other supporters of the proposal to repeal the arms embargo expressed opposition to the pending bill on the ground that it would wreck the American merchant marine, which is being revived by a billion dollar federal subsidy program. New England senators especially objected to the transportation provisions of the bill. The bill, they asserted, would take American shipping completely out of the European trade as well as the trade with British and French possessions in the western hemisphere, in the orient, and in other parts of the world.

Job Half Done, Says Horner; Seeks 3d Term

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

Gov. Henry Horner yesterday made his first definite announcement that he will seek a third term next year.

Talking with newspaper men at an informal reception for them in the Congress hotel, he said:

"I am going to run for a third term. There is no question about that. I feel that I have a lot of things yet to do and I don't want to quit in the middle of a job.

"I am feeling fine and I am sure that I will be physically capable of serving a third term if I am elected. A formal announcement of my candidacy will be made later."

Pension Action Expected.

The governor also said he will call a special session of the legislature, probably before the end of the year. One of the subjects to be considered will be increasing the state's share of old age pensions to match the increase in funds from the federal government. Other subjects have not been decided, although one may concern legislation for conserving the state's oil and prorating its distribution.

Yesterday was the first time Gov. Horner has talked extensively to newspaper men since he became seriously ill and went to Miami, Fla., last November. It also was the first occasion he has been in Chicago since he went to Highland Park in July for seclusion and further recuperation.

Governor Thanks Press.

Milburn P. Akers, the governor's publicity man, telephoned Chicago newspapers yesterday that Horner would receive reporters and photographers at the Congress, "not at a press conference, but at a personal luncheon." When the newspaper men arrived the governor told them: "I called you here to thank you for your kindness in not disturbing me during my convalescence. This is a very informal affair."

The governor was much thinner than before his illness. He wore a double breasted blue suit and walked without a cane. Most of the time he remained seated, however. Accepting a light for a cigaret, he remarked that it was a denicotinized smoke.

Catches Up On Reading.

Before sitting down to luncheon with his guests, Horner talked of the books he had read while he was convalescing.

"Being sick gave me a chance to catch up on my reading," he chuckled. "I read a lot of biography."

After the luncheon Akers indicated that newspaper men might ask the governor a few leading questions. One of the first was whether he believed President Roosevelt would run for a third time.

"I don't know," the governor replied. "I haven't asked him. As far as I know, the only person who has is that man who ran on the Republican ticket for President a few years ago. What was his name?"

The Governor Remembers.

There was a burst of laughter as the governor added: "O, yes, Landon was the fellow. Funny how you nearly forget such things."

Horner disclosed that he had talked with Mayor Kelly earlier yesterday.

"But we didn't talk politics," he added. "We discussed the question of whether relief should be considered at the special session, but we both hoped that a business upturn would obviate that."

During the afternoon the governor visited the new National Guard hangar at Chicago airport. He said he will remain in Highland Park about 10 more days before returning to Springfield.

PRAGUE STRIKE TESTS POWER OF WHISPERED CZECH PROPAGANDA

PRAGUE, Germany, Sept. 30 (AP).—Street car riders went on strike today and Czechs whispered these were the reasons:

1. To register a protest on the anniversary of the Munich four power pact, which resulted in dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia.
2. To try out the effectiveness of word of mouth propaganda, by which the strike was organized.
3. As a protest against preference given the German language in Prague.

The strike reduced passenger business sharply.

Bund Leader Kuhn Stays Second Night in the Tombs

New York, Sept. 30 (AP). — Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American bund, spent a second night in Tombs prison tonight after his counsel again failed to get a reduction in his suddenly increased bail. State Supreme Court Justice Thomas F. Noonan refused to lower bail, originally $5,000, but raised yesterday to $50,000 after the district attorney declared he had information that Kuhn intended to flee the country. Kuhn is charged with the theft of $14,560 in bund funds.

New President of Poles Takes Oath in Paris

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 30.—A new government of the Polish republic was born on French soil tonight when Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, former president of the senate, took the oath of office in the Polish embassy here as the successor of Ignace Moscicki.

Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz.

The new president's first act was to name Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, already commander in chief of the Polish army which is being raised in France, as premier and minister of military affairs.

Western Powers' Answer.

Obviously the new Polish government could not have been formed on French soil without the French government's consent. Its constitution, therefore, was taken here as the answer of France and Great Britain to reports that Germany and Russia had decided on the formation of a rump Polish republic, which they would present to the world as the legitimate successor of the state which they have destroyed since Sept. 1.

There never was any possibility that the legitimacy of the rump state would be recognized by the western powers. However, it was considered necessary here that the Polish leaders in France should have a legal title to speak for their people.

Claim Legal Succession.

The new government claims its authority by due constitutional succession from former President Moscicki, who, according to a communique issued by the embassy today, "announced the resignation of his functions as of Sept. 30."

[Moscicki last night passed through Subotica, Jugo-Slavia, en route to France from Rumania, where he had been interned after fleeing the German invaders.]

Moscicki, the communique revealed, named Raczkiewicz as his successor in an ordinance drawn up on Sept. 17 at Kuty, Poland, on the Rumanian border.

RADIO WARNS OF ORDERS TO SINK BRITAIN'S SHIPS

Blames Arming of Merchant Fleet.

LONDON, Sept. 30 (AP).—The British admiralty tonight said the German radio had broadcast an announcement that Germany now would consider every vessel of the British merchant fleet as a warship.

The admiralty said it interpreted this as a possible indication of an immediate change of policy in German submarine warfare.

An announcement by the British ministry of information said the following message has been promulgated to all British merchant ships by the admiralty:

"The following has been received by German broadcasts this evening:

"'Several German submarines have been attacked by British merchant ships in the last few days.'

Warns Ships to Be Prepared.

"'Hitherto,' the German wireless asserts, 'German submarines have observed international laws by always warning merchant ships before attacking them. Now, however, Germany will have to retaliate by regarding every vessel of the British merchant navy as a warship.'

"While the above, of course, is entirely untrue, it may indicate an immediate change of policy in German submarine warfare and you should be prepared to meet it."

[In Berlin it was said that the arming of commercial vessels by England made it necessary for Germany to view such ships as warships and thus subject to torpedoing without taking measures to assure the safety of the crews. Submarine commanders, it was said, cannot be expected to risk their ships and crews by endeavoring to provide safety to crews of boats which may open fire on them. The British action in arming commercial vessels, it was declared, had no justification in international law and Germany must "return like for like." Neutrals were warned that they traveled "at their own responsibility, on armed merchant ships."]

Await Chamberlain Speech.

England, meanwhile, awaited Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's speech Monday or Tuesday, in which he will tell the house of commons what he thinks of the soviet-German agreement which partitioned Poland and proclaimed a basis for durable peace.

Authoritative sources have said that Britain considers the Nazi-soviet demand for immediate peace as a bogey which will not frighten Britain or France and will not alter their plans for obliterating Hitlerism.

The same sources insisted that the British view of soviet policy is unchanged—that Russia never will agree to pull chestnuts out of the fire for any other government, and that the prospect of hostilities between Britain and France on one side and Russia on the other is extremely remote.

Hints O. K. of Russian Grab.

In support of this view, an editorial in the London Times, which often foretells the course of British policy, suggested that Britain's war aims do not necessarily contemplate restoration of Poland's eastern frontiers [the areas seized by Russia], although Britain will not permit recognition of Hitler's Polish conquest.

While asserting that there can be no peace with Hitler, the Times said British relations with Dictator Stalin will be decided by events.

"Russia takes over in the main white Russians and Ukrainians," the Times said, "while Germany's acquisitions contain areas with a population indubitably Polish."

Some observers recalled that an editorial in the Times suggested a compromise with Germany concerning the Sudetenland of Czechoslovakia weeks before the Munich conference of 1938 put such a compromise into effect.

Canada Puts 145 Aliens in a Government Camp

CALGARY, Alta, Sept. 30 [Canadian Press].—The internment of about 145 aliens in a government camp in the Kananaskis district, 45 miles south of here, was disclosed today. It was learned prisoners also were held in the citadel of Quebec at Kingston, Ont., and that a large internment camp is being prepared at Petawawa, Ont.

Powerful Sea Force Ordered to Hawaii Base

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 30 [Special].—To form a powerful spearhead of security in the Pacific, a fully balanced fast striking force will be detached from the United States fleet here and dispatched next Thursday to its new station at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, it was learned from a reliable source today.

It is understood that the Hawaiian "information and security" force will include the new aircraft carrier Enterprise, with 80 fighting planes; eight heavy cruisers, with their complement of scouting planes, and a flotilla of 30 destroyers, plus their light cruiser flagship.

Improves Strategic Position.

Already on station at Pearl Harbor are 72 giant transocean flying boats of patrol wing No. 2, under Rear Admiral Arthur L. R. Bristol Jr.; the 14 submarines of squadron No. 4, the four units of destroyer division No. 28, just arrived from San Diego, and nine units of mine squadron No. 1.

Observers said that the shift westward of a major portion of the fleet's strength will in no wise alter the concentration of the bulk of America's sea power in the Pacific, but rather will enhance its strategic position.

They explained further that the transfer will relieve the growing congestion of naval base facilities on San Pedro and San Diego bays, particularly as they concern air operations.

Admiral Andrews in Command.

This situation has become more serious since the Los Angeles city administration, by hampering the navy's acquisition of title, has blocked the fleet's plans to establish facilities for one carrier group of 80 planes at the new fleet air base at Reeves field, San Pedro.

Vice Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commander of the scouting force, has been selected to direct the operation of the powerful striking force in the Hawaiian area.

It was learned tonight that the scope of the navy's new security patrol probably will cover the entire eastern pacific, from the equator to Alaska and west to Midway Island.

ENLARGE PACIFIC BASES

BY JAN JABULKA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 30.—Construction started this week on two major navy projects for the added protection of this heavily fortified American military spearhead in the Pacific and its radial outposts on Palmyra, Johnston, and Midway Islands.

The bulk of the army and navy military program in Hawaii, totaling nearly $50,000,000, will be expended on Oahu Island, site of the navy's formidable Pearl Harbor base and the army's Schofield barracks, home of the Hawaiian division with its largest United States peacetime troop concentration.

Operations have begun on project one, the navy's new $5,800,000 Kaneohe bay air base, on a 550 acre site on windward Oahu, which provides for dredging of channels, seaplane landing, and takeoff areas, and construction of quarters and barracks for more than 1,000 officers and men, five seaplane ramps, and a series of hangars.

This is part of a $13,554,000 naval contract let jointly to three firms for air base construction work at Kaneohe bay, Midway, Palmyra, and Johnston Islands, and at Pearl Harbor. The program calls for:

MIDWAY ISLAND — Construction of facilities for the basing and training of one patrol plane squadron with emergency facilities for a second squadron, to consist of barracks, officers' quarters, minor repair facili-

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—The German reichstag was summoned today to meet next week, probably on Monday, to listen to a government declaration. Fuehrer Hitler plans to make his final appeal for peace to England and France at this meeting.

Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Before stepping before the microphone to broadcast to the world, Hitler will inform Italy of the details of this week's negotiations between Germany and Russia. He will state clearly and exactly what the authoritarian states will do if peace is rejected by England and France.

May Call on Italy for Aid.

For this purpose Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, was summoned to Berlin. He will arrive tomorrow. Hitler will request Ciano to inform Premier Mussolini that Germany may call upon him for active assistance. Germany and Italy are bound by a military alliance.

It is asserted in usually well informed circles that the Russians have promised to lend active military help to Germany if England and France decide this is the time to fight combined communism and Naziism.

The mission of the Russian forces will be to create trouble for England from a Black sea base and to attempt to help stir up unrest in Iraq and India. In this connection, the Russian-German negotiations with Turkey are of overwhelming importance. If the soviets can induce the Turks to permit Russian troops to cross Turkey, Russia can easily threaten India.

Hitler Confers with Aids.

Hitler wishes to speak before Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain addresses parliament in London on Monday or Tuesday.

The Fuehrer spent the day in conferences. He presided at a formal cabinet meeting at noon. Before the cabinet meeting he conferred with Joachim von Ribbentrop, his foreign minister; Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of aviation and his right hand man; Heinrich Himmler, chief of the secret police and Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the supreme military command.

Shortly after 4 p. m. the chiefs of the armed forces were called to the chancellery, where Hitler addressed them for 20 minutes. He thanked them for the achievements of the September campaign, which saw the conquest of Poland, and outlined plans for the near future. Field Marshall Goering; Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, chief of the army staf; Gen. Franz Halder, chief of general staf; Maj. Gen. Jeschonnek, chief of air force general staf, and Admiral Erich T. A. Raeder, chief of the admiralty, and their staffs were among those present.

Nazis Halt 45 Ships.

The daily military bulletin is being reduced in size, with the campaign in the east in its final stages, but the Germans are placing emphasis on the naval war.

They reported today that in the Skagerrak and the Kattegat German destroyers and torpedo boats held up and inspected 45 steamers and forced a number of them to sail to German ports during the last 48 hours. An official military commentator explained:

"This shows that we are the masters of the Baltic and North seas and are able to cut off all British supplies from eastern and northern Europe."

Norwegians in Berlin assert that Oslo has no news of the confiscation or sinking of Norwegian ships. They express doubt that the figure of 45 could be reached without including a number of Norwegian vessels, since the Norwegians are the chief sailors in this region.

Berlin Dances Again.

Thousands of young persons, including soldiers returned from Poland, crowded Berlin's dance halls tonight. It was the first time since the war began that the ban against dancing was lifted.

Increased lighting in Berlin was another sign of greater confidence in the capital.

As a further sign of jubilation, Hitler ordered flags to fly from all public buildings in Germany for the next seven days to celebrate the entry of German troops into Warsaw.

Germany's Thanksgiving day tomorrow, however, will be celebrated silently throughout the country in order not to detract from the military celebrations. There will be no Nazi pomp and festivities, as heretofore were customary.

The harvest was said to have been especially good despite the war. Thousands of Polish prisoners helped to harvest the crops. Nazis state that the "best way to give thanks is to work harder on the farm."

CIANO GOES TO BERLIN

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 30.—Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, left Rome suddenly tonight for Berlin at the invitation of Adolf Hitler. He will arrive in Berlin tomorrow afternoon.

Official Italian quarters maintained their usual reticence on the object of Ciano's visit, but in neutral circles here it was linked to Russian and German efforts to restore peace in "accord with other friendly powers."

Reports were current in Rome during the day that Germany was bringing pressure on Italy to join in the peace offensive now that Poland has been partitioned and a Nazi-Red friendship pact has been signed.

May Not Fall in Line.

There is another aspect of this move which, in the opinion of neutral observers here, may make Italy somewhat reluctant to fall in with Germany and Russia, much as Premier Mussolini and Count Ciano would like to see the war give way to peace.

This was the implied threat from Russia and Germany that if Britain and France do not give in they will have to face the joint military might of these two powers.

It was believed in informed quarters here that if Italy associates itself with Hitler and Dictator Josef Stalin in the peace drive it will thereby associate itself by implication with the threat to take joint military measures.

Italy to Be Cautious.

Mussolini's reaffirmation that he intends to institute no military initiative, which is generally taken to mean Italy will not go to war unless attacked, indicates the country probably will hestitate to take any steps which might end in war.

One reason for Ciano's visit, it is believed, is to learn from Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, and Hitler just what Germany and the Russians are up to.

The extent to which Germany and Russia are allied—whether there is a military pact between the two as well as friendship and nonaggression pacts—will be of the greatest importance to Italy in determining the course to follow.

Italians discovered today that peace as well as war is an expensive proposition. A meeting of the council of ministers at which Il Duce presided, was followed by the announcement of two new tax measures which will bite deep into all pocketbooks.

One was a two per cent levy on all transactions between producer and consumer, which takes the place of the sales tax, but is in addition to the income tax.

The second tax is a one half of one per cent levy on all private property except bank accounts.

These measures were necessary, it was explained, to finance defense measures, economic and social projects and public works.

The scene of most important naval operations in the European war. In a conflict of long duration, the outcome might depend on England's ability to blockade German ports and sweep Nazi shipping from the seas. Germany's problem is to keep a path open for submarines to dart into the world shipping lanes to harass British vessels. Most of the activity at sea is unspectacular—ceaseless patroling by the British to see that no German vessel leaves or enters the North sea, and vigilance on the part of Germany to see that no British warships slip into the Baltic.

NAZIS TELL HOW 'MERE KIDS' SANK BRITISH WARSHIP

BERLIN, Sept. 30 (AP)—Germans insisted tonight that a second British aircraft carrier had been sunk and one source said it was done by three bombing planes manned by "mere kids out on a lark."

The first aircraft carrier sunk was the Courageous. German broadcasts have hinted the second carrier was the 22,000-ton Ark Royal.

The source who told of the attack by the "mere kids" said they were undergoing a course in instruction and had no rank, nor even commissions as pilots.

Early last Tuesday, he said, they asked and were granted permission to practice by taking the bombers out for an early morning spin. Soon after they took off they spied a British aircraft carrier. They agreed among themselves which one would make a power dive upon the ship, he continued, and the selected plane dropped a 1,000-pound bomb "smack on the deck of the carrier."

Russians Poke Some Fun at British Leaflet Flyers

MOSCOW, Sept. 30.—The humorous weekly, Crocodile, published under heading "Was Is War" today a cartoon depicting a British officer instructing a pilot before taking off to be careful to unwrap packages containing leaflets before dropping them, "or you might accidentally bruise a German soldier."

NAZI DESTROYERS SEIZE 3 DANISH MERCHANT SHIPS

Intercept Food Shipments en Route to Britain.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 30 (AP).—German warships today seized three Danish freighters in the Kattegat and took them to a German port, according to a report from the lightship at Laeso island.

Word from the lightship said German destroyers could be seen plainly as they took the steamers Rota, Diana, and Lyneas.

The Rota, 840 tons, and the Diana, 942 tons, were bound for England with bacon and butter; the Lyneas, 656 tons, was bound for the Netherlands with woodpulp from Sweden.

A foreign office spokesman said Denmark would protest the seizures to the German government. Bacon and butter, he pointed out, were not considered contraband.

He asserted that a special German envoy, Ulrich von Hassell, early in the war assured the Danish government that Germany would not interfere with Denmark's trade with England.

Until today, no Danish ship had been seized or sunk by Germans, although early in the war several fishing smacks struck German mines.

Finnish Steamer Seized.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Sept. 30 (AP).—The 2,141 ton Finnish steamer Satakunta was reported seized tonight by a German warship and taken to Hamburg. The ship was en route to Belgium with a cargo of timber.

Claim 45 Ships Searched.

BERLIN, Sept. 30 [U. P.].—The German army high command, disclosing a counterblockade to the British contraband control, claimed today that during the last 48 hours German destroyers and torpedo boats have searched 45 steamers in the Kattegat and Skagerrak. A communique said that a number of vessels had been taken to German ports for confiscation of their cargoes.

Admiral Vernou Takes Over Battleship Division No. 2

San Pedro, Cal., Sept. 30 (AP).—With traditional ceremony, Rear Admiral Adolphus E. Watson today turned over command of battleship division No. 2 of the United States fleet to Rear Admiral Walter N. Vernou, recently commandant of the 15th naval district and the United States Naval station at Balboa, C. Z.

In event soviet Russia gives active military help to Germany in its war against Great Britain and France, the mission of the Red army will be to attempt to help to stir up trouble in Iraq, a British mandate, and India, British territory (both in diagonal shading). If Turkey should give permission for Russian troops to cross her territory, these troops might move (1) from a Black sea base to threaten Iraq and India. Without such permission a Russian movement through the Dardanelles, through the Mediterranean sea, and around the Arabian peninsula presumably would be blocked by the British fleet. On the other hand, lofty mountains in Afghanistan and on the Russian-Indian border (2) would make difficult or impossible such a Russian operation to the east of the Caspian sea.

PEARL HARBOR — Three million dollars for new storage and housing construction, seaplane hangars, and miscellaneous smaller units, is to be expended here under the air bases contract.

$10,000,000 Dock Started.

Second major naval project started this week was the giant $10,000,000 Pearl Harbor graving dock. It will be capable of berthing for repairs the largest of Uncle Sam's fighting craft. The present dry dock at Pearl Harbor, completed in 1919 at a cost of $12,000,000, is insufficient to accommodate the larger units of the battle force.

Damage inflicted on larger warships in Hawaiian waters could not be repaired with present dry dock facilities. Such ships would be compelled to quit the fleet to put into west coast navy yards for overhaul.

Naval authorities here this week launched negotiations for acquisition of 300 acres near Pearl Harbor for a $4,214,000 housing project. Plans call for erection of 447 dwelling units, costing from $8,000 to $14,000 apiece, providing quarters for 450 officers and men.

The army in Hawaii, meanwhile, is pushing work on its major defense scheme, Hickam field, which is rapidly being transformed from 2,300 acres of brush and sugar cane land into the world's greatest military air field.

Supply Jobs for 2,900.

Eight millions already have been spent for hangars and administration buildings at Hickam, situated strategically near the entrance to Pearl Harbor. The building program, gaining momentum under an additional $10,000,000 appropriated by the last congress, will supply jobs for 2,900 workers within four months, Capt. John A. Hunt, constructing quartermaster, said.

Bids for the largest unit in the current program, quarters for 222 noncommissioned officers and their families, were opened last week. This week bids will be opened for $350,000 in landing mats. When completed, Hickam field will have the world's largest landing mat.

Navy Strengthens Hawaiian Area

A powerful striking force will be detached from the United States fleet at Los Angeles, Cal., and sent to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, next Thursday, it was learned yesterday. Construction on two major naval defense projects in the mid-Pacific was started last week. One is a $10,000,000 graving dock at Pearl Harbor. The other consists of air base construction at Pearl Harbor, at Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, and on Midway, Johnston, and Palmyra Islands.

POLAND SEIZURE BY FOES ILLEGAL, AMERICA IS TOLD

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30 (AP).—Ambassador Jerzy Potocki of Poland formally denounced to the state department today the German-Russian partition of his country.

The ambassador's action posed for the United States the question what diplomatic attitude to take toward the latest disappearance of a European state. Diplomats expect this government will do as it did when Czechoslovakia was swallowed by Germany—refuse to recognize the conquest.

"That the agreement signed in Moscow between the governments of Germany and of soviet Russia on Sept. 28, 1938, assuming to dispose of the territory of the Polish republic is an illegal act in direct violation of existing treaties and international law," said the Potocki statement. "In consequence the government of the republic of Poland refuses to recognize this agreement and will strive, with all means at its disposal to free the territory of the republic of Poland from occupation by alien troops and to restore to its people their inalienable rights to freedom and self-determination."

ILLINOIS SENATORS' MAIL SHOWS TREND FAVORING EMBARGO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Senator Scott W. Lucas [D., Ill.] has received such a huge volume of letters, postal cards and telegrams demanding repeal or retention of the neutrality act that his office force has been unable to tabulate it on a pro and con basis, he said today. Some of Senator Lucas' constituents have asked information as to the trend of his mail.

The senator has received more than 60,000 letters, postal cards and telegrams, according to his office force. A member of the office force said that until a few days ago, there was a substantial majority in favor of retaining the arms embargo, but the mail now is about equally divided, due apparently to the appearance of organized propaganda mail in favor of the administration's program to repeal the arms embargo.

The senator has received several thousand postal cards with identical phraseology, apparently from organized German-American sources opposing repeal of the embargo. Also recently there have been thousands of form letters and postal cards from other propaganda sources favoring repeal. Senator Lucas has indicated that he will support repeal of the arms embargo..

Senator James M. Slattery [D., Ill.] who has not committed himself with respect to the neutrality act, has received more than 30,000 communications from constituents, the overwhelming majority favoring retention of the arms embargo.

AMERICAS ADOPT PLAN FOR STRONG ECONOMIC FRONT

PANAMA, Panama, Sept. 30 (AP).—The inter-American conference on neutrality tonight completed a plan for a strengthened economic front for 21 American republics. The plan provides for 21 experts to study monetary problems, exchange balances, international payments, means of obtaining monetary and economic stability, exports and imports legislation, and other data affecting shipping and commerce.

The conference will be resumed Tuesday and is expected to decide a proposal to define a safety zone circling the Americas in which no belligerent activities would be permitted.

100 FIRES BLAZE ON IN WARSAW, A CITY OF RUINS

Finest Buildings Wrecked in 20 Day Siege.

[Following is a first hand account of conditions in surrendered Warsaw by an Associated Press staff man who was the first American correspondent to view the Polish capital since its siege by German armies began Sept. 8.]

BY MELVIN WHITELEATHER.

WARSAW, Sept. 30 (AP).—Warsaw is in ruins.

Former Saxon palace as it looked before siege.

There is scarcely an undamaged building in the center of the Polish capital. The former Saxon palace on spacious Pilsudski square in the heart of the city, which housed the Polish foreign office, has been shelled and burned.

Other buildings in the vicinity of the square suffered equally from shells and bombs. The city's two largest hotels are located there.

I circled twice tonight in a Junkers plane over the city whose root was ripped open to the sky during the 20 day siege by German armies.

Hundred Fires Burning.

It was a sad sight, first in the late afternoon and then at dusk as a red moon peered over the horizon casting a glow on the Vistula river.

At least a hundred fires were burning.

The largest was along the coal yard on the railway line to Berlin. From the air it looked like a highly illuminated boulevard. Smaller fires could be seen burning in all quarters of the city. Most of the buildings already had been gutted and only tiny wisps of smoke arose from them.

The east railway station in Praga, Warsaw's eastern section, was burning. But two iron bridges over the Vistula, connecting Praga with Warsaw proper, were intact.

Praga a Trench Town.

Bitter fighting took place in Praga before the capital was shelled heavily and tonight it was a trench town. Trenches zigzagged along the streets and back yards. They even were dug in front of apartment house doors so it was possible to step from the front door into a trench.

Praga's buildings had their sides blown out and their roofs caved in, but this destruction was a bagatelle compared with what I saw when I got across the Vistula and looked down on an entire city lying under piles of bricks, plaster, and charred débris.

A long line of bedraggled Polish soldiers, unarmed, marched in good order wes.ward out of the city. They had stacked their guns. The first group of thousands of Polish soldiers, who held the city until it was battered to pieces and forced to surrender Sept. 27, left last night. The last are due to depart tomorrow night.

Outside the city they were met by Germans and taken prisoner. German troops are scheduled to occupy the city Oct. 2. So far no important body of Germans has entered the central part of Warsaw.

Streets Almost Deserted.

The streets are virtually deserted. A few hundred persons milled about Pilsudski square and half a dozen automobiles were seen in various parts of the city.

I flew to Warsaw from Brest-Litovsk after spending two and a half days watching the Russian army march into eastern Poland. The Russians have not advanced further than Brest-Litovsk.

The soviets are moving slowly and in masses. German troops have not yet withdrawn completely beyond the military demarcation lines, but only small detachments were seen east of the Vistula.

PRESS OF RUSSIA ECHOES WARNING ON HITLER PEACE

Mutual Assistance Pact with Estonia Ratified.

MOSCOW, Sept. 30 (AP).—The presidium of the supreme soviet today ratified the 10 year mutual assistance pact and agreement for expanded trade with Estonia.

Izvestia, government newspaper, at the same time warned other powers not to interfere with the agreements of Thursday between Germany and Russia because they do not "recognize any one's right to interfere with the affairs of two neighborly states which wish to live in peace and friendship."

Hand in hand with Izvestia's warning was an editorial in Pravda, organ of the communist party, which said that to secure peace "if necessary the governments of the U. S. S. R. and Germany will draw in other friendly powers."

More Peasants "Liberated."

The press continued to be filled with reports of the "liberation" of workers and peasants in the one time Polish Ukraine.

One picture showed Red army troops handing out rifles to committees of workers and peasants as the round up of Polish landlords, army officers, and "capitalists" continued.

While Russia agreed in a declaration to coöperate with Germany and other "friendly powers" to try to compel Britain and France to make peace, diplomatic quarters expressed doubt the Russians had any intention ultimately to join Germany in the war if the peace maneuvers should fail.

Already Satisfied, Perhaps.

These quarters expressed the view that Russia was quite satisfied with the territory she had gained in the partitioning of Poland and was willing to watch the nations to the west weaken each other in conflict.

British and French meanwhile endeavored to minimize the aid Russia could give Germany in the way of raw materials. They said the Russians have a pressing need at home.

A German economic mission was expected to arrive in Moscow shortly to resume negotitions to carry out the agreement to expand trade. Wheat and timber shipments, it was understood, particularly were expected by Germany.

MEXICAN LABOR, TRADE CHARGE FOOD SHORTAGE

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 30 (AP).—Mexican labor and business organizations are urging the government to act to remedy what they call a shortage of prime food stuffs. Informed observers said today that the food situation had become one of the most serious problems on the Mexican economic horizon.

The C. T. M., national labor union, published a report today that thousands demonstrated last night at Vera Cruz, demanding that merchants reduce prices. Orators at the demonstrations said failure to cut prices within eight days would bring seizure of stocks.

The national confederation of chambers of commerce insisted it was helpless, inasmuch as the price and distribution of prime food stuffs is controled by the government.

3,000 SLOVAKS MUTINY; DEFY NAZI DEATH EDICT

Saved by General After Refusing to Go to War.

ZILINA, Slovakia, Sept. 30 (AP).—The story of a Slovak regiment which refused to march against Poland and defied a German threat of summary execution was told today by one of the mutineers.

The informant produced evidence that he was mobilized before Sept. 1 [when German troops entered Poland] and was garrisoned until 15 days ago at Kremnica, in middle Slovakia.

He said only the personal intervention of Gen. Ferdinand Csatlos, war minister and army commander, saved the regiment from German punishment. Csatlos hurried from the Polish front, reaching Kremnica before the 24 hour German ultimatum to "march or be shot" expired.

3,000 Men in Regiment.

"The men in our regiment were all Slovaks, and just a year ago we had been mobilized to fight for the Czech-Slovak republic against Germany," the informant said. "We couldn't forget that, nor the old Slovak feeling of friendship for Slavic brothers in Poland.

"We got our marching orders, but we didn't march. We lined up with full equipment on the drill ground, nearly 3,000 strong. We were solidly against a war we didn't want.

"We began singing the Czecho-Slovak national anthem. Our officers let us go back to the barracks and we waited to see what the German military commander would do about it.

"Word came that we would be court martialed and shot unless we obeyed the German order. But we didn't move. All night we sat up talking and singing. We didn't know what the morning would bring, but we were ready to face the worst.

"Csatlos saved us. We owe our lives to him. The Germans made him put the Slovak army into the war, but I know he did everything possible to save his troops in the front line, and he wouldn't let the Germans take revenge on our regiment.

"Csatlos knew how we felt. In 1917 he went over from the Austrian-Hungarian army to the Czech Legions in Russia. He still is a true Slovak. When he came to Kremnica the Germans stopped their threats.

"He gave most of the regiment three weeks' leave and others were transferred. None went to the front. Soon the war finished. I tell you we're glad it's over."

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

WAR DIPLOMACY OF EUROPE PUTS TURK IN MIDDLE

Promises Pacts to Both Britain and Reds.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Europe's war drama, now ending its fourth week, is becoming more mystifying, if reports in the press here tonight are to be credited.

These reports state that the texts of mutual assistance pacts between the Turks and French and British have been agreed upon and will shortly be signed. They also report that a Turkish military mission headed by Gen. Klazim Orbay is on its way to London.

It is claimed here that a pact that the Turkish foreign minister, Sukru Saracoglu, now visiting in Moscow, will sign with the soviets is not inconsistent with the conclusion of pacts with France and Great Britain.

Turkey Balks at War on Reds.

[Other dispatches to The Tribune last night stated Russia is speeding the formation of a pact of Balkan nations to make sure that the Black sea will be kept neutral. Turkey is said to have agreed not to make war on Russia to close the Dardanelles. According to German sources, Russia has promised Germany military help if England and France reject Adolf Hitler's peace proposals and plans to use a Black sea base to foment trouble in Iraq [Mesopotamia] and India].

The agreement between the Turkish government and the Anglo-French combine represents a diplomatic victory for the allies, it is said here. British officials tonight said the mutual assistance pact between the Turks and Britain and France will have an important influence in preventing the spread of German influence through the Balkan states.

Russia Speeds Balkan Pact.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 30 (AP).—Dispatches from Balkan capitals tonight indicated that soviet Russia was continuing to move swiftly in an apparent plan to neutralize the Black sea area and extend her diplomatic influence throughout southeastern Europe.

Russian-Turkish negotiations have been followed by announcement that Rumania will join in the diplomatic conferences at Moscow, leading to belief that a Black sea pact under the guidance of Moscow is being framed.

Such a pact, if signed by Rumania and Bulgaria as well as Turkey and Russia, observers said, would establish soviet-German communications by way of the Black sea and the Danube river. It also would establish the soviet state as the dominant influence in an area where German influence has hitherto pressed for advantage, it was added.

Ports Facing Restriction.

Coincident with the announcement that Grigore Gafencu, Rumanian foreign minister, and a staff of experts would go to Moscow Monday, it was reported without confirmation in Bucharest that Rumania had received assurances through a third party that her Bessarabian frontier would not be violated although Russian troops are on her frontier. Rumania gained Bessabaria from Russia at the end of the world war.

The status of Rumania's Black sea ports is expected to be discussed when the Rumanian foreign minister, Gafencu, reaches Moscow. Russia is expected to insist that the use of the ports shall conflict in no way with soviet policy, especially regarding supplies for Germany.

Reports persist here that adjustment of the Rumania-Bulgaria dispute over the Dobrudja territory is being undertaken to draw Bulgaria into the Balkans pact. The Dobrudja was won by Rumania in the Balkan war and the world war settlements.

In its discussions with Sukru Saracoglu, Turkey's foreign minister, Russia is reported to have received a promise that Turkey will not fight Russia in fulfillment of any mutual assistance pact with France and England.

Saracoglu is said further to have promised to shut the Dardanelles, entrance to the Black sea, against the warships of all belligerent nations. This would isolate Rumania, through which a blow might be struck at Germany, by western powers.

Moscow dispatches tonight stated that Sarcoglu's Turkish mission, said to have been annoyed at receiving little attention during recent Russian-German discussions, today consulted both the British and French embassies.

Troops Arrive in Porto Rico

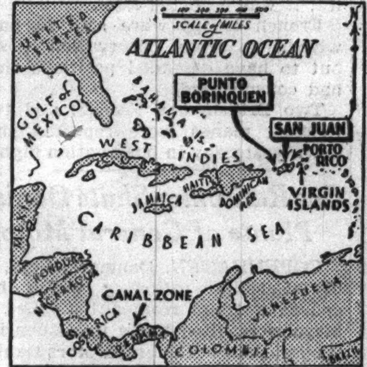
Two units of coast artillery from San Francisco, Cal., arrived in San Juan, Porto Rico, this week and are to be followed within a few days by military organizations from six other states. An aircraft detector, which finds the range for three inch anti-aircraft guns, is one of the pieces of equipment taken to the island by the army units. In the background is the new $4,000,000 capitol.



Map shows importance of Porto Rico in defense of Panama canal and Gulf of Mexico. Troops are moving to San Juan and an air base has been authorized at Punto Borinquen.

U. S. TROOPS LAND TO FORM BASE IN PORTO RICO

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 30.—Arrival this week of the first American troops to land here since the Spanish-American war signalized the start of the establishment of the new Porto Rico department of the army, announced in Washington, D. C., by Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring last May 1. The department is under command of Brig. Gen. Edmund L. Daley, who arrived on the island last July 1.

The new department comprises Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and all adjacent islands and keys belonging to the United States. The department is intended to strengthen the defense of the Panama canal, the Gulf of Mexico, and the gulf states.

The first units to arrive here were batteries A and B of the 69th coast artillery, from San Francisco. Some two weeks ago units totaling 1,700 men were ordered to this department.

Most of these troops are anti-aircraft and field artillery units. One of the important features of the defenses to be developed in the Porto Rico department, however, is the air force. More than two months ago authorization to acquire Punto Borinquen, 75 miles from San Juan, for an air base was announced. Eight million dollars has been allotted for use this year in developing a base there.

FRENCH LEADERS EXAMINE GAINS IN MONTH OF WAR

Nazis Held in Air; Advance Made on Land and Sea.

PARIS, Sept. 30 (AP).—Ranking commanders of France's army, navy, and air force met Premier Edouard Daladier for an hour and a half today to review the first four weeks of the war.

Here is what the first month of the war showed:

On land the Polish front has disappeared under the joint German-Russian invasion, releasing German troops and planes for action against France and Britain in the west.

Methodical French advances on the western front partly cleared fortifications from the no man's land separating the Maginot and Siegfried lines by driving a series of salients, the deepest of which is about seven miles on German soil.

Saarbruecken Nearly Circled.

Two of these salients, however, one on either side of the industrial city of Saarbruecken, were reported by French military observers to have three-fourths encircled the capital of the Saar mining basin. It was estimated that Germany has lost four-fifths of the industrial production and more than half the coal output of the Saar valley.

On the sea the French and British fleets established a convoy system that is said to have assured reasonable safety for their shipping despite activity of German submarines. The French pointed to the safe arrival at Le Havre yesterday of the liners Champlain, De Grasse, and Colombie after trips across the Atlantic as an indication that German submarines were being brought under control.

Nazis Meet Check in Air.

In the air French and British planes were said to be meeting German flyers, who had everything their own way in Poland, on equal footing.

Although no total figures on aerial fighting on the west front have been made public, figures issued by the French left the impression that their losses were approximately only half of those of the Germans in a series of almost daily dogfights. American-built Curtiss planes have been doing their share for the French.

British planes, it was announced, have carried out one raid against the German fleet at Wilhelmshaven and have repeatedly dropped leaflets on German towns, while French long range scouting ships have been flying deep in German territory to observe troop movements.

On the last day of the war's first month activity was restricted to artillery duels and local skirmishes.

Nazis Increase Patrol Strength.

The Germans today were reported increasing the strength of their patrols in sectors on both sides of Saarbruecken and along a plateau three miles wide north of the French town of Wissembourg.

The French general staff's communique tonight stated:

"Enemy artillery action in the region immediately to the east of the Moselle [river]. We replied with artillery fire. Large aerial activity on both sides."

Two Thrusts by Germany.

BASEL, Switzerland, Sept. 30 (AP)—German patrols today thrust at a gap in the Moselle-Saar triangle opposite Merzig and in the Wissembourg sector, it was reported here.

French troops were said to have withdrawn from observation posts, but to have defended positions they had consolidated.

Two British, one French, and two German planes were reported shot down yesterday in observation flights.

A Nurse in France

LOBOV ROSTOVA.

New York, Sept. 30 [Special].—When the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo comes to America next month for its winter tour, Lobov Rostova, one of the company's dancers, will not be along. She is staying in France as an army nurse. Tatiana Grantzeva, another member of the company, also has joined a French nursing unit. Two principals of the company and six members of the corps de ballet were unable to obtain visas, and their places will be filled by Americans. The company is expected to open in New York on Oct. 26 after two weeks of rehearsal.

Gas Rationing Shuts Danish Plants of General Motors

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 30 (AP).—Gasoline rationing which has caused a trend from automobiles to bicycles resulted today in suspension of operations in General Motors Danish assembly plants, employing approximately 1,000 workers. More than 2 million bicycles are used in this country.

Italy Puts 142 Battalions of Black Shirts Into Army

ROME, Sept. 30 [U. P.].—Premier Benito Mussolini received a group of Genoa Fascist leaders at the Venice palace tonight and told them 142 battalions of the Black Shirt militia would be incorporated as an organic part of the Italian army.

Jews Ousted from Places on Hungarian City Councils

BUDAPEST, Sept. 30 (AP).—Jewish members of city councils and town governing bodies in many Hungarian communities were removed from office today under laws regulating the Jewish population.

Battles in Sky! You Pick the Winner

Official British and German sources yesterday gave varying accounts of activity by their respective air forces. Both versions are printed below, the reader being left to judge which should be considered the more accurate.

LONDON, Sept. 30 (AP).—The air ministry announced tonight that British planes had engaged in an air battle over German territory and that some British casualties had resulted. The ministry said the German casualties were not known.

"Successful reconnaissances by the royal air force have again been carried out by day and by night over Germany," the announcement said. "The aircraft reconnoitering on the western front engaged in an air battle over enemy territory. The engagement took place at a great height. We suffered some casualties. Enemy casualties are not known."

The air ministry also said that photographs taken by royal air force pilots showed in clearest detail some of the most strongly fortified zones of the German Siegfried line. None of the planes flying 600 feet over the line was attacked, the air ministry said, and suggested that possibly they were mistaken for German aircraft.

BERLIN, Sept. 30 (AP).—D. N. B., German official news agency, said tonight seven British planes were shot down today in two engagements with German planes, one of which it said occurred over the North sea and the other over the western front. The news agency said the Germans also "caused one French plane to crash."

D. N. B. asserted two of the British planes were destroyed over the North sea by two German pursuit planes. In the vicinity of Saarbruecken, on the western front, it said five British planes approached the west wall and that all were shot down. The news agency added that the same German squadron that encountered the British caused the crash of the French craft.

In a summary of the first month of the war, D. N. B. declared the French had lost 37 planes and the British 27, either in air battles or from anti-aircraft fire. The news agency said that in addition to the British losses which it listed, an undetermined number of planes went down with the British aircraft carrier Courageous, torpedoed Sept. 18.

SWISS REPORT NAZIS CUT DOWN COAL FOR ITALY

LUCERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 30 (AP).—German coal, which poured through St. Gotthard tunnel en route to Italy at the rate of nearly 25,000 tons a day the first three weeks of the war, has dropped to only a few hundred tons a day.

Some observers ascribed this drop partly to neutral Switzerland's desire to have such shipments routed through the Brenner pass, outside Swiss territory. But even the Brenner shipments have been small. Another explanation, given by Swiss business sources, was that the great reserves of Saar coal mined for export before the war are dwindling.

Italian sources said, however, the Germans have filled their Mediterranean port coal yards and are waiting for consumption to catch up with the demand before sending more.

BELGIUM'S TRADE DROPS; BLAME WAR BLOCKADE

BRUSSELS, Sept. 30 (AP).—Comparatively empty harbors and a new three year high for unemployment bore witness today to the effect of Europe's war on neutral Belgium's national life. There is one universally expressed hope — "We don't want war"—but observers said business had been hit heavily by the British blockade of Germany.

Belgians speak not only of the necessity of supplying the people with basic rations, but where to get raw materials for their highly developed industry and how to reach markets with their products. Trade negotiations with the French, British, and Germans are under way, and the Belgian press has indicated an increasing interest in negotiations with America for increased trade.

PIUS FLAYS 'FOES OF GOD'; DECLARES POLAND WILL LIVE

Bestows Blessing Upon Vanquished People.

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Sept 30 (AP)—Pope Pius XII expressed hope today that religious freedom would survive in dismembered Poland "despite many reasons for fear given by the too well-known designs of enemies of God."

Pope Pius.

Speaking at an audience for Polish residents of Rome in his first public utterance since the German and Russian invasions of Poland, the pope admonished his hearers that "as you shed bitter tears for your dead, remember that Poland is not going to die."

"May Christ, who wept at the death of Lazarus and over the ruin of his fatherland, gather and some day compensate you for the tears you spill over your dead and over that Poland which does not want to die," he said.

Warns Against Hatred.

Consoling the Polish people "in this frightful, tragic hour," he told the Poles that their sorrow "thus tempered with hope will not be mixed with rancor or even less with hate."

He offered his consolation, too, at the sight of "hundreds of thousands of poor human beings, some noncombatants" suffering from "wounds in bodies and souls from this war, from which all of our efforts so persistently and ardently, but nevertheless futilely, sought to preserve from Europe."

He appealed to the bishops and clergy to continue their work in Poland and said he hoped for the preservation of liberty of worship, the catholic press, charitable institutions, social work and religious instruction.

Many In Audience Weep.

Cardinal August Hlond, primate of Poland, stood beside the pope as he bestowed his apostolic blessing on the Polish people. Many of those in the audience, mostly nuns and priests, wept at the pope's words.

When he finished speaking, the pope stepped down from his dias and stood as the gathering sang "May God Protect Poland," the hymn with which the Poles have comforted themselves in previous partitions of their homeland by foreign powers.

The pope spoke of the Poles' military valor, their ten centuries of "defending Christian Europe," and their great religious faith.

He added that the Polish people had lost their lives and goods before in the nation's long history, but declared there are riches which "are not kept in strong boxes, but in the human heart."

MARS TAKES UP ROLE OF CUPID; TRADE BOOMS

Cupid and his arrows, indeed! The marriage license business is booming, and County Clerk Michael J. Flynn credited Mars and his bullets yesterday. The war in Europe is creating more jobs, Flynn said. He thinks that's why more couples have been married in the last month, anyway, than in September last year.

Total licenses issued here in the first three-quarters of 1939 are 26,680—13.8 per cent more than in the same period of last year. There were 3,381 licenses issued in August last year and 3,056 in September. This year there were 3,921 in August and 3,490 in September.

Wartime Fashions

London women remain chic despite tasks meted out to them by the fortunes of war. This is a taxi driver in her jaunty uniform cap.

FOUND DEAD IN LOCKED GARAGE.

Edward Miazga, 28 years old, 11721 South Michigan avenue, a clerk, was found dead yesterday in his father's car in a garage at 31 East 117th place. The car motor was running and the garage door locked. A coroner's jury later found the death was accidental.

NAZI WEST FRONT IS IMPREGNABLE, JAP EXPERT SAYS

General Calls Siegfried Line a Work of Art.

BERLIN, Sept. 30 (AP).—Gen. Count Juichi Terauchi, former commander-in-chief of the Japanese armies in North China, said today that he believed Germany's Siegfried line, if occupied by competent troops, would be impregnable.

Gen. Terauchi, former war minister and now a member of Japan's supreme war council, came to Europe as leader of a Japanese mission which was to have attended the annual Nazi party congress at Nuremberg, canceled just before Germany invaded Poland.

The Japanese general has just returned from a tour of the west wall, after a visit at the Polish front, where he talked with Fuehrer Hitler. For several weeks he has been in close contact with German officers and soldiers.

Calls Line a Work of Art.

"The German west fortifications are a military work of art," said Terauchi. "The apparent disorderly system of bunkers, trenches, artillery emplacements, tank hindrances and fortifications reveals itself on closer examination as a vibrant organism in which each element synchronizes with the other and in which every eventuality had been previously weighed.

"The Siegfried line, in the extent of its firing power, in solidity, its style of construction and in the depth to which it is built, is an ideal ground for a military command to make a stand for an almost unlimited time even with numerically smaller forces against a far superior attacker.

"On the basis of my military experience I can't imagine that such fortifications occupied by competent troops could ever be conquered."

Tells Impression of Poland.

In Poland the Japanese officer particularly visited operations area of the German north army at Mlawa, Modlin and Warsaw, where fighting was then still going on.

He said the extent of the motorization of German troops was without doubt responsible for the swift decision in the east, but added that the campaign also showed that infantry still is the backbone of every army.

Terauchi said the precision of advance reinforcements dovetailing with armored car, air force and infantry operations was particularly impressive.

HOW AN ENEMY COULD INVADE UNITED STATES

Military Expert Explains Our Weakness.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

In previous articles we have discussed the necessity for immediate rearming of United States military forces with modern weapons and organizing of a field army to be utilized as a defensive striking force and kept separate from the 169,000 troops which are scattered on small posts throughout the country and the territories.

As a matter of fact, our problems are so critical that even though enough men for a field army 110,000 strong [we do not possess such an army today] were suddenly recruited and given intensive training to enable them to function efficiently, our forces would be little stronger. This is true because we do not possess the basic weapons with which to make such an army potent.

A Hypothetical Problem.

Let us consider a hypothetical war problem that arises when a hostile expeditionary force of 50,000 well equipped men makes a surprise landing and is able to consolidate its position before our army could engage it. Such a situation would require strong artillery fire before the enemy lines could be stormed and dislodged.

Any attack on the United States must come from Canada or Mexico if the surprise element is to be present and an enemy force sufficient to make a practical advance against us is to be assembled. Canada would be the more probable route, since it is much nearer to both Europe and Asia than is Mexico.

Enemy transports heading to a Canadian port would have an excellent chance of avoiding our scouting fleets. Their chances would be poor if they were forced to approach Mexico either through the Caribbean or on the Pacific side, for Central American and the Canal Zone both are zealously watched.

Let us assume, therefore, that Halifax, Nova Scotia, has been seized. The enemy has made a successful landing of his 50,000 troops, and their quotas of artillery, mechanized cavalry, horse cavalry, aviation, and that the enemy divisions are plentifully supplied with machine guns and the latest automatic rifles and anti-tank weapons.

We Hear About It.

News of the landing reaches the United States only after the enemy transports have started home to collect another 50,000 men to reinforce the invading corps. Immediately our aviation begins scouting, and harassing the enemy with bombs and machine gun attacks upon troop concentrations.

Our first problem is to transport our field army from its hiding place in the Adirondacks—where it has been assembled because the war department had some knowledge of the strained relations with the hypothetical hostile country and had taken precautions to anticipate an assault somewhere along the North Atlantic coast.

Elements of our field army commence the march northeastward within an hour after the first reports arrive. The streamlined divisions, plentifully supplied with trucks, begin rolling over the highways, and supply trains start by rail toward the beleaguered port. We assume in this problem the coöperation of a friendly Canada.

After scouting reports verify the fact that Halifax is in enemy hands, the general staff begins consideration of the problem from a strategical as well as tactical point of view. The chief element is time, since it has been ascertained that the enemy transports cannot make the round trip with the second section of the invaders in less than four weeks.

The Time Limit.

The entrenched forces at Halifax, therefore, must be destroyed within 28 days, so that the landing operations of the second load of the enemy can be opposed directly.

At the speed streamlined divisions would be able to travel—and since they would be moving through friendly territory—the American commander could well assume that the 600 mile distance could be covered in four days without tiring his army so much that it would be seriously handicapped in battle.

Consequently the leading elements of the field army would make contact with the enemy outside Halifax in four days. Another day might be consumed in feeling out the enemy lines, and investing them. The scouts, aerial and on land, report that the enemy has entrenched along a 30 mile line with the idea of holding Halifax until reinforced.

The American troops, outnumbering the enemy roughly two to one, quickly move up and deploy. As soon as the artillery is in place fire is opened and the battle is on. This should be within six to eight days after the seizure of Halifax.

Aviation photographs and reports from cavalry and mechanized forces indicate that it is impractical to attempt to turn flanks. The enemy has placed his positions so that he can receive aid from his sea vessels—with large caliber guns—and consequently the American assault must be a frontal one.

The American commander orders his three mechanized cavalry units and three infantry divisions into the first assault, keeping in reserve only three divisions of infantry plus the horse cavalry. The mechanized cavalry, with its armor and its relatively strong hitting power due to automatic weapons, supports the infantry attack.

Only now do we come to the crux of the case. For now, with all our available cannon in action, the American commander finds that his assault is not receiving sufficient artillery support.

Our imaginary army has the following weapons: 288 howitzers of 105 millimeter caliber; 120 howitzers of 155 mms; 96 guns of 155 mms; 24 howitzers of 240 mms.; 324 heavy mortars [81 mms.] and 486 light mortars [60 mms.] in addition to anti-aircraft, anti-tank and machine guns. Counting all the howitzers and guns, we have a total of 528 pieces scattered over the 30 mile front, or one piece to every 100 yards of front.

The Actual Situation.

Actually, of course, on the basis of guns and howitzers existing in fact today, we would be much weaker than that. We have only two of the 105 mm. howitzers which are expected to replace entirely the 75 mm. pieces that have been standard field artillery for forty-three years. We are critically short of 155 mm. guns and the 155 mm. howitzer, too, and there are said to be only a few of the 240 mm. howitzers now available.

But let us assume that our imaginary field army has its full equipment. Experience in France has shown that a weakness in artillery means inevitably that there will be great losses in assaulting troops. The extreme width that any one gun can cover effectively in a barrage such as is needed for attacks is 55 yards to a gun. And our army's guns must cover 100 yards.

For the attack at Cantigny on May 28, 1918, over a front of a mile and a quarter, the density of artillery was such that there was one 75 mm. gun for each 20 yards, and one heavy gun for each 45 yards. This meant that there was one gun for each 14 yards of front. In addition, the division employed 34 trench mortars. The preparation and covering fire was successful and the advance was made with few losses.

Soissons Recalled.

In comparison with this attack, Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall in a report cites the assault of Soissons on July 18, 1918, over a front of roughly two miles. Artillery support was weak. The density of the barrage and protective fire was one 75 mm. gun for each 40 yards and one 155 mm. howitzer for each 150 yards of front. This was equivalent to one gun to about 31 yards, or more than three times as many as in the hypothetical war problem at Halifax.

Gen. Summerall declares the artillery support was hopelessly inadequate, and therefore the division lost over 7,000 men in five days while gaining about seven miles of ground. The fault, he added, did not lie with the guns themselves, for they were used with boldness and efficiency.

Comparing the amount of artillery support available for our mythical field army divisions, we can only conclude that our assaults on the enemy would be beaten back with heavy losses. And our defeat could be attributed to but one fault—lack of sufficient weight of guns. Such a deficiency could hardly be remedied in the remaining time and we must assume that the reinforcement of the invading forces was successfully made. The enemy then would reinforce his expeditionary force and defeat our army. The country would be successfully invaded.

This is a doleful picture. It should, however, be a warning that cannot be disregarded. The army must have funds and authority to commence quantity production of the arms that will transform our poorly armed forces into highly effective ones.

ANOTHER ARMED LINER SLIPS OUT OF N. Y. HARBOR

British Mauretania Sails with 3 Guns Mounted.

New York, Sept. 30 [Special].—The Cunard White Star liner Mauretania, armed with three guns, slipped out of New York harbor today. It was the second armed British liner within eight days to leave this port for an unannounced destination. The first was the Aquitania, which sailed last Saturday, Sept. 23, mounting two 12 pound guns.

The Mauretania, like the Aquitania, was painted a dull gray as protection against being sighted by German warcraft in the Atlantic. The Mauretania had been in New York harbor since Sept. 20.

Recalls Bremen Search.

Today's sailing revived comment on the action of federal authorities in holding up the German liner Bremen for 39 hours for an unusual search, the announced purpose of which was to insure that she was not violating American laws. The detention took place just before the outbreak of war.

The fact that the armed British liners were allowed to leave American ports was explained by pointing out that under international law, neutral nations may allow armed merchantmen of belligerents to depart so long as the arms are for defensive purposes.

Liner Manhattan Docks.

The American liner Manhattan reached port today, bearing 1,868 passengers from Southampton, England, and Le Verdon, France. Among the passengers were Fanny Ward, former actress; Arturo Toscanini, the conductor, and Lord Beaverbrook, British publisher, who assured reporters that he is here on personal business and not to "sell" the war to America.

Although the Manhattan's voyage was described as uneventful, it was asserted that stewards "nearly mutinied" at Southampton. Daniel Moriarity, who represented the stewards' union, said the trouble arose when the ship's employés were not allowed to go ashore to get gas masks.

After a protest to the British military commander, permission was granted. The stewards reported, however, that they were warned they would be interned if the ship docks in Britain again. Most of the stewards are German by birth.

PHYSICIAN CALLS IN 2 FRIENDS TO SEE HIM END LIFE WITH POISON

Dr. Robert L. Paxton, 38 years old, called in two friends last night to his office at 304 Canal street, Lemont, and then in their presence swallowed a quantity of poison. He died five minutes later.

The friends were Mr. and Mrs. John Steinke, 215 Custer street, Lemont. The young physician gave them no hint of his intention. He merely greeted them and took the poison. He then lay down on a couch. As soon as the Steinkes became aware he had poisoned himself they called a doctor, but Dr. Paxton was beyond aid.

Lemont police said Dr. Paxton left two notes ascribing domestic trouble as the motive for his act. In April, 1935, a daughter was born to Dr. and Mrs. Paxton at the Grant hospital. She weighed only 1 pound 10 ounces at birth, the smallest baby ever born at the hospital. The child grew to normal size later. The Paxton home is at 19 Eureka street, Lemont.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE.

Elmer Carlson, 33 years old, a fur coat cleaner, was found dead yesterday in the garage behind his home at 2545 Milwaukee avenue, lying near the exhaust pipe of his car. Police said he had died of carbon monoxide gas.

AFTER THE DIPLOMA

By CALEB

HE WAS a quiet, but cordially friendly, individual — this new Dean, addressing the rows on rows of earnest senior faces in the chapel dimness. He had been talking about the life and work they would soon encounter in the world outside. A humorous, rather generalized sort of talk . . . until he suddenly laid aside his notes, and glanced at the dial on his wrist.

"So far," he resumed, seriously, "I have been telling you the usual platitudes. Things you will quickly forget. Perhaps a quarter-hour after you have filed from this room, not a word will remain with you. But now I come to something simple; sincere; personal as your own thoughts and heartbeats. I would give much to have you remember this always.

"For four intensive years, you have been learning mostly from books—and in sheltered nooks. Out there, however, the pleasant pages of college knowledge, important as they are, can never greatly help you. Changes, and very swift ones, are obsoleting classroom formalism faster than the latter can conform to them. And the university of the universe, as I might call it, has another kind of curriculum, different from books, on meeting which will depend all your success! This curriculum is one of PEOPLE . . . and your instructors, severe, uncompromising fellows, are Life and Experience.

"Yes, the course is compulsory. You can flunk it, but you can't dodge it. And it is all based on one progress-principle that I consider the world's greatest. It governs every phase of your existence, and of mine. Shall I state it to you? Here it is: Like, if you would be liked; and be liked, if you would succeed.

"Adopt this simple law of Like, and I can predict a favorable future for all of you. More failures than statistics will ever show, however, follow the flouting of it. Getting ahead—long after your diploma is framed, closeted and forgotten—is first and finally this intricate art of getting along. Get along well with your fellows, and your career is fortified with every possibility for happiness. Get along ill—and all the innate talent and acquired learning in the world can't save you!"

The Dean sighed, and smiled. "This too, you will perhaps forget. But rest assured—sooner or later, Life and Experience will jog your elbow, and remind you! Ability, valuable ability, derived from books is already yours. But your success, later, rests entirely on your relations with people . . . and those in turn, on how well you have mastered this Law of Like."

REIGN OF TERROR IN PREWAR ARMS DEALS RECALLED

Nation Ravaged by Plotters in 1914-'16 Era.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The experience of the United States in manufacturing munitions for belligerents while attempting to maintain its own neutrality was recalled yesterday by an examination of newspaper files covering the period of the world war prior to the entrance of this country into the hostilities.

Frank Holt, as he appeared in 1915.

During that period of approximately twenty months there were scores of explosions in munition plants, incendiary fires were frequent, attempts to dynamite railroad trains and bridges were common, spy plots were directed at ships carrying war supplies, and there were some attempts at assassination. An effort to start a Mexican war was made.

Toll Never Computed.

As far as is known, there never has been an accurate, official counting up of the cost in lives and property.

In spite of the secrecy with which all of these forms of violence was surrounded, federal agents repeatedly traced crimes to representatives of belligerent nations. Official representatives of those nations were recalled upon demands from President Wilson. Some of the unofficial representatives were convicted and sent to prison.

The extreme nature of some of the disturbances was illustrated in the newspaper files by the actions of one man, Frank Holt, alias Erich Muenter, formerly a teacher in a Chicago private school. On July 2, 1915, he attempted to blow up the capitol building in Washington, D. C., and the following day tried to kill J. Pierpont Morgan in his home in Glen Cove, Long Island. He said his motive was to stop the exportation of munitions.

Bomb Placed in Office.

Holt, or Muenter, placed his Washington bomb in the reception room of Vice President Marshall, adjoining the senate chamber. The explosion occurred at 11:40 p. m., when that part of the building was unoccupied except for a guard, who was thrown off his chair. The damage was limited to walls, windows, and furniture.

When Holt went to the Morgan home he forced an entrance by pointing two revolvers at a butler. He found Morgan on the second floor and fired two shots at him, both of which struck his victim in the hip. The wounds were not serious.

Examination of the newspaper files was limited to crimes within the borders of the United States, all mention of violations of international law at sea or in other countries being ignored. Developments in the diplomatic situation which ended in war also were disregarded.

Disturbances Are Reviewed.

The files showed as strictly domestic disturbances due to the sale of munitions to belligerents the following events:

Aug. 29—Pompton, N. J., du Pont powder storehouse blown up; one killed.

1915.

Aug. 30—Baltimore, Md., E. J. Dodd shrapnel plant burned.

Aug. 30—Official letter from Constantin T. Dumba, ambassador of Austria-Hungary to United States, seized and disclosed he planned to "disorganize and hold up for months, if not entirely prevent, manufacture of munitions in Bethlehem, Pa., and middle west which, in opinion of German attaché, is of great importance and amply outweighs expenditure of money involved."

Oct. 12—Pompton, N. J., explosion in du Pont powder plant; seven injured.

Oct. 16—Kane, Pa., explosion in Aetna powder mills; three Germans arrested.

Nov. 10—South Bethlehem, Pa., machine shop of Bethlehem Steel company burned; loss, $5,000,000.

Nov. 12—Trenton, N. J., munitions plant of Roebling & Sons destroyed by incendiary fire; loss, $1,500,000.

Dec. 1—Wilmington, Del., explosion in du Pont powder mills; 31 killed.

Dec. 3—United States asked Germany to recall Capt. Boy-Ed, military attaché, and Capt. von Papen for "improper activities in military and naval matters."

Dec. 10—Hopewell, Pa., entire town destroyed and du Pont powder plant burned with loss of $2,000,000.

Feb. 15—Brooklyn, N. Y., two British ships burned at docks; loss, $1,000,000.

March 31—Horst von der Goltz disclosed plot to invade Canada, blow up Welland canal and admitted enlisting Germans in Baltimore.

April 19—Government seized papers of Wolf von Igel, former secretary to Capt. von Papen, in New York "advertising office." State department later said they disclosed maintenance of a spy system, financing a bureau to stir up labor troubles in munitions plants, "the bomb industry and other related activities," financing of propaganda and subornation of American writers and lecturers.

July 30—Black Tom, N. J., ammunition trains blown up; four killed; loss, $45,000,000.

Jan. 11—Franz Bopp, German consul-general in San Francisco, and Baron George W. von Brincken convicted of conspiracy to injure American shipping, railroad trains, and bridges and munitions plants and sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

Jan. 12—Kingsland, N. J., munitions plant of Canadian Car and Foundry company destroyed by explosion; loss, $16,000,000; Haskell, N. J., explosion in du Pont powder plant blows up 400,000 pounds of powder, shaking four states.

Feb. 21—United States published note from German Foreign Secretary Zimmermann proposing alliance with Mexico for which Mexico would be paid by annexation of southwestern American states; New Britain, Conn., set afire by incendiary bombs in 20 places; loss, $300,000.

March 22—Capt. Franz von Rintelen of German navy and two others convicted in New York of conspiracy to interfere with shipment of munitions.

April 2—Six Germans convicted in New York of conspiracy to destroy munitions ships by bombs; attempt made to burn naval training station at Great Lakes, Ill.

On April 2, 1917, congress met in special session. On April 4 the senate passed the war resolution. The house passed the resolution April 6, and it was signed the same day by President Wilson. The formal declaration of war against Germany was issued immediately.

MAIL TO FRANCE RUNS THREE WEEKS BEHIND; EXPECT IMPROVEMENT

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 30.—The public on both sides of the Atlantic has been puzzled and worried by the small amount of mail exchanged between France and America since the end of August. Letters mailed through official channels are running three weeks behind schedule.

Inquiry in official circles elicited the following explanation:

"Among the causes of mail delays one is the war and its disturbing consequences. Mobilization reduced postal employés. The lack of employés increased the mountains of letters. Few boats have sailed and only a small proportion of letters reached them. Mail service in the future is expected to improve."

OFFICERS URGING LARGER GUN FOR AERIAL DEFENSE

Present Weapons Said to Be Inadequate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Grave questions of the soundness of the present anti-aircraft defenses of the nation have been raised within the army, it was learned today.

In the defense expansion program the army is acquiring 3 inch anti-aircraft guns of recent design as its principal ground offensive weapon against enemy aircraft. The army has but 24 of the new weapons on hand but has ordered 338.

The other anti-aircraft weapons are the .50 caliber machine gun and the 37 mm. or 1 pound anti-aircraft gun. The army has but one of the latter and has ordered more than 50.

Percentage of Hits Low.

Many officers feel that this equipment is not sufficiently potent. They argue that the 3 inch gun is inadequate because its percentage of hits is too low. They estimate that its hit percentage is between 3 and 4 per cent at best.

The 37 mm. gun is too small, the officers feel, and too costly a weapon for its only sound purpose—to ward off ground straffing planes. As for the value of anti-aircraft machine guns, these officers hold it was demonstrated in Poland these weapons cannot stop planes. The Polish anti-aircraft defenses consisted almost entirely of machine guns.

The officers who hold the present air defense plans to be unsound, insist that the army should adopt a universal service 105 mm. gun, which can make such a heavy air barrage at varying altitudes that an enemy plane could not fly through it.

Navy Has 5 Inch Gun.

The navy has an all-purpose 5 inch gun for this purpose. The gun was adopted because it has a wider area of destruction and a greater range than weapons of smaller caliber.

Officers supporting the present plan insist that its foes lose sight of the fact that the army possesses one of the greatest developments in modern anti-aircraft defense in its airplane detector. The instrument is the most closely guarded military secret of the day.

So much secrecy has been thrown about the instrument that only two members of congress have been permitted to see it—one of these is now dead—and only a handful of the army's high command know the secret of its operation.

Also Effective at Night.

According to the best information available, the device picks up the faint electrical discharges of an approaching enemy plane or employs infra-red rays to do the spotting. Whatever the method, the device detects the presence of enemy planes long before such instruments as sound detectors or telescopes and is effective by night as well as day.

The detector sends impulses to a director, a computating machine which sets by electricity a battery of four guns on the enemy plane. It sets the guns for direction, altitude, rate of speed, and sets the fuses to fire at the right time and height. Human error is eliminated.

Those who would revamp the army anti-aircraft defense argue that the existence of these aids does not silence their protest but gives it added strength because such aids would be more effective with heavier caliber anti-aircraft guns.

ARSENAL TAKING PRIVATE BIDS ON MANY NEW TANKS

Rock Island, Ill., Sept. 30 [Special]. —Bids were received at the Rock Island arsenal yesterday from private industrial firms on the manufacture of light army tanks, it was learned today from army ordnance officers in Washington, D. C.

The Estonian foreign minister to oscow rushed home after Russia as reported to have made demands his country. Russia greeted trade elegations from Turkey and other lack sea and Baltic states. der cover of a heavy artillery barrage, French infantry was said to have struck at Germany's main Siegfried line. German big guns replied with blasting fire. The French and German air forces clashed.

Warsaw faced a last ditch defense.

Germany's foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, prepared to fly to Moscow to arrange a joint diplomatic action which the Nazis and the communists hoped would persuade England and France to come to terms. Moscow alleged she was menaced by Estonia.

Winston Churchill, British first lord of the admiralty, announced that the U-boat menace had been checked.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 27.

Warsaw, laid waste by bomb, shell, and fire, from a 20 day German siege, surrendered unconditionally. The peninsula of Hela and the fortress of Modlin were the only islands of Polish resistance.

Conflicting reports were given on a North sea fight between British war ships and Nazi bombers; Germany claimed to have destroyed another British air craft carrier and to have damaged two ships without loss to her airforce; England claimed no ship was hit, but that the Nazis lost two planes. England placed a 35 per cent war levy on incomes.

An Associated Press correspondent, Louis Lochner, toured a long stretch of the Siegried line and visited Saarbruecken in the Saar valley. He reported some artillery fire and a brief fight between a French plane and five German planes. Other than that the front was quiet. Lochner was told that 200 cars of materials and machinery were being removed from Saarbruecken daily. Both German troops and civilians seemed to have absolute faith in the Siegfried wall.

The American Legion, in convention in Chicago, demanded that congress remain in session during Europe's crisis to keep the country out of war.

THURSDAY, Sept. 28.

Germany and Russia announced a joint venture to bring the empires to peace with Germany; if this is unsuccessful, the Reds and Nazis asserted, responsibility for continuing the war will rest with England and France. Russia also announced a 10 year nonaggression pact with Estonia, which yielded fortification rights on two strategic islands and a port in the north Baltic sea to Moscow.

Louis Lochner, in a further tour of the German west front, stood on the Rhine bank and watched French soldiers fishing, swimming, and sunning themselves. Lochner and other newspapermen were accompanied by high German officers, all of whom were within easy range of French snipers. There were no shots. Jests, Lochner was told, were called back and forth between poilus and Nazi soldiers. The newsmen were shown a huge cannon, said to be the most powerful in existence, which German officers said would not be used unless French or British bombarded German towns.

The amendment for repeal of the arms embargo in the United States went to the senate floor for debate.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 29.

The British, viewing the German-Russian pact to split Poland, said they would have nothing to do with Berlin and Moscow on any peace offers. They charged that the new agreement, accompanied by a peace gesture backed by an implied threat of joint action if Britain and France do not accept German and soviet terms, was intended to frighten them into ending the war. The French adopted a similar stand.

A garrison of 2,000 Polish troops, located on the tip of the Hela peninsula at the entrance to the Bay of Danzig, constituted the last body of organized resistance against the German conquest of Poland. The Germans said they would seek to starve them out.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

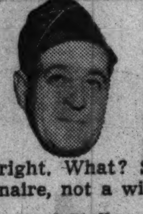
Do you agree with Senator Borah that there is "something phony" about the European war?

Where Answered.

In the Union station.

The Answers.

Albert Mondello, Downers Grove, presser in dress factory—He's right. There's something queer about the whole business. Looks like another, but secret, Munich, with Poland the victim. It wouldn't surprise me if the diplomats of England, France, Germany, and Russia have everything fixed.



Knute Meland, Lake Mills, Ia., restaurateur—It's my opinion Borah's wrong on his arms embargo stand. I can't see why we shouldn't sell to any one. But there's some monkey business going on behind the scenes, all right. What? Say, I'm only a Legionnaire, not a wizard.

Paul Stolberg, Lenexa, Kas., real estate dealer—It's too deep for me. It does seem obvious, though, why the armies on the western front should delay, the machinery of war being what it is today. Probably both sides are hoping for a peaceful settlement, even at this late date.

Henry Erea, Valparaiso, Ind., red cap—My guess would be that it's a sham battle for the benefit of the public, and that it will all be patched up in a couple of months. Of course, we know little of the military problems involved. It's possible England and France are waiting till a break comes.

Ted Sidlow, Downers Grove, bookkeeper—No, I think Borah is off key with his suspicion. England and France probably are sincere enough in their purpose. It may be that it would be suicidal to plunge into action right now. I'd say it's just a matter of time.

CREDIT DISPUTE BRINGS SPLIT IN EMBARGO FIGHT

Some Advocates of Repeal Balk on Question.

which senate debate will begin Monday, was the subject of a radio debate tonight between Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] and Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.].

Minton asserted that the sale of munitions never got any nation into war and then proceeded to argue that repeal of the arms embargo is necessary to equalize the balance of Germany's land power and the British and French sea power.

"If France and England have an advantage after repeal of the embargo, this is an advantage only because for more than a century they have built navies capable of controlling the seas," Minton said.

"If we keep the embargo on, we are, in effect, giving Hitler a navy big enough to keep England and France from our shores. Hitler has the advantage of buying from those nations whose geography permits of such intercourse. His army takes care of that. Can Britain and France object to that? Obviously, no. Then what objection can Hitler have to Britain and France having access to our shores. Their navies assure that."

Nye Strikes at Repeal.

"But it is said that to change the law now would be unneutral. We are changing our own law. No nation can object to that, as long as we do not discriminate."

Senator Nye declared that repeal of the arms embargo now would be the first step toward eventual involvement of the United States in the European war.

"England and France wish the United States to repeal the arms embargo," he said. "Why are they so eager to see the arms embargo repealed? True, they want our munitions plant capacity devoted to their needs. But more than that—and the real crux of the matter—their world war experience with us has taught them to know that if the United States caves in on one really important issue, the road to war for us will then easily be laid out.

"If we give up the arms embargo now, they know they can accomplish easy change of the other provisions of law intended to help keep us out of other people's wars. They know that once this first step is taken it will be comparatively easy to get rid of any cash and carry requirements, and of the Johnson act forbidding loans to nations that have forgotten to pay us what they owe us from the last war."

BIGGER AIR FORCE ESSENTIAL, SAYS GENERAL EMMONS

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 30 (AP).—Strengthening America's strategic air bases and increasing and improving our military and naval air forces was pronounced essential to this country's security in a troubled world by Maj. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, Langley field, Virginia, commander of the general headquarters air force.

Gen. Emmons came here today in a four engined army bomber to attend the dedication of a new $250,000 air terminal building at the Kansas City airport and he was principal speaker at an aviation dinner tonight.

ST. CHARLES BOY HELD TO JURY IN FARMER SLAYING

The hearing was held by Justice of the Peace Grant Nolan in Woodstock. Dain is 14 years old. He had been placed on Groth's farm near Marengo by the school. Groth, who was 34 years old and the father of three small children, was killed by Dain in a fit of anger.

SUDDEN STRIKE CALLED BY CIO ON NASH PLANT

Negotiations Halted by Walkout Vote.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 30 [Special].—A sudden strike call was voted by members of the United Automobile Workers of America [C. I. O. branch] in the course of negotiations going on since Tuesday morning with officials of the Nash Motors plant here.

Surprise over the strike, which is to begin at noon tomorrow, was expressed by company officers, who said the negotiations had been proceeding with apparent satisfaction to both sides and that they had assumed they would be continued.

"There was absolutely no reason for calling the strike," said R. A. Devlieg, general works manager of the Nash Motors division of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation.

Labor Peace Sought.

"Management officials and leaders of the Kenosha local, No. 72, of the U. A. W. A., have been negotiating on a written contract which, if adopted, would have assured employment uninterrupted by labor difficulties during the remainder of the 1940 model year.

"At 11 o'clock last night the contract was about two-thirds complete, with management and union committeemen fairly agreed on the points covered. When last night's session ended, neither the management nor the union leaders indicated that the negotiations would be terminated. We were surprised when we learned that a strike had been voted at the recommendation of our workers' leaders."

In reply to this statement, union spokesmen asserted that a week ago the union decided that unless every one of its demands were granted, a strike would be voted upon today. Since the demands have not been granted in full, it was said, the strike vote was taken.

Claim 71 to 1 Majority.

It was announced that 2,500 of the 3,100 members of the union cast votes, and that the poll was 71 to 1 in favor of the walkout.

One of the points at issue was the minimum hourly wage scale which the company said was one of the points being negotiated. The union demanded a minimum of 75 cents per hour, and the company already had offered an increase of 5 cents per hour over the present minimum wage of 62½ cents.

Another union demand was for a minimum guarantee of 24 hours of work for each employé each week of the year except that time during which he might be on paid vacation. And to this demand the company had agreed. It would have meant arranging the company's production schedules so there would be no periods during the year, as there have been traditionally in the automobile industry, in which the plants would close down preparatory to bringing out new models.

The union had demanded a week's vacation with pay for each employé, and asked that other minor adjustments be made. These points were under negotiation.

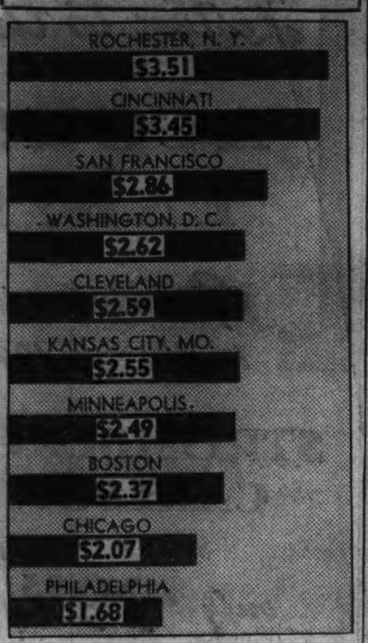
The C. I. O. union at the Seaman body plant in Milwaukee, a Nash unit, announced a week ago that it would support the Kenosha union and would join in a strike. The Milwaukee plant has 2,800 employés.

Just a year ago the Nash company and the C. I. O. were involved in a dispute over the company's decision to close its Racine plant and move the machinery to Kenosha. This decision followed a number of labor disputes. The union picketed the plant to prevent removal of the equipment, but finally the matter was adjusted when the company agreed to absorb the Racine workers into the Kenosha plant as rapidly as possible.

An echo of this was heard in Racine this week, when it was found that the assessed valuation of real and personal property in the city had declined $3,102,625, due largely to removal of the Nash company's activities.

Kenosha lost an industrial plant in the spring of 1938 when the Allen-A company closed its Kenosha hosiery plant, which had had labor troubles for years, and transferred its activities to Bennington, Vt. Economic conditions were given as the cause of the transfer.

Gifts for Charity



Comparison of per capita contributions in 1938 to community funds in ten major American cities.

The Community Fund of Chicago must supply 10 per cent more than the total of last year's subscriptions, those directing the 1939 campaign estimate, if social and health agencies supported by the fund are to continue their services at the present volume. A goal of $3,611,000 has been set.

Representatives of most of the 60 divisions of industry met yesterday with Mark A. Brown, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank and chairman of the industrial group organized for the campaign. The necessary increase was called to their attention in an official bulletin, which carried the explanation, "We already are beginning to feel the effects of the European war on our economic life through the gradual but insistent increase in the price of commodities. Our social agencies cannot avoid meeting these increased prices."

Chicago stands ninth in a comparison of ten typical cities in the average per capita gift to the Community Fund. Last year the average subscription here was $2.07. Other cities scheduling their per capita gifts were: Rochester, N. Y., $3.51; Cincinnati, O., $3.45; San Francisco, Cal., $2.86; Washington, D. C., $2.62; Cleveland, O., $2.59; Kansas City, Mo., $2.55; Minneapolis, Minn., $2.49; Boston, Mass., $2.37; Philadelphia, Pa., $1.68.

JUDGE RECALLS HOLDUP; DEALS A STIFF SENTENCE

Two bandits sprang into Judge Joseph B. Hermes' car at 47th street and Ashland avenue on July 20. They held the judge prisoner three hours, robbed him of $54, and then kicked him out of the car. Yesterday George Gregus of 2451 46th street faced the judge in Municipal court on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Gregus, who is 20 years old, was arrested at the corner where the judge met the bandits.

"It was a couple of young hoodlums like you who held me up," the judge told him. "I suppose if I had come along while you were waiting there, I'd have been the victim of a second robbery." He imposed the maximum punishment on Gregus, a year in the Bridewell, and fined him $300.

BANDITS RAID TAVERN.

Three bandits invaded Sophie Rosinski's tavern at 700 North Albany avenue early yesterday. They took 12 bottles of whisky, four cartons of cigarets, and $60.

. . . .WHAT DO YOU GET FOR Your Money?

GRAND PIANOS by Kimball are perhaps known to more artists and endorsed by more experts than any other make. $425 to $2350

There is the biggest question right now, isn't it?

Necessity or "luxury"—immediate needs or thinking of the future. And we take it for granted that you know what you want for your money.

As to pianos, let us look at them from an angle you may not have considered:

Do you know that right now, as you read these lines, you've got the biggest dollar opportunity you've faced in years? You have.

Entirely aside from all-important facts of the enjoyment latent in a fine piano—entirely ignoring its cultural value in the home—

Your carefully poised dollars will never again have such a condition-created opportunity to do double duty. Here's why.

We have been all through the economic stresses and recoveries of the last eighty-two years. This is not the first time we have had to fit the prices of Kimball Pianos to the times—it is the first time we have been able to offer almost two hundred cents worth of piano for one dollar That's provable history. Take our word for it while Kimball prices are still very, very low. Thinking, then, of this week only—come to our showrooms any day or evening—and make us prove to you that the particular Kimball that fits your pocketbook is the outstanding Tone, Style and Value piano in the history of the industry.

TAFT HAMMERS AT NEW DEAL'S ECONOMIC PLAN

Capehart Hits Roosevelt's Neutrality Stand.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Vienna, Ill., Sept. 30.—Both approval and criticism of President Roosevelt's neutrality moves were voiced today by two prominent G. O. P. speakers before the four state Republican rally here.

Robert A. Taft [top] and H. E. Capehart.

Senator Robert A. Taft [R. Ohio], an announced aspirant for the presidential nomination next year, and a supporter of repeal of the arms embargo, hammered away at the New Deal's domestic acts, but declared that Mr. Roosevelt's present recommendations are entirely consistent with neutrality and increase the chance of our keeping out of war."

It is important, the senator added, "that the Republican party, if it is to maintain its position of authority with the people, shall not cry wolf until there is a wolf."

But, Senator Taft warned, "if the people of this country wish to remain in peace after 1940, they had better trust the administration of their foreign policy to the Republicans. The welfare of this country and its people depend on keeping out of the European war. On that issue the Republicans occupy the strong position. They are the peace party."

Capehart on Opposite Side.

Another position was taken by the second headline speaker, Homer E. Capehart of Washington, Ind., who brought 25,000 Republicans to his farm last fall for a free chicken dinner and to hear a number of leading G. O. P. orators.

"I cannot fully trust a president," Capehart told the crowd today, "who talks of war in April and peace in September. I cannot fully trust a President who advocates neutrality, but tells you that you do not need to be neutral in thought. I have been taught to believe the words of a man of peace who spoke to you 2,000 years ago and said: 'As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he.'

"I hold that divine dictum to be profoundly true. I believe that what we think will do more to keep us out of war than any laws we may erase from, or write on the statute books."

Come from Four States.

The crowd was composed of a large delegation from Illinois, including most of the candidates for state offices, and smaller groups from Indiana, Kentucky, and Missouri. A. K. Stiles, Illinois state chairman, presided, and a special introduction was reserved for the originator of the rally, Dr. Lewis L. Jackson of Vienna, Johnson county chairman. The rally was held in the Johnson county fair grounds.

Both Senator Taft and Capehart assailed the New Deal's performance at home. Taft asserted that the people would demand a change in national policy next year, and made the following indictment:

"After six and one-half years of New Deal experimentation, after demanding and securing more arbitrary power than any government has ever enjoyed, the New Deal has failed in its declared purposes.

Why Times Are Hard.

"It promised prosperity and employment. More than ten million men are still unemployed. The national income, which approximated 80 billion dollars in 1928, is still only 65 billion, although there are ten million more people among whom to divide this reduced income. No wonder times are hard.

"It promised higher prices for the farmer, and, still until the war boom, prices of farm products were generally lower than they were six years ago, in September, 1933, before any of the farm control measures were adopted.

"Instead of curing our problems, the New Deal has produced grave threats against the freedom and stability of our people. In its craving for power to carry out its planned economy, it has tried to subject the courts and the congress to the arbitrary powers of the President."

On the neutrality issue, Senator Taft said he believed that adoption of the cash and carry system was more likely to keep America out of war than any other proposal which had been made.

"We became involved in the world war because the American people were outraged at the sinking of American ships and the drowning of Amercan citizens," he added. "Some people seem to think that the arms embargo will prevent the repetition of such incidents, but they do not seem to realize that under the present law everything except the very limited classification 'arms, ammunition, and implements of war' may be shipped to Europe.

"Many do not realize that many things, including castings, steel and machine tools with which to make guns, and alcohol, cotton and cellulose with which to make ammunition are being shipped to Europe in American ships. In fact, even if the arms embargo is repealed, arms, ammunition and implements of war would never be more than a small proportion of total shipments.

The New Deal was charged with expelling "both the living and the dead from their peaceful abodes" in a speech by former Judge George W. Dowell of Du Quoin.

Dowell condemned the Crab Orchard Lake federal project near Carbondale, which critics call "Kent Keller's frog pond," after one of its most persistent advocates, Congressman Kent E. Keller [D., Ava].

"Crab Orchard," Dowell declared, "presents a picture of unparalleled malicious devastation. Eight hundred homes, 12 churches, and 10 schools are to be leveled to the ground to clear the bed of a shallow, worthless lake.

"Three thousand residents of the valley will be evicted from their homes. Two thousand graves in 22 cemeteries will be removed or flooded with the putrid waters of a stagnant inland lake, a body of water which is not even designed or intended to serve any useful purpose other than a fishing pond."

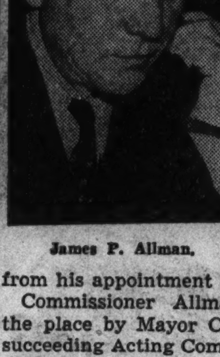
ALLMAN TOILS ON 8TH ANNIVERSARY AS POLICE HEAD

Police Commissioner James P. Allman yesterday observed his eighth anniversary in the office by working as usual. No other head of the Chicago police force has held the post for so long. The previous record was held by Capt. Francis O'Neill, who served four years two months and twenty-five days from his appointment in 1901.



James P. Allman.

Commissioner Allman was given the place by Mayor Cermak in 1931, succeeding Acting Commissioner John H. Alcock. He was reappointed by Mayor Kelly. He is 63 years old. Under the compulsory retirement law he is not eligible to serve in his old rank of captain, which he gave up voluntarily in 1938. As commissioner he has no civil service status and is not subject to the age limitation.

URGES CAMPAIGN TO TIDY UP CITY'S LITTERED ALLEYS

Hewitt Finds 96,129 More Garbage Cans Needed.

There are 421,470 buildings in Chicago from which the city is required by ordinance to collect refuse. Of that number 96,129—more than a fifth—have no receptacles for garbage or other refuse, according to a survey made by P. J. Donovan, acting superintendent of streets.

This means, according to Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, that the city's alleys are littered with refuse.

Proposes Enforcement Drive.

To correct this condition Hewitt proposed to Donovan yesterday, at the suggestion of Mayor Kelly, that the street bureau inagurate a campaign with civic and business organizations to enforce the law requiring householders to provide refuse receptacles.

The city collected 2,073,080 cubic yards of refuse during the first eight months of this year, compared with 1,818,704 last year, and 1938 collections were considerably better than in previous years, Hewitt said.

"Yet there are sundry complaints about garbage littering the alleys," he continued. "I have investigated a number of these. In each instance the householder had not provided a garbage can. And yet the first requisite of a clean alley is a garbage can and a refuse can for each householder, with a close-fitting metal cover for each, as required by the city ordinance."

Calls for Suggestions.

Hewitt asked Donovan to suggest methods to be followed to prevail on householders to provide proper garbage cans. He recalled how the educational campaigns of some civic organizations and social settlements improved conditions last year.

He concluded, "the ordinances contemplate the summoning of delinquents into court, but comparatively few are penalized."

City Lamplighter Burned by Exploding Blow Torch

James Passerello, 68 years old, a veteran city lamplighter, was severely burned last night while lighting a gas lamp at 63d place and Narragansett avenue. Police said a naphtha blow torch exploded in his hands, burning him about the face and body. Passersby took him to his home at 6123 South McVicker avenue. He was later removed to the Holy Cross hospital. Passerello has been a lamplighter for 39 years.

SEASON'S FIRST FROST ON WAY TO THE SUBURBS

Chilly October in Prospect After Hot September.

The season's first frost was on the way last night, according to the weatherman, to ring out one of the most unusual Septembers in the Chicago area's weather history and introduce what may be a chilly October.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel said a northeast wind would bring frost to the suburbs. He expected that Chicago, with temperatures around 40 degrees, would not be affected, and for today predicted fair and warmer weather. Slight traces of frost were noticeable in the south end of the county early today, but not reported elsewhere.

Last month was one of the warmest and dryest on record, leaving many broken records and near records in its wake.

All-Time High Recorded.

An all-time high temperature for September was established Sept. 7, when the mercury reached 100 degrees. This also was the high mark for the summer. The previous September high was 98, recorded in 1889. Sept. 12 through 15, when the maximum temperatures ranged from 94 to 99 degrees, was the warmest four day period of any September in history. Record maximum temperatures for individual days occurred seven times during the month.

The average daily temperature was 70.1 degrees, 4.9 degrees above normal. The month was the third warmest September since 1871, when the government began keeping weather records here. The warmest September was in 1881, when the average temperature was 70.8. The coolest day last month was the 26th, when the mercury dropped to 46 degrees, Donnel said.

Only .49 of an inch of rain fell last month, a record for dryness which has been eclipsed only once before. The least amount of rain during a September was .32 of an inch in 1891. Normal for the month is 3.14 inches.

A Real Dry Spell.

Weather bureau figures show only .02 of an inch of rainfall in the 33 days from Aug. 24 through Sept. 25. This is the dryest dry spell on record in Chicago during the growing season. The longest of all dry spells was 37 days—Jan. 7 through Feb. 12, 1919—when there was .02 of an inch of precipitation.

Farmers in the Chicago area said the rain Thursday night and early Friday was of little real benefit, although it freshened pastures somewhat and softened fields for the sowing of winter wheat.

Chicagoans got more than their usual allotment of sunshine in September. The sun shown 81 per cent of the time during the daylight hours. The normal is 64 per cent. Record sunshine for September was 86 per cent in 1895.

WOODED TRACT IN INDIANA TO BE LINCOLN SHRINE

Troy, Ind., Sept. 30 (AP).—A living shrine to Abraham Lincoln will be dedicated tomorrow in this quiet southern Indiana community which knew him as a tall youth of 17 learning early lessons of courage.

Here on the banks of deep, swift Anderson creek, which intercepts the course of the Ohio river, the Indiana highway commission has acquired three wooded acres to mark the site of Lincoln's operations as a ferryman for nine months in 1825-'26.

The shrine is to be called "Lincoln Ferry park" and among its tall trees soon will stand a life-size statue of the civil war president. History has it that Lincoln earned his first dollar by sculling two men and their baggage into the Ohio river at this point to catch a steamer. Many years later he told a war harassed cabinet the incident made him "a more hopeful and thoughtful boy."

Shot 19 Years Ago; Sneeze Jars Bullet from Nostril

West Frankfort, Ill., Sept. 30 (AP).—When William Darnell was shot accidentally 19 years ago, the bullet lodged in his head. It never bothered him so he let well enough alone. Yesterday he sneezed and the bullet dropped from his nostril.

Meet After 41 Years

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

George Pope and his sister, Mrs. Ellen Mitchelmort.

George Pope, of 6229 South Mozart street, and his sister, Mrs. Ellen Mitchelmort of Saskatchewan, Canada, were reunited yesterday after a separation of 41 years.

Their reunion, however, was of a miraculous nature, for Mrs. Mitchelmort was one of the passengers on the torpedoed British liner Athenia. When she finally obtained a new passage to North America on the Duchess of York, which arrived at Montreal Sept. 22, the destroyers convoying the liner sighted and [she thinks] sank a German submarine.

The brother and sister parted 41 years ago in England. A year ago Mrs. Mitchelmort went back from Canada to England, saw her relatives there, and prepared to visit her brother. Then the Athenia was torpedoed.

"When we, some of the others and I, finally got a ship back," she said, "we were so nervous we didn't take our clothes off the whole trip over. Many didn't go to their berths at all."

DUST FROM CITY WATER PROJECT STIRS NEW ROW

Residents along South Shore drive and the lake front between 75th and 79th streets complained yesterday that their protests against the clouds of black dust caused by work on the south side filtration plant have gone unheeded. They said a high northeast wind Friday night and yesterday morning brought much of the dirt into their homes.

Complaints were made last week to the board of health, the department of public works, the park district, and the United States public health service. Contractors building the $21,000,000 filtration plant promised to correct the condition by wetting the powdered slag and sand before it is dumped from freight cars. The material is being used for a filling. The work is expected to take a year.

Residents also found that water from the faucets in their homes contained sand and dirt. This results, it was said, because the wind stirs up the bottom of the lake near the cribs. The filtration plant will correct this condition.

WHAT'S UP NOW?

Robert Lansing, secretary of state when America went into the world war, observed in his autobiography that when the United States began to raise a great army the Japanese in Washington, including the ambassador and the special envoy who came over, exhibited unusual curiosity. They could understand the American military activity, both army and navy, in only one way. They had only one explanation for it and that was that the United States intended to take advantage of the war in Europe to accomplish some tremendous stroke in the far Pacific.

The Japanese were worried because they could not be reassured that America was not about to descend upon the far east with the greatest fleet and the greatest army it had ever raised. When they were told that this army was going to France they were still more puzzled. They couldn't understand why a nation situated as the United States would undertake war on so great a scale in Europe, where it had nothing whatever to gain and where it would receive no compensation for its expenditure of men and money. They could understand an imperialistic war to get something in Asia but they thought Americans were a strange lot of people to raise an army of 4 or 6 million men with the idea that they were making the world safe for democracy. This was too much for the Japanese comprehension.

Japan was in the war and it thought it knew why people went to war. It had confined itself to the immediate objective of throwing the Germans out of Shantung and had taken possession. It had begun its conquest of China and was satisfied to pursue its aims, presenting them in the demands which later the United States and the victorious allies compelled the Tokio government to abandon for the time being. Japan didn't send an army to Europe and its naval operations were of a minor character within its own or adjacent waters. Although it did not get Shantung at the time, it picked up about all the German islands north of the equator and for a very small contribution received a very great reward. For a very great contribution the United States was tendered only the default on the war and postwar debts. Democracy was not saved and the world wasn't noticeably bettered even before it became atrociously worse.

Again the Japanese are wondering what crazy policy is affecting the Americans. Japan's rulers have, of course, our enterprise of 1917 and 1918 to study. They may think that even the United States can learn a lesson and that if it is up to something now it is not the same old adventure in Europe. They may admit the possibility that those Americans will do it twice but they have more reason now to be suspicious than they had in 1917 when Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lansing were as guileless as could be regarding the Pacific, but were out of hand regarding the war in Europe.

Now the Japanese have some specific acts of the American government to guide their thinking. They know more than we do about the activities in our frontier post of Hawaii which is being heavily reinforced. They know more than we do about the flurry of activity in the Philippines to which a squadron of bombers and six submarines have been sent to strengthen our forces in Asiatic waters. They know, as we know, that the American government tried to get an appropriation to put a naval air base on Guam, very close to their shores. They know that the commercial treaty has been denounced and that action may be taken against them in January which would cut off their trade with America, their best customer for their principal export.

These are symptoms and portents more disturbing to the Japanese than to Americans because the Japanese are more suspicious. They undoubtedly see more and they examine things more carefully than Americans are doing. We do not know what's up and they probably suspect the worst. We couldn't say they're not using their heads this time. We are not sure that our government is. There is ample reason to fear that Mr. Roosevelt has agreed to protect British and French interests in China to enable the allies to concentrate all their strength in Europe. Congress owes it to the country to find out what we are doing in the far east—and why.

WRONG KIND OF PAMPHLETS?

Miss Laura Ingalls, aviatrix, flew over Washington the other day and dropped pamphlets addressed to the members of congress. Some of them drifted on the wind down to the grounds of the White House.

When she landed Miss Ingalls was charged with violating two sections of the civil air regulations, and ordered to show cause why her pilot's license should not be revoked. It cannot be established that her flight did any harm or endangered any lives but on the facts she appears guilty of a technical violation.

The pamphlets urged congress to remain in session throughout the present war crisis, and to avoid hasty action in granting the President's appeal for repeal of the arms embargo. Would the federal aviation burocrats have taken any action if the wind tossed pamphlets had urged congress to repeal the embargo and hurry home?

KEEP CONGRESS IN SESSION.

One of the more important resolutions passed at the convention of the American Legion demanded that congress remain in session. This is sound advice. It is to be hoped that congress will follow it.

The members of the Legion are a complete cross section of American citizenship. The draft assured that they were so when they went to war. Aside from the fact that they know best what war means and therefore have the best reason to keep America out of war, they are representative of middle-aged Americans. Their desire that congress remain in Washington has been voiced by many other sober, responsible people.

There is only one reason for this overwhelming demand throughout the country, as voiced by the Legion and others, that congress remain in session. That is distrust of President Roosevelt and recognition that only congress can check his actions.

There is ample reason for this suspicion of the President, based on his own words and actions. He talks of submarines off our coast. He declares emergencies when none exist. He greatly strengthens our military and naval forces in the western Pacific.

Mr. Roosevelt has said in so many words that he is not neutral in thought. His martial words two years ago at the Outer drive bridge have not been forgotten, nor have the fulminations of Secretary Ickes and the enthusiams of Ambassador Bullitt.

Mr. Roosevelt and his followers insist that the repeal of the arms embargo will not lead us into war, but their protestations lack conviction as well as logic. What they say now, in view of what they have said before, sounds too much like lip service to the determination of the people of this country to remain out of war.

These words and these acts give every ground for suspicion that the administration may be planning military adventures. There are other and fundamental grounds for that suspicion. Of all the people in the United States the only ones who could conceivably profit from a war are Mr. Roosevelt and his New Deal followers.

After seven years, their domestic program is an abject failure. The AAA is a colossal flop. Its checks no longer can buy the farm vote. We are still in a depression. We still have more than 10,000,000 unemployed. Our debt is higher than ever before, in spite of the heaviest peacetime taxes in history. The New Deal is on the run at every point, and the only thing that can distract the nation's attention is a foreign war.

Mr. Roosevelt has attempted to impose a dictatorship on this country under the name of a planned society. He has won minor engagements, but his major attempts have been repulsed, first by the Supreme court and then, following the 1938 elections, by congress. The dictatorial powers that the planners have been refused in times of peace would be granted in time of war.

Mr. Roosevelt is in charge of the foreign relations of the nation. Only congress can prevent his taking steps in the conduct of those relations that might lead us along the road to war. The people have a right to know what is going on in Washington. They won't know unless congress is vigilant, and congress cannot be vigilant if it is not in session.

PAPER DIVISIONS OR REAL DIVISIONS.

The war department has announced that five regular army divisions are to be streamlined—transformed into the new organization with reduced personnel, but superior mobility and striking power.

If this is a stepping stone toward the creation of a field army, which army leaders and other defense experts say is essential to our national defense, it is a good step. But if it is offered as a sop to the demands for adequate defense, it is worthless.

The war department says that the five divisions are to be molded into a field army. It has not been indicated, however, that the organizations will be held together, drilled, and trained as a unit. That is essential. Any other scheme gives merely a paper organization, and we already have too many blueprints and not enough men and guns in our first line of defense.

Neither is there any assurance that the guns and equipment necessary to equip five streamlined divisions will be forthcoming within any reasonable time. Even on a peace basis, the five divisions will contain some 25,000 infantrymen. More than a year after production was started, we still have less than half that many of the new Garand rifle with which they will be armed—on paper. Each division will have a regiment of artillery equipped with 105 or 155 millimeter howitzers. There are just two 105s in the country. Other shortages are equally grievous.

The whole scheme of reducing personnel under the so-called streamlining plan depends on equipping the division with modern weapons to compensate for reduced numbers by superior fire power. A streamlined division sent to battle with outmoded Springfield rifles and world war 75 millimeter field guns would be a military joke, far inferior to the existing division.

So long as our own army remains in this disgraceful state of unpreparedness, talk of opening the plants of American industry to munitions orders from Europe is beside the point. American industry's first duty is to the American army. That is the simple law of self-preservation.

It should not be necessary to add that the first duty of the national administration is also to safeguard American defense, but that fact seems to have been lost sight of in some quarters at Washington.

HE SPOKE BEFORE HE DIED.

[Petersburg (Neb.) Index.]

The plan proposed is called "cash and carry." But if France and England could not pay their war debts to America when they were financially sound of course they cannot now, when on the brink of bankruptcy following their reckless armament expenditures.

Political financiers have many tricks for the gullible public and in scarcely any time the "cash and carry" plan would become the credit and carry plan, the United States holding the sack and then sending American boys across to save the countries owing the money.

With the general poverty of America so heavy upon us, caused in part by the repudiation of French and English war debts and with the sure knowledge of a Europe drained nearly dry of financial resources, from maintaining tremendous rival military camps, the greatest in history, with these two facts before us, will any sane persons doubt that "cash and carry" so-called really means credit and carry?

This conclusion is not meant for disloyalty. It is merely being alert and mindful of the President elected with the slogan, "He kept us out of war." After election he led us in.

PROFESSOR CORWIN REPLIES TO THE PRESIDENT ON EMBARGO

BY EDWARD S. CORWIN.

[Professor of Jurisprudence, Princeton university.]

In going before congress to urge repeal of the arms embargo, the President undertook an unaccustomed rôle for him, that of opponent of legal change, of champion of ancient wont and use. The novelty of the part perhaps accounts for his rather unsatisfying performance of it. Mr. Roosevelt asserts in his opening sentence that the embargo "impairs the peaceful relations of the United States with foreign nations"; and he later adds "his deep and unalterable conviction . . . that by the repeal of the embargo the United States will more probably remain at peace than if the law remains as it stands today."

In support of neither assertion nor conviction, however, does he adduce any proof whatever of either factual or logical nature, except a reference to "years of experience as a worker in international peace," most of which must have antedated his original approval of the embargo.

He finds, to be sure, the distinction which the embargo provision sets up between completed implements of war and the materials out of which they are made an "artificial" one, and he challenges "those who seek to retain the present embargo position" to "be wholly consistent and seek legislation to cut off cloth and copper and meat and wheat and a thousand other articles from all of the nations at war."

But obviously the fact that this distinction is "artificial" would not necessarily make it a source of danger to our relations with other countries, while the appeal to consistency is an argument which can be worked both ways. Mr. Roosevelt himself would have to admit that it is "artificial" to distinguish between one who makes a gun and puts it into the hands of another in the certain knowledge that it will be used by that other against a third person, and on the other hand one who fires a gun himself at said third person. Yet this is precisely the distinction on which neutral status pivots. Would Mr. Roosevelt abandon this "artificial" distinction in the present instance?

The fact is, of course, that most legal distinctions are artificial, otherwise the law would not have had to intervene to set them up. And the distinction which the President attacks is derived from the very international law which he so much praises and to which he is so anxious to return. What is more, he himself adopts it at the end, when he urges the retention of the present "license system covering import and export of arms, ammunition, and implements of war" and the present ban on the shipment of these to belligerent countries on American vessels. Of the latter he says, "This provision should not be disturbed."

Mr. Roosevelt also endeavors to bolster his case by an appeal to history. He seeks to affix to the present embargo the odium which Jefferson's embargo incurred some 130 years ago. Referring to our struggle to keep out of the Napoleonic wars, he says: "We acted for some years under the so-called embargo and nonintercourse acts. That policy turned out to be a disastrous failure, first, because it brought our own nation close to ruin, and second, because it was the major cause of bringing us into active participation in European wars in our own war of 1812. It is merely reciting history to recall to you that one of the results of the policy of embargo and nonintercourse was the burning in 1814 of part of this capitol in which we are assembled."

Coming from the present leader of the Democratic party, this attack on the principal and most obstinately persisted in policy of the party's founder seems an argument of desperation. At least it will come as news to most students of American history that Jefferson's embargo brought on the war of 1812!

Another argument the President phrases thus: "From a purely material point of view, what is the advantage to us in sending all manner of articles across the ocean for final processing there, when we could give employment to thousands by doing it here? Incidentally, and again from the material point of view, by such employment we automatically aid our own national defense." The argument is both irrelevant to the main issue and unconvincing in itself. The congress has recently appropriated some billions of dollars toward this country's rearmament. Is their expenditure to be postponed in order that we may supply the warring European countries with arms, or are the two things to proceed concomitantly? If the latter we shall have on our hands at the end of hostilities a vastly overdeveloped munitions industry just as we did at the end of the world war, and a second economic collapse of more or less serious character. It is true that this danger would be somewhat mitigated by adoption of the cash and carry plan, although that is entirely without sanction from international law!

Finally, the President advances the following argument: "Repeal of the embargo and a return to international law are the crux of this issue. The enactment of the embargo provisions did more than merely reverse our traditional policy. It had the effect of putting land powers on the same footing as naval powers, so far as seaborne commerce was concerned. A land power which threatened war could thus feel assured in advance that any prospective sea power antagonist would be weakened through denial of its ancient right to buy anything anywhere.

"This, four years ago, gave a definite advantage to one belligerent as against another, not through his own strength or geographic position, but through an affirmative act of ours. Removal of the embargo is merely reverting to the sounder international practice, and pursuing in time of war as in time of peace our ordinary trade policies. This will be liked by some and disliked by others, depending on the view they take of the present war, but that is not the issue. The step I recommend is to put this country back on the solid footing of real and traditional neutrality."

There is some confusion of statement, possibly of thought here. "Four years ago," when the embargo was enacted there were no belligerents; it was a period of peace, at any rate as respects the land and naval powers to whom the President refers. Can it be conceded, then, that the United States is not free to revise its trade policies in time of peace, whatever the repercussions may be upon the opposed interests of future belligerents? Certainly no such concession can be made unless international law requires it. The fact is that the above argument rests on a mistaken assumption, namely, that neutrals are under a positive obligation to trade with belligerents. The international law to which the President constantly appeals knows no such rule. It does require that a neutral shall not prohibit trade with one belligerent which it permits with the other. It also subjects neutral trade to the hazards to which the rules concerning contraband and blockade give rise. But it no more requires a neutral to stand ready to sell to belligerents than it requires a neutral to produce for them. The President's argument subjects neutral interests to an utterly unheard of servitude in favor of belligerents, and in the instance it quite gratuitously presents the naval powers with a grievance made up out of whole cloth.

There may be plenty of sound arguments for the repeal of the arms embargo. If so, the President has been singularly unsuccessful in discovering them. The address to congress does not make out a case for its main proposal, and shows a disturbing lack of clarity on the part of the administration as to its own guiding intention.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Cutter will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

YES, OUR CHILDREN SHOULD KNOW.

A RECENT letter to this column from a young man sets forth apologetically the fact that he is the victim of gonorrhea. "I want to mention also," he writes, "that I graduated from high school. Among my credits is one in hygiene. I learned the dangers of smoking, drinking, and the horrible things that would happen to one who failed to brush his teeth twice daily. Why were we not told something about venereal diseases? At the present time I am crippled because my right knee joint has been affected. I feel that my life has been blasted. Why do our educational authorities forbid instruction in sex and social hygiene?"

I think I can assure this lad that there is a far more liberal attitude today than obtained but a few years ago. With great courage, an American newspaper took the cover off the syphilis cesspool. While the hazards of the malady were revealed, the way to cure was pointed out clearly. A widespread program under the auspices of national, state, and local health authorities was inaugurated. As a result, the scourge is on the run.

Venereal disease can be conquered and much unhappiness prevented if parents will assume the responsibility for the enlightenment of their children. But all too many are uninformed, while others shrink from the task because of embarrassment or false modesty. Why should such instruction be humiliating in the slightest degree? Most boys and girls reared on farms care for animals and they become familiar with the facts of reproduction. The sons and daughters of animal breeders have many advantages.

One reason why I have always advocated courses in biology—even for 9th graders—is that the principles of propagation of plants and the lower forms of life can be explained plainly and simply—without personal reference. I know of nothing more valuable than a free and frank talk with high school students about afflictions likely to be incurred in a promiscuous sex life. But the interpreter must be one of rare gifts. Classes, of course, should be in charge of men physicians for boys and women physicians for girls. There is some danger in arousing too much curiosity, but if the discussion is placed before youngsters in factual form no harm can ensue.

Doctors continually are amazed at the ignorance on the part of middle aged parents of the true nature of the biological urge. Apparently they do not recognize that their progeny are exposed to the influence of cheap magazines, portraying vulgar romanticism. In other words, we have shut the front door to a straightforward, honest approach, but have allowed all the windows and the rear entrance to remain open. Our medical men are called upon constantly to repair tens of thousands of bodies and minds that have been damaged through misinformation. Venereal infection is not the only consequence of a policy of taboo. Unhappy marriages, separations, and personality maladjustments pave the way for emotional upsets—even psychoses.

I am not a crusader—far from it—and more mischief than good is likely to come from the activities of the fanatical enthusiast, the inadequately trained teacher. Unwise experiments in sex education can have nothing but unfortunate results. We must prepare the minds of youth to accept the subject as natural and normal. Their thinking must be divorced from the concept that it is permeated with anything clandestine or sordid. There is no need for fumigation. All that is required is the sunlight of common sense. The wrong kind of knowledge—no matter how it may be presented—may carry with it great peril.

I have directed our correspondent whose letter is quoted to an able, conscientious physician who, in all probability, will be able to restore him to health. Unfortunately, the mental scar and the suffering incident to the episode can never be erased. To be enlightened is to be protected.

NERVOUS TWITCH.

W. T. M. writes: What causes a very slight visible twitch on the lower eyelid toward the nose, which seems to be continuous?

REPLY.

This is a nervous "tic," for which there are many causes. Fatigue is the most prominent. More rest and the elimination of infections about the teeth or in the sinuses is advised.

AFFECTS HEARING.

N. B. writes: 1. What is the cause of otosclerosis?

2. Does one become completely deaf eventually?

REPLY.

1. The exact cause is not known definitly, although there is a decided hereditary tendency. Infection is probably to blame.
2. In time—in the affected ear.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Oct. 1, 1914.

PARIS—The retreat of the German right was in full swing. The allies were jubilant, expecting a speedy defeat of the central powers. This was on the 19th day of furious fighting on a 150 mile front from the Somme to the Moselle. The left as well as the right wing of the German army was falling back. Only the central sections, where the kaiser's forces were heavily entrenched, was remaining stationary.

VIENNA—The Austrian government announced that the Russian offensive was weakening and beginning to break down. [London dispatches stated the czar's armies were continuing to sweep through Galicia.]

ANTWERP—The German assaults upon the forts encircling the city were repulsed with heavy losses to both sides.

LONDON—The government refused to relax its censorship of the press, declaring all news of importance must be kept from the German staff. THE TRIBUNE learned that in one case the British censor had deleted most of a dispatch and had substituted a dispatch of his own. The fraud was detected.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

The Tribune would like to receive answers to the question: "Why should the embargo on the export of arms and ammunition to belligerents be repealed?" Answers must be confined to the question.

A CIVIL WAR INCIDENT.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Your "Did You Notice?" feature [items which weren't headlined] served to recall an extraordinary occurrence in our civil war away back in June, 1863, when I was a "barefoot boy with cheeks of tan," residing in my native town, Baton Rouge, La. I was then 10 years old.

This "extraordinary occurrence," so far as I have been able to determine, has never been published. When it transpired there were no newspapers extant in Louisiana, almost the entire male adult population being absent in the Army of Northern Virginia.

After the battle of Mobile bay, Farragut with the Hartford and her sister ship Pensacola, having successfully fought a passage between the confederate Forts Jackson and St. Philip, ascended the Mississippi en route to Vicksburg to aid Grant in effecting its capture. En route there the Hartford and Pensacola anchored off Baton Rouge. A group of confederate "guerrillas" rode in from the adjacent woods to the river bank and fired a volley of musketry at the warships and then retreated to the woods, the ships responding by firing a broadside over the town.

The state penitentiary was located at the rear of Baton Rouge. Immediately upon this bombardment, the keeper of that institution, acting on a humane impulse, opened the gates and released all of the convicts, who came racing down the street leading to the river. It was a sight never to be forgotten. Pale faced, hollow eyed and unshaven, in their striped uniforms, they ran at a furious gait for the river bank, a block below my home, and disappeared without leaving a trace.

There being no adult males in Baton Rouge to impede their progress, the affrighted women and children residents hid themselves for the ensuing twenty-four hours. C. N. B.

TIRED OF SAVING ALL MANKIND.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—I am inclosing an excerpt from a letter written 116 years ago, which seems to me to be timely now, as it so well expresses the views of some of us who feel that this is not "our war," and that we should avoid any unneutral acts, such as the repeal of the arms embargo, which might possibly involve us in it. Here is the excerpt. It is from a letter written by Sidney Smith to Countess Gray, dated Feb. 19, 1823:

"For God's sake, do not drag me into another war. I am worn down and worn out with crusading and defending Europe and protecting mankind. I am sorry for the Spaniards, I am sorry for the Greeks, I deplore the fate of the Jews. The people of the Sandwich Islands are groaning under the most detestable tyranny. Bagdad is oppressed. I do not like the present state of the Delta. Tibet is not comfortable.

"Am I to fight for all these people? The world is bursting with sin and sorrow. Am I to be the champion of the decalog and to be eternally raising fleets and armies to make all men good and happy? We have just done saving Europe, and I am afraid that the consequence will be that we shall all cut each other's throats."

HERMON DUNLAP SMITH.

WE MAKE HIM TIRED.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 25.—You make me tired with your bosh about the war debts. You know as well as I do whose fault it was they weren't paid back: our own. We didn't lend the allies money, we lent them goods. But would we accept repayment in goods? Manufactured goods? "No," howled the manufacturers. Raw materials? "No, no!" cried the farmers. Goods of any kind? Why, we had more goods as it was than we knew how to distribute, so much more that our whole system broke down in 1929.

But that's history. The point today is: Do we want Hitler to crush France and England the way he crushed Poland? Do we want the communazis to conquer Europe? We must decide quickly, or Joe and Adolf will decide for us.

ROBERT MACKNIGHT.

REMOVE GLORY AND GLAMOR.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Let's take the glamor and glory out of war. We love "our boys" in parade with their brilliant uniforms and banners, but for a real picture of war let's have a look around the Hines and Marine hospitals.

ANN SNYDER.

WHERE'S THE CONSISTENCY?

Western Springs, Ill., Sept. 26.—One of the strange phases of the current controversy about the so-called neutrality act is the fact that neither proponents nor opponents of the act have pointed out a weird inconsistency in the administration's enforcement of its provisions.

Though we may have forgotten it, there is a war between China and Japan. No stretch of the imagination can convert the mass murder of hundreds of thousands, the disruption of normal commerce, the invasion of thousands of square miles into a mere border incident simply because no formal declaration of war has been made.

In fact, this same lack of a declaration of war exists on one side in Europe, since Germany has not formally declared war on France and England, and as far as I can learn, on Poland.

The same punitive, cruel aggression has been practiced in Poland as we find in China. In both places there have been indiscriminate bombing of nonmilitary objectives and murdering of civilians.

What witchcraft of statesmanship do we practice when we differentiate between the two situations merely by the mutterings of parliaments? Has civilization been reduced to the uttering of magic formulas which make war nonwar? Perhaps Japan has suggested the value of emulating the three monkeys of Japan—see no evil, hear no evil, taste no evil!

If the neutrality act is just, our obligation is to apply it to Japan, which now is almost entirely dependent upon the United States for the munitions and supplies of war. If it is unjust, why do we differentiate between Japan and Germany?

Consistency, thou art a jewel!

R. MILTON CARLETON.

THE DACHSHUND AGAIN.

Northwestern University, Sept. 25.—Cartoonist Parrish evidently doesn't remember what the cartoonists did to the dachshunds in the last world war. Because they used them as a symbol for Germany, as Parrish did Sunday in his cartoon, the emotions of many people became unbalanced and many of the dachshunds were stoned and killed. Innocent dogs—yet uncivilized people led by ignorant cartoonists almost drove the dachshund into extinction in the United States during the war. Those of us who love dogs plead with men like Parrish to refrain from such barbarism again.

W. S.

DON'T BLAME THE LEGION.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—The same old cry is in the air: The rowdyism and damage caused during the American Legion convention.

From close observation I noticed it wasn't the Legionnaires that caused the damage to private and public property during the convention, but people who had no connection whatsoever with this great organization. I am certain the police department could verify this statement.

EDW. RADOLL.

HE TRIES TO WAKE US UP.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—You won't print this letter—it doesn't agree with your policy. Ninety per cent of the people writing and wiring their representatives to "save the neutrality act" could hardly spell the word if they didn't see it in print.

Few, if any, of them could give an impartial and concise resumé of the probable consequences of repeal vs. retention. They are the type who will write or wire because they enjoy the feeling of self-importance it produces within themselves. The facts are:

1. Refusal to sell is unneutral to the allies.
2. Sale is unneutral to the central powers.
3. Refusal to sell means diversion of a great trade, both war and postwar, to other markets.
4. Repeal is unneutral to Germany; original act was unneutral to France and England, since it took from them the marine advantage they had built up.

Will THE TRIBUNE ever wake up to the reputation it is getting for being such an obvious propaganda sheet and start telling the real truth behind things?

When the Argentine beef question was up you blithely omitted the factual point that "American" canned beef is meat that would otherwise be waste, while the "Argentine" canned beef was the choicest cuts and animals—it was this factor that influenced the administration's point on that question.

H. COLEMAN.

"FOOL'S GOLD."

Chicago, Sept. 27.—I want to thank you for the splendid stand you are making in the matter of keeping our country out of the war.

Would it be possible to quote in a certain spot in THE TRIBUNE every day the part of President Roosevelt's Chautauqua speech in which he says that "if war breaks out in another continent let us not blink the fact that we would find in this country thousands of Americans who, seeking immediate riches—fool's gold—would attempt to break down or evade our neutrality."

The President now says the present neutrality bill was not the bill he wanted, but I understand the bill was passed unanimously and with his signature and approval.

Thanks again for the consistent battle you are waging to keep our country out of this war. CLARA SEARING EAST.

POLAND NOT LOST.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—At the moment when the defense of Poland against the German mechanized army had reached its peak of heroism a mortal enemy of civilization, religion, and humanity [Stalin, the modern Ivan the Terrible], dealt the Polish army a treacherous blow. The nation is not lost, and soon there will be reorganized an army of half a million men in France to face Germany on the western front.

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. TIMBER ON MORTGAGED PROPERTY.

Chicago, Sept. 21 [Legal Friend of the People].—On my camp in Minnesota I have some fifty virgin pine trees. Can I sell and cut down these trees if some one holds a mortgage on the property to the extent of about one-third of its value? I would like to sell these trees to pay off this mortgage. W. E. M.

"While some courts follow the rule that the property in timber cut on the mortgaged premises is in the mortgagee and that a purchaser from the mortgagor takes it subject to the paramount rights of the mortgagee, other courts follow the rule that, although the lien of a mortgage covers standing timber on the mortgaged premises the mortgagor, remaining in possession before default, may cut and sell the timber, and that the mortgagee cannot pursue it into the hands of purchasers, who have acquired it in good faith and without notice of his rights, by trover or trespass or an action for its value; and this right of the mortgagor in possession to cut and sell timber has been recognized as existing even after default and until foreclosure. It is unlawful, however, for the mortgagor, or those who act under his license or contract, to strip the land to such an extent as to destroy or seriously impair its value as security for the mortgage debt. The rights of the mortgagor in this respect may also be limited by his covenant in the mortgage not to cut the timber without the mortgagee's permission or by a restriction as to the amount to be cut, and directing the application of the proceeds on the mortgage debt." 41 C. J., page 623, Par. 597 D.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BANKRUPTCY.

Rochelle, Ill., Sept. 19. [Legal Friend of the People].—1. When an employer's business is bankrupt, either voluntary or involuntary, what is the limit in wages the employé is permitted to receive?

2. Must an employé file claim for wages? E. R. H.

1. The revised national bankruptcy act, chapter VII., section 64, states as follows: "Wages, not to exceed $600 to each claimant, which have been earned within three months before the date of the commencement of the proceeding, due to workmen, servants, clerks, or traveling or city salesmen on salary or commission basis, whole or part time, whether or not selling exclusively for the bankrupt." Wages above the $600 would be collectible if the estate is sufficient, but would not be entitled to preference.

2. Yes.

REDS ARE A SPY PERIL, ONE TELLS DIES COMMITTEE

So Is the Bund, Ex-Agent of Comintern Warns.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30 (AP).—A self-styled "charter member" of the communist party of the United States told the house committee investigating un-Americanism today that "alleged political parties" in this country which "are really agents of foreign governments" constitute huge potential spy rings.

Joseph Zack.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Joseph Zack, New York garment worker who said he was an erstwhile agent of the comintern, made that statement toward the close of a day of testimony concerning the communist party's penetration of the American labor movement.

"Wealth of Information."

He agreed, in response to questions, that both the communist party and the German-American bund would be the sources of "a wealth of information constantly going to Hitler and Stalin" in the event of the United States being drawn into a war.

Members of the communist party "work only for Joe Stalin," he said when Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] asked him whether they would be available for Russian espionage in this country.

The portly, bespectacled witness told the committee he considered it his "duty to expose" the communist leadership in spite of his belief that the soviet government was holding his wife and young son as "hostages" in an effort to insure his silence.

Visit to Russia.

Zack related that he took his family to Russia when the central committee of the party sent him there in 1927 and that he left them in Moscow when he was sent to Venezuela by the comintern two years later. Since then, he said, repeated efforts to get his wife and son out of Russia have failed.

Zack said he was a native of Scranton, Pa., and that his son was born in New York City in 1927. Committee attachés said his wife was Polish.

After testifying that he broke with the communist party in 1934 because of what he called the "unprincipled" reversal of policy dictated by the soviet government, Zack was questioned at length about his work as secretary of the Trade Union Unity league. He testified the union was the party's vehicle in this country for organizational and propaganda work in the labor movement.

Communism in C. I. O.

He said communists controled 11 of the C. I. O.'s national organizations but expressed belief they did not dominate the entire organization or its policies. However, he prophesied that if John L. Lewis, C. I. O. president, tried to rid the C. I. O. of communists "he will not find it easy."

He said he knew or had reason to believe that eight national directors of the C. I. O. were communist party members. He identified them as Donald Henderson of the United Cannery Workers; Mervyn Rathborne, head of the American Communications association; Julius Emspak of the United Electrical Workers; Ben Gold of the Furriers' union; Harry Bridges, west coast C. I. O. leader; Lewis Merrill of the Office Workers; Michael Quill of the Transport Workers, and Joseph Curran, head of the National Maritime union.

Young Woman Is Raped and Robbed on West Side

A young woman, 26 years old, was raped by an unidentified man last night in a rear yard at Washington boulevard and Kedzie avenue. He dragged her through an areaway, tied her hands, and gagged her before the assault. He indicated he had a pistol, the victim told Warren avenue police. After the attack he robbed her of $12 and a wrist watch.

Loses Her Case

Mrs. Eunice Brach Brewer as she appeared at trial which resulted in acquittal of her husband of her charge of disorderly conduct.

With the aid of Attorneys John T. Conlon and Robert P. Burkhalter and the policeman who locked him up, Robert C. Brewer cleared himself yesterday of his wife's charge of disorderly conduct. It took three hours. He was arrested, he said, for going home, finding he wasn't welcome, waiting outside while his wife dressed to file charges, and voluntarily accompanying her and the policeman to the station.

Robert C. Brewer.

Brewer is the husband of Mrs. Eunice Brach Brewer, who has received the income from a $1,000,000 trust since she divorced Frank Brach, a candy manufacturer. She lives in a $300,000 residence at 175 Sheridan road, Winnetka. Mrs. Brewer had Brewer, from whom she is estranged, arrested early Sept. 7.

Justice of the Peace George F. Scherzer acquitted the husband in the Wilmette village hall. Lieut. Glen Boyd of the Winnetka police testified that he waited six hours for Brewer to come home and told him Mrs. Brewer didn't want him to come in. The lieutenant said Brewer threatened to break into the home but didn't. Then, the lieutenant said, Brewer accompanied him and Mrs. Brewer to the Winnetka police station where Brewer was lodged in a cell. Brewer, who is 37 years old, met his wife on a cruise. They were married in 1937.

3 BANDITS CURB CAR; GET $790.

Three bandits took $790 from Otto Blanch of 1430 North Lotus avenue yesterday after forcing his car to the curb at Hirsch and Le Moyne streets. Blanch, a meat market owner, was taking the money to a bank.

SHERIF SEIZES PUNCH BOARDS, SLOT MACHINES

Raids Start a Day After Grand Jury Report.

Twenty-four hours after the September grand jury had issued a report assailing gambling conditions in Cook county, highway police last night raided three handbooks, and seized 15 slot machines and 25 punchboards in various sections of the county.

The slot machine raids were made by Lieut. George Le Grue and a squad in the Morton Grove area. No arrests were made. The handbook raids were made by two squads under Chief Lester Laird and Lieut. Henry Andel at 11 154th place and 12 Douglas court, Calumet City, and 1502 Wentworth avenue, Chicago Heights. Eleven men were arrested, and will appear in the Justice court in Homewood Wednesday. The punchboards were picked up in the south end of the county. No arrests were made.

Slot Machines Seized.

Earlier in the day three slot machines and ten punchboards were turned over to Chief Laird's office. They had been seized Friday night at 117 Plummer street, Calumet City, and 229 17th street, Chicago Heights.

The grand jury's special report was submitted to Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court. It called gambling arrests by Chicago police and the sherif's office a "colossal sham battle" to protect gambling interests. Sherif Thomas J. O'Brien could not be found yesterday for comment on the report. Police Commissioner Allman, however, replied to several of the suggestions contained in the report.

"The police department arrests all employés found in gambling places," Allman said in answer to jury suggestion B, which read: "Make proper and sincere arrests of all persons on the premises, not just a couple of stooges."

The jury recommended all gambling equipment be confiscated. This, said Allman, has always been done in raids conducted by the police. The jury also urged that policing bodies exercise the same efficiency in suppressing gambling as they do in combating major crime.

"The morals division of the police department already has been instructed to practice the same efficiency in attacking gambling as in attacking other crime," the police commissioner asserted.

Silent on "Buck Passing."

Allman was noncommittal on a statement by the jurors condemning "the prevalent practice of passing the buck between the policing bodies of the city and county and the courts."

There were indications yesterday that the October grand jury, which will be impaneled tomorrow, will continue the gambling investigation. It is believed the jury will seek to question several persons who evaded subpena servers while the September jury was in session. Notable among these dodgers is Bill Johnson, reputed boss of three big gambling resorts.

Judge Prystalski was at work yesterday on his address to the October grand jury. He said he had not decided whether it would include a special mention of gambling.

Great I Am Says He Owes No One

Guy Ballard, leader of the Great I Am cult, before his flock in the Civic Opera house yesterday, denouncing woman who sued him and assailing enemies of his movement.

Heard by Two Throngs

Guy Ballard, head of the Great I Am creed, addressed two large audiences in the auditorium of the Civic Opera house yesterday. Much of his talk in the afternoon was devoted to denouncing the enemies of his movement. One of his targets was Mrs. Mary Ingham, who has sued him for $6,755, allegedly given Ballard to finance the working of a "lake of gold." He denied he owed the money.

Sex and the newspaper also were given hard verbal blows by Ballard and his wife. Sex desire, he asserted, had tried to insinuate itself into the great light of his movement for two years. He warned his hearers that it is a sin to claim an "illicit twin ray" or affinity for man or woman.

Inveighing against attacks of unbelievers, Ballard referred to them as dirty cowards and vicious devils. Mrs. Ballard called for the help of "the light" to strike such enemies down. At the evening meeting hearers were urged to make their decrees, or prayers, with the aid of official booklets. Song books were on sale at $1 and pamphlets at 36 cents.

LECHE INDICTED ON CONFIDENCE GAME CHARGES

4 Others Named in $27,000 Plot Aired in Lousiana

Ruston, La., Sept. 30 (AP).—Former Gov. Richard W. Leche and four others, all prime favorites of the Huey Long political machine, were charged here today with operating a confidence game at the expense of the state.

The Lincoln parish [county] grand jury returned an indictment charging the quintet obtained $27,000 by false pretenses in the signing of a contract for building Leche Hall Administration building at Louisiana Polytechnic institute.

Today's was the second indictment against Leche since he resigned June 26, at the beginning of widespread investigations into the Louisiana state administration. The New Orleans federal grand jury two months ago charged him with conspiracy to violate the Connally "hot oil" act.

One Under Sentence.

Indicted today with Leche were Monte E. Hart, New Orleans contractor already under federal sentence of two and a half years for using the mails to defraud Louisiana State university of $75,000, and Leon C. Weiss, Julius Dreyfous, and Solis Seiferth, all partners in an architectural firm.

After twice indicting the five, on charges of obtaining the $27,000 under false pretenses and operating a confidence game, the jury indicted Hart and the three architects for allegedly unlawfully receiving $55,955 through contracts with the college.

Charge Padding of Bid.

The indictments charge Leche and the other four added $27,000 to the $264,482 bid accepted by the Louisiana board of education for construction of Leche Hall.

Hart and Architect Weiss have been indicted on other charges stemming from investigation of the scrambled finances of Louisiana State university under the administration of Dr. James Monroe Smith, former president.

Smith, convicted of mail fraud with Hart and given the same sentence, is under 42 other charges of fraud and embezzlement.

GRANDMOTHER, 66, HELD IN HATCHET ATTACK ON GIRL, 15

Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 30 [Special.]—Sherif Lew Stewart today took Mrs. Rosetta Overholser, 66 years old, to the county jail for questioning in connection with the mysterious mutilation of her granddaughter, Charlene Overholser, early Thursday.

The girl, who is 15 years old and a junior in the West Middleton High school, was drugged and then slashed about the face, neck and right hand as she lay in her bed in her grandmother's home, where she has lived since infancy. Two fingers were severed with a hatchet.

Mrs. Overholser had been questioned for seven hours last night by Prosecutor Virgil L. Coffel, Sherif Stewart and police. She insisted she did not know who attacked the girl.

The sherif suggested that the grandmother, who had grown very fond of the girl, may have become deranged and sought to insure that the girl would not leave her.

WOMAN, 87, FOUND SLAIN IN HER BED; HOME RANSACKED

Mrs. Augusta Miller, 87 years old, a widow, was found brutally murdered in bed last night in her home at the rear of 1228 Melrose street. Her head had been bashed in with a heavy book end, and she had apparently been stabbed or cut on the throat.

Two drawers had been removed from the bedroom dresser and their contents strewn over the floor. This indicated the killer was a burglar, police said.

The murder was discovered by Mrs. Miller's son, Hugo, 51, a WPA worker, on his return home from a visit with colored friends on the south side. Another son, Harvey, 1521 School street, a machinist, told Capt. Patrick O'Connell of the Town Hall station that Hugo had often quarreled with the mother. Hugo was held for questioning.

OPINIONS on OPOSSUMS

The 'possum catch on the Du Page county farm continues to beat all advance guesses, reports Bob Becker. How these animals are trapped and how one field has escaped the drouth are the subjects of his interesting article about the farm's activities which appears in the want ad section of today's Tribune.

TO GO TO SLEEP, LET BO-PEEP HAVE HER SHEEP

Counting Is Bad; Insomnia Isn't, Says Doctor.

This will probably come as unwanted balm to 59,333,999 people in the United States. They need no longer worry about [or talk about] their insomnia.

In fact, insomnia's dire results are almost entirely imaginary, Dr. Louis J. Karnosh of Cleveland writes in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical association. It does not sap your vitality. It does not affect your health. It does not make you anemic or even thinner, and it never leads to insanity.

Quit Worrying! That's Remedy.

More important, still, if you would only stop worrying about what it will do to you and how you are going to feel tomorrow it might even stop.

Half of the persons who complain of chronic insomnia are psychoneurotic, Dr. Karnosh says. They want oblivion as well as sleep.

The best thing to do, he says, is just to let your mind wander. Not on a set little path, but simply on a fantastic, rambling tour.

Cools Off Hot Tub Idea.

If that doesn't work, try from 15 to 20 minutes in a tub of water just cool to the touch; never hot.

Don't count sheep, though. Dr. Karnosh says it merely leads you away from sleep.

No one can will himself to sleep, Dr. Karnosh says. "One merely allows sleep to intervene," he says.

Prepares to Vote

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 30 [Special].—Defeated in last fall's election by the narrow margin of 250,000 votes, a new, but practically no different, initiative measure will again be presented to California's two and a half million voters in behalf of the $30-a-week pension plan at a special election called for Nov. 7.

Normally an off-election autumn, the last few weeks have witnessed unusually feverish activity on the part of both proponents and opposition to get voters registered. Among those to register was Marlene Dietrich, recently naturalized movie actress. This will be her first chance to vote as an American citizen.

SCHORSCH FIRM HAS ERECTED 47 SO FAR IN 1939

Reports Fourteen More Are Under Way.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Albert J. Schorsch & Co. yesterday announced plans for the erection of forty-five brick residences in the northwest section of the city. So far this year the Schorsch company has completed forty-seven brick homes, all except two of which have been sold and are occupied. At present the firm is building fourteen more, two of which already have been sold.

When the contemplated forty-five new units are finished the company's residential building record from 1916 to 1939, inclusive, will be 2,100 homes—all on the northwest side. This is probably the largest number of homes erected in Chicago by any one firm.

Erect Business Units.

The Schorsch concern has also been active in erecting business buildings adjacent to its residential developments. At present it is building two store units at the northwest and northeast corners of Belmont and Rutherford avenues.

The three store building at the northwest corner is nearing completion and already has been rented to a meat market, a Jewel Tea company store and a drug store on the corner. Only the foundations are in at the northeast corner. There is said to be a $33,000 investment in the two buildings.

The Schorsch operations cover 85 acres. This irregular tract is bounded on the north by Addison street, by Sayre avenue and Shabona park on the west, by Belmont avenue on the south, and by the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Pacific railroad on the east.

Same Brick on All Sides.

The newest group of homes planned, comprising forty-five five and six room units, will have walls of common brick on all sides, instead of the old fashioned "shirt front" method of building with face brick in front and common brick on the sides and rear.

These forty-five new homes will occupy the two square blocks fronting west on Natoma avenue, between Roscoe street and Belmont avenue, extending east to the railroad right of way. Price range will be $5,800 to $6,400 for land and building.

This area has been replatted from small lots into home sites with 44 to 47 feet of frontage and with a depth of about 92 feet.

Work to Start Shortly.

Work is expected to be started on these forty-five brick homes in about three weeks when it is hoped Federal Housing administration commitments will have been made. Otto Monberg is architect.

Schorsch's English village is the name of the entire development which is being built and is owned by Village Homebuilders, Inc., a corporation owned by the six Schorsch brothers—Albert, Louis, Anton, Martin, Frank, and Theodore. Albert J. Schorsch & Co. are the exclusive agents for the property.

Before 1929 the Schorsch concern, one of Chicago's most active home builders, operated in the area bounded on the north by Irving Park road, by Melvina avenue on the west, by Austin avenue on the east, and by Roscoe and Addison streets on the south. In this neighborhood they built about 1,800 homes.

Completed 240 Homes.

Their present area of about eighty-five acres is approximately a half mile southwest of their first activity. In this district they have completed to date 240 homes. They built 79 in 1931 and 1932, six during 1936, and in 1937 they erected 33 houses. Last year they built 75 homes and so far in 1939 they have completed 47 units. The firm still has about 500 home sites available for improvement.

One of the active home building areas in Chicago is the development known as Schorsch's English village, comprising eighty-five acres on the northwest side. So far this year forty-seven homes have been completed and all except two have been sold. Fourteen others are under construction and plans are being drawn for forty-five more. Three homes are open to the public daily for inspection. Otto Monberg is architect. The above picture is looking south on Rutherford avenue from School street.

The black areas show the location of the Schorsch 85 acre development on the northwest side. The new area, comprising two square blocks, in which 45 brick homes are to be built, is shown in the lower right hand corner, with diagonal marking.

Realty Miscellany

Hawaii is a paradise for realtors, according to Arthur Rubloff of Arthur Rubloff & Co., who recently returned from a vacation there.

Arthur Rubloff.

"Office space rents for $2.50 a square foot and up in Honolulu," he said yesterday. "The office building situation is well controled by the leaders of the industry. There are approximately 125 real estate firms in the city. Most land is controled by strong interests and property is difficult to acquire.

"Everything is leased on short and long term arrangements. It is rather startling to learn that not everybody can do business there. The controling factors have all the say as to who can or who cannot. Operating costs are about half of ours."

The West Central association will conduct a bus tour of historic landmarks on the west side next Tuesday, Oct. 3. It will start at 3 p.m. from the United States postoffice, Congress street at Canal street. The tour will end at the Civic Opera building, where dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. in the Electric club. The dinner will cost $1.50. There will be free bus accommodations for all who make reservations. At the dinner the West Central association's program of rehabilitation for the west side will be outlined.

Walsh Opens New Section of Lincolnwood Project

The Fred J. Walsh company yesterday reported that the first addition to its fifty acre development at the northeast corner of Chicago and Pratt avenues, in Lincolnwood, has been sold out. Contracts have been signed for the erection of sixty-four homes. Forty-two have been built or are under construction. A second addition, with sixty homesites, has been opened just north of the first. Already, Fred J. Walsh said, contracts have been signed for fifteen new homes in the second addition.

News of the Architects

The Architects Club of Chicago has moved to room 1040 in the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue. According to F. W. Maynard, manager, a table for architects has been set aside in the Piccadilly Tea room, in the same building.

Unit in South Side Residential Group

SYNDICATE WILL REMODEL FLATS IN NORTH STATE

John D. Ames, publisher, yesterday sold the three story apartment building at 1247 North State street, 25 by 150 feet, adjoining the Churchill apartment hotel, to a syndicate. According to revenue stamps on the deed the price was $20,000, of which $5,000 was cash. Title was taken by Julie Cooke Adams and Annie C. Brasier. The building contains three seven room apartments, which will be remodeled into smaller units.

Big Private Housing Project Gives Employment to Many

Approximately 2,200 men will be directly and indirectly engaged in erecting buildings and manufacturing building material for the $3,443,000 privately owned Chatham Park apartment project, according to Robert G. Regan, president of the Robert G. Regan company, which has the general contract. Of this number 1,092 will be actively employed on the big group of buildings which will occupy 22 acres at the southwest corner of Cottage Grove avenue and East 83d street.

Robert G. Regan.

16 Foundations Completed.

Foundations for sixteen of the apartment buildings are completed, as also are foundations for several of the garage units. Several foundations are being started daily, Regan said.

By the end of next week brick work on several of the buildings will have proceeded beyond the first floor level, he predicted.

According to Regan all the materials for initial phases of the construction job were contracted for prior to the price rise brought about by the European war.

"This means that it will be possible for us to erect the buildings as originally planned and yet rent them at a figure which it may be impossible to duplicate for years to come," he said.

Regan said more than 2,500,000 feet of lumber are being used in the buildings. This is more than 100 railroad carloads. About 1,200 tons of steel will be used.

Extensive Utility Work.

"Five miles of sewers must be installed throughout the grounds and thirteen main street connections must be built to handle them," Regan said. "An even larger amount of wiring for the electric utilities will be required, as well as sufficient concrete to build private roadways totaling more than a mile."

Chatham Park, when completed, is to have 554 dwelling units. It was designed by Shaw, Naess & Murphy. It was financed with a $2,460,000 mortgage made by Dovenmuehle.

Trades Chicago Flats for 120 Acre Farm on Fox Lake

FEDERAL AGENT WILL ADDRESS BUILDING MEN

The federal government's position with regard to the building industry, as recently outlined by Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, will be told by Corwin Edwards at a noon luncheon sponsored by the Chicago Building congress, on Oct. 10 at the Hotel Sherman. "The United States Department of Justice Antitrust Policies and the Building Industries" will be the subject of Edwards' address.

Edwards is an economist of the department and director of building construction investigation in the antitrust division.

According to Paul D. Angell, secretary of the Chicago Building congress, this will be the first of a series of meetings, under the auspices of the congress, dealing with present outstanding problems of the building industry.

BUILDING STOPS IF WE ENTER WAR, SAYS J. C. DOWNS

ites Experience During Previous Conflict.

If the United States enters the European war practically all building and real estate activity will stop. This prediction, based on regimentation adopted in other countries and on the basis of American experience in the last war, was made by James C. Downs Jr., president of Real Estate Research corporation, in an address before the Chicago Real Estate board.

Continuation of the war abroad will help real estate, he said. He indicated that he believes peace will slow down business and thus would adversely affect real estate.

Analyzes War Psychology.

In commenting on the effect of present business improvement on real estate conditions, Downs said: "There appears to be little or no actual basis for the present rise in industrial activity and price levels except the purely psychological feeling over the nation that war activity soon will create a shortage of materials and men.

"Most of the activity in the Chicago area at present has resulted from increase in domestic orders by industries and firms which wish to anticipate requirements based on their fear of higher prices and shortages due to war orders.

"On Saturday, Sept. 9, there was no sugar in any of the main retail stores in Park Ridge. The same attitude which caused the housewives to anticipate their sugar needs is responsible for the present business activity.

Realty Is Now Benefiting.

"Whatever the cause, however, real estate is benefiting substantially by the increased employment and resultant higher occupancy in the city's buildings. Sales activity in real estate likewise has been stimulated by hundreds of buyers who have determined to own homes or real estate in anticipation of higher prices which may result from inflation."

Downs said that at present there appears to be no basis for a rise in interest rates because idle funds in federal reserve banks are at all-time peaks and gold continues to pour into the country.

"It is probable, however, that capital demands, brought about by a lengthened continuation of the war, would increase interest rates on a broad enough scale to affect real estate.

"Any person who contemplates erection of a home or a building would be wise to proceed to do so as quickly as possible in order to participate in the benefits of present construction costs and attractive interest rates."

BELL SAVINGS OCCUPIES NEW LOOP QUARTERS

The Bell Savings, Building and Loan association will occupy its new quarters on the second floor of the 30 North La Salle building tomorrow morning. It moved yesterday from 208 West Washington street.

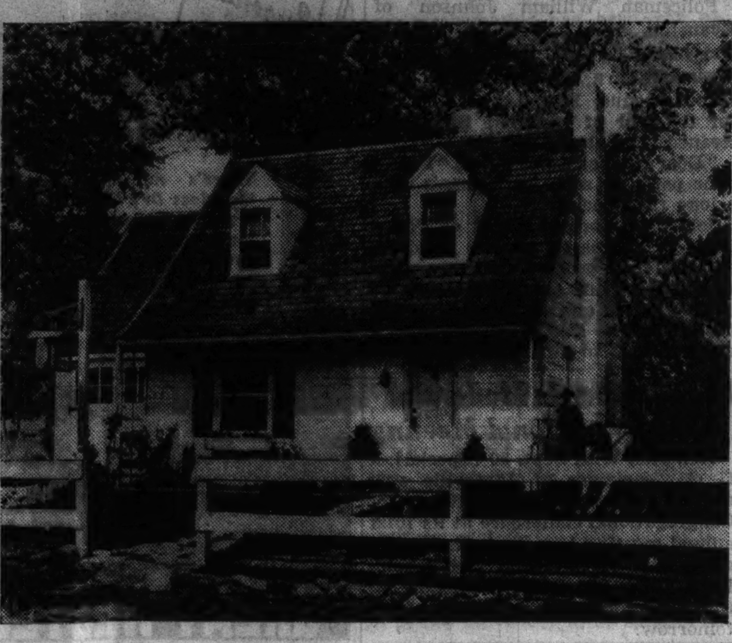
Although all business of the association will be transacted at once in the new quarters, the formal opening is to be announced for a later date when the work of remodeling and modernization is completed. This has been under way for about three months.

When finished the association quarters will be as modern and efficient as those of any other financial institution on La Salle street, according to Arthur G. Erdmann, president.

BUY SIX FLAT BUILDING.

Oskar Lay and Oskar Bock bought the six flats at 906-08 Lakeside place, for an undisclosed price, through John T. Wheeler & Co.

Replica of Eastern House in Ivanhoe



This six room house, a replica of 300 built in the east, is being erected at 14415 South Michigan avenue, in the Ivanhoe section of Riverdale, by Edmund J. Sullivan, south side builder. The owner is H. S. Davidson. It is of concrete masonry, with concrete floors and joists. The construction is reported to cost $6,450 and the lot $850. It will be heated by a warm air furnace fired with an automatic coal stoker. It was designed by Robert Charles Martin, a Philadelphia architect. It is scheduled for completion during the first week in November. The builder expects to erect several more homes of this type in the Chicago area shortly.

State Realtors Observe Real Estate Week with Convention

Illinois will have a "real estate and home owners' week" beginning today and lasting until Oct. 7. A state-wide program of publicity, drawing attention to the value and utility of Illinois real estate in general and home ownership in particular, has been planned under the chairmanship of Jules F. Fisher of Evanston, a former president of the Illinois Association of Real Estate boards.

The outstanding feature will be the annual convention of the association at the Fort Armstrong hotel, Rock Island, Oct. 4, 5 and 6. Chicago and suburban realtors will take an active part in the three sessions.

Chicagoan Is Chairman.

George Schneider Jr., president, will preside. Leo G. Varty of Chicago is convention chairman. Mrs. W. H. Wright of Oak Park is business manager of the association and will preside at a "rapid fire quiz" next Friday morning.

Other realtors to attend from the Chicago metropolitan area are Newton C. Farr, who will speak on property management, and David L. Montonna, whose subject is appraising. Lee O. Littleford of Downers Grove will speak on "Practical Ideas for Farm Sales," and H. A. Campbell of Elgin will have as his subject "Letting the People Buy What They Want."

Alice Whitehead of Wheaton, secretary of the Du Page County Real Estate board, will speak on "How a Woman Sells Homes." Joseph Thorsen of La Grange will tell "What a Salesman Should Know About Appraising."

Nelson Will Speak.

Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the National Association of Real Estate boards, will discuss European housing. He will also speak at a meeting of realtors, homeowners and village officials at an "All North Shore" meeting tomorrow noon in the North Shore hotel, Evanston. It will be held under the joint auspices of the Evanston Chamber of Commerce and the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board as a part of the observance of "real estate week."

In Oak Park, realtors will take part in a "real estate week" program at the Oak Park Arms hotel tomorrow noon under the chairmanship of John Schaefle.

New 4½% Rate on HOLC Sales Goes Into Effect Tomorrow

Beginning tomorrow all homes owned by the Home Owners Loan corporation will be sold on contracts carrying a 4½ per cent interest rate instead of the previous rate of 5 per cent.

Otherwise, HOLC terms will remain the same as formerly, according to F. B. Bourland, state manager of the HOLC in Illinois. Homes can be purchased for a down payment as low as 10 per cent, he said, with the balance amortized over periods as long as 15 years.

Explains What It Means.

"This will be one of the best contracts home buyers ever have been offered," Bourland said. "It means that a homeseeker with a comparatively small amount of cash can pay off a $3,000 balance in 15 years by monthly payments of $22.95. A $4,000 loan can be paid off at the rate of $30.60 per month—that is, $7.65 for each $1,000 of his loan.

"Under the HOLC regulations homes can be sold only at fair market prices; none of them will be sacrificed to make a sale. But all represent sound values and most of them have been repaired and modernized to place them in the best possible shape to attract home seekers."

Sales Exceed Expectations.

When HOLC sales contracts are completed, arrangements are made for the payment of all taxes and assessments on a monthly basis, to eliminate the difficulty and cost of tax delinquencies, Bourland said.

"HOLC sales already have exceeded expectations," he said. "Two thousand homes have been sold in Illinois during the last nine months. The reduction in the HOLC interest rate to 4½ per cent should prove a decisive factor in speeding sales in the future."

The Illinois office has sold 4,500 properties since the inauguration of its liquidation program.

SELL HOMESITES IN BUSSE COUNTRY ESTATES PROJECT

Five homesites of approximately three-quarters of an acre each have been sold in the Busse Country Estates development, near Mount Prospect, and will be improved with residences this fall and winter, it was said. The Busse subdivision comprises 25 acres at the northeast intersection of Busse and Golf roads. This is one block south of the Mount Prospect Country club.

According to George L. Busse, treasurer of the Busse Realty association, owner of the land, not only is the land highly restricted but nearly 500 acres in the vicinity, owned by various interests, also are similarly restricted.

The land fronts 828 feet on Golf road and 1,255 feet on Busse road. It has electricity and sewers, but neither water system nor gas. Water is supplied by individual wells.

$29 Per Month Incl. Interest and Moderate Down Payment pays for this home in a little over 11 years.

VALERIA HARRIS IS MARRIED TO J. H. SYMINGTON

Ceremony Is Performed in St. James' Church.

BY JUDITH CASS.

In one of the most beautiful ceremonies ever witnessed in St. James' Episcopal church Miss Valeria Harris, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Bartlett Harris, yesterday became the bride of James Huntington Symington of Baltimore, Md. The wedding was as unusual as it was beautiful, for the bride and bridegroom repeated their wedding vows in clear tones without prompting from the Rev. Dudley S. Stark, who officiated because of the illness of the Rev. Duncan Browne, rector of the church.

After the service Mr. Symington and his bride and their attendants retraced their steps up the long center aisle slowly, with all the dignity that characterized the processional, instead of rushing the way most brides and bridegrooms do when they leave the church.

Green Hedge Flanks Altar.

The church was comfortably filled, but not crowded. Nearly all of the guests arrived well in advance of the hour set for the wedding, 4:30 o'clock, to enjoy the beauty of the setting and the organ concert.

A high green hedge flanked the altar on either side, and before the hedges stood ten giant white candles. Green box hedges ran the width of the church at the entrance to the sanctum, and before them, on either side, stood two enormous bouquets of gold and bronze chysanthemums. A row of evergreens stood under the gold organ pipes, and high over the altar three magnificent stained glass windows admitted the waning afternoon light.

Blending with these gold and green tones were the golden yellow gowns of the bridesmaids and the bouquets of rust and gold chrysanthemums they carried. The maid and matron of honor wore similar gowns in darker shades, and all wore elbow length rust colored gloves to match their small hats trimmed with ostrich plumes.

Bride Wears Mother's Gown.

The bride made an exquisite picture in her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin with its "dog collar" and bertha of rosepoint lace. More of the lace trimmed the shoulder and the cuffs. Her veil was of Brussels lace, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley identical to the one Lina Small carried when she became Mrs. Harris 32 years ago.

Mrs. Harris was escorted to her seat by both of her tall sons, Lincoln Small Harris and Huntington Harris. She looked nearly as radiant as the bride in a floor length gown of golden brown, a small hat to match, several sable skins, and orchids.

Following a reception at the Harris apartment, 20 East Cedar street, Mr. Symington and his bride left for a motor trip west. They will be at home after Nov. 15 at Hillcroft, Forest, Va. The bridegroom is a son of the late Judge and Mrs. W. Stuart Symington of Baltimore.

Janet Herriott Wed to N. B. Swift.

Miss Janet Herriott was married to Nathan B. Swift in a quiet ceremony at 12:30 o'clock yesterday. The wedding took place in the apartment of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Herriott, in the Drake hotel, and was witnessed by members of the immediate families. The Rev. Leason Sharpe officiated.

The bride wore a charming gown of silvery gray crêpe with a draped halo of matching material, and carried a muff of gardenias. Her sister-in-law and only attendant, Mrs. Irving Herriott Jr., wore orchid crêpe and orchids and a little ostrich feather hat to match. Mr. Swift, son of Mrs. Alden Swift, had his brother-in-law, Paul Rowan, as best man. Following a motor trip, Mr. Swift and his bride will be at home in Dearborn parkway.

Buckingham Fountain Gives Its Last Display of Season

Buckingham fountain gave its final full color display of the season last night. Tomorrow the park district will start encasing and storing the intricate piping and lighting system for the winter.

PAIR ROB HARDWARE STORE.

New City police were looking yesterday for two robbers wearing handkerchief masks who took $75 from Manager Joseph Stransky in a hardware store at 2551 51st street.

PRESTON BOYDEN AND POLLY CHASE REMARRY IN N. Y.

Dispatches from New York yesterday told of the remarriage there of Mrs. Polly Chase Boyden and Preston B. Boyden, both members of old Chicago families. Mrs. Boyden is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase of Lake Forest and a niece of Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and of Mrs. Cecil Barnes. She and Mr. Boyden were married the first time in 1919 in a fashionable ceremony in St. Chrysostom's church. Mrs. Boyden obtained a divorce in Paris in 1930, and since then has lived in the east with their three children. She and Mr. Boyden, a son of the late William C. Boyden, will live in Chicago and are expected this week at the Ambassador hotel.

BEAUTY DECREES ANKLE SHRINKING AND PINK KNEES

A new beauty treatment, known as ankle shrinking, will be demonstrated in the Hotel Sherman tomorrow when the American Cosmeticians' National association opens its 20th annual convention.

The new short skirts demand "leg appeal," Miss Frances Martell, association secretary, said, and the beauty technicians are ready to supply it. They will show how to reduce both ankles and calves, and how to enhance the appeal of the finished product by rouging the knees.

More than 8,000 beauty shop owners and operators from 35 states, Canada, Hawaii, and Alaska are expected to attend. Among the new hair styles to be introduced are the bustle bob and the swirling dervish, whatever they may be.

Mayor Welcomes National Grandmothers Club to City

Mayor Kelly issued a statement yesterday welcoming to Chicago the National Grandmothers club, which will meet here today and tomorrow. The mayor praised the grandmothers, who come from 28 states, for their contributions to the progress and welfare of America. "Their greatest honor lies," he concluded, "in the fact that they have been mothers of sons and daughters who have enriched America with children of their own."

FIVE ACCUSED OF FEDERAL FIX FREE ON BONDS

All five defendants indicted Friday by the federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy in an alleged case fixing racket were free yesterday on bonds of $1,500 each. The defendants include two former assistant United States attorneys, Daniel D. Glasser and Norton I. Kretske, who are accused of accepting bribes to fix alcohol tax cases.

The others named are Attorney Alfred E. Roth, 5528 Kenmore avenue; Anthony Horton, colored, 111 East 47th street, a bondsman, and Louis Kaplan, 3152 Ogden avenue, described as a peddler of illicit alcohol. They were said to have been go-betweens.

Attorney Roth yesterday said he had incurred the enmity of federal alcohol tax agents because of his vigorous defense of accused liquor law violators. He said he had evidence of attempted subornation of perjury by government agents and demanded that United States Attorney William J. Campbell appoint a special prosecutor to present to the grand jury evidence in his [Roth's] possession.

NOW YOU KNOW WHY POLICEMEN USE SUSPENDERS

Policeman William Johnson of Evanston, who weighs 275 pounds and has a 50 inch waist, went yesterday into a tailor shop at 1575 Maple avenue, Evanston, and asked for the pair of pants he left to be cleaned several weeks ago.

"Dear me," said the tailor, "I gave your pants to some policeman's wife a long time back."

Johnson informed Chief of Police Charles F. Paasch of the incident, and the chief ordered that all policemen inspect one another's trousers.

"If you see one with tucks around the waist," he said, "Johnson and I want to talk to him."

AFTER 40 WHAT?
YOU CAN FACE THE 40's, 50's, 60's—AND MORE WITH UTMOST CONFIDENCE IF YOU WILL SAFEGUARD YOUR HEALTH . . . . BE EXAMINED

THERE are glorious years ahead for healthy men and women "after 40." Time for travel . . . time for vacations . . . time to really enjoy life. Don't let ill health cheat you out of these years. Let modern medicine protect you against the physical handicaps which so frequently . . . tragically prevent their realization. With increasing age come increasing problems of health. Vital organs of the body begin to show the strain of years after forty, but it may happen much earlier . . . especially if they have been weakened by contagious diseases of childhood. These are degenerative diseases, best known to you as . . . heart trouble, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, kidney trouble, arthritis, diabetes, et cetera. While they have increased over fifty per cent during the past thirty years and take a greater toll than all other diseases combined . . . they are not inevitable . . . if early precautions are taken. Protection is comparatively simple . . . be examined! A complete physical examination will disclose the beginning of these troubles long before any outward sign appears . . . it will discover the presence of other diseases, such as cancer, tuberculosis and syphilis, which also present serious barriers to life after forty. In either case early discovery and prompt medical attention are your greatest protection.

These examinations, if complete and fully protective, will require knowledge and training in all fields of medicine . . . they will require X-ray studies, X-ray pictures and various medical laboratory tests to provide an accurate record of your physical condition. Once this is recorded, periodic check-ups will safeguard your health. Before the organization of a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE, these services were more expensive than the average person could afford . . . as a result only the well-to-do could receive this protection. Founded by one of the country's foremost pioneers in the fight to reduce the high cost of medical and surgical care . . . this institution has the knowledge and facilities for providing diagnosis and adequate treatment in all fields of medicine and surgery. A competent and experienced staff of specially trained physicians supported by one of the finest X-ray departments in the middle west . . . a complete medical laboratory, and other medical equipment help to make this possible. The costs for all services are as low as is consistent with responsible medical practice.

Nearly every case of syphilis can be cured if treatment is begun during the first six months of the disease. Old syphilis is more difficult to cure, but proper treatment will prevent the disease from getting worse. Here at a United Medical Service examinations and treatment are rendered by physicians specially trained and experienced in this highly specialized field of medicine, yet the costs are lower for their services than elsewhere.

Treatment, intravenous or intramuscular injections for syphilis $1.00

President Hutchins [top] as he appeared when he came to the University of Chicago and [below] as he appears today.

He is no longer the "boy president" of 30. His hair is now touched with gray and he is junior only to five of the 30 president members of the Association of American Universities.

Somewhat saddened by the educational outlook in this country, and his own experience, he is determined to persevere in establishing what he believes to be a sound basis for intelligent living, either personal or social, through the cultivation of the intellect, the return to the "lost heritage" of classical education.

Discusses His Experiences.

He discussed yesterday his own education as administrative head of a $60,000,000 educational plant, how he was compelled to adopt the theories which he advocates, and which have rattled the dry bones of education throughout this country.

"I may not see the adoption of this educational program at the University of Chicago in my lifetime," he said. "But sometime we may have a type of education that produces people fit to be citizens of the kind of country we would like to have."

Dr. Hutchins' own plan of education, based on the study of a hundred of the greatest European and American books, is being experimented with at St. John's college in Annapolis, Md., of which he is chairman of the board of visitors and governors. The plan is only partly in effect at the University of Chicago.

Faculty Has Final Say.

"You must remember that I do not own the university," he explained. "I can only try to persuade the faculty and trustees to do what I think is right. If I don't succeed, that is final. Each faculty has sole jurisdiction over educational matters in its department.

"There are three things in education: Organization, method and subject matter. As to organization in the university, my ideas have been carried out in full. As to method, my recommendations have been adopted in principle in the method of comprehensive examinations, abolition of the credit system, no compulsory attendance in classes. This is a method of helping each student get his education under his own steam.

Subject Ideas Not Followed.

"As to subject matter, my own course in books and the course in education which Mortimer Adler and I have been asked to give are reflections of my views. There are some reflections of these views in the college courses, but in general the courses of study are not an approximation even of what I recommend, although there is a gradual tendency in that direction.

"It did not look like this when I was appointed in 1929. I was young and completely uneducated [he was dean of the Yale law school at the time], but unaware of it. I assumed that everything was lovely, that we would all work together for the higher life. But it did not work out that way.

"In a few weeks there was a market crash and the financial problem became uppermost. We had to cut costs $1,500,000 a year. I have never been free of the financial problem. When does a university president get time to think? In his odd moments he may write little essays, and that is all.

Which Way to Go?

"In attempting to meet practical administrative situations I had to try to figure out what we were trying to do. In order to do that I had to try to educate myself.

"To see things in context so as to fit a scheme, we must have a scheme; in order to have that we have to know what we are trying to do. I was swamped at first.

"Another thing was the relative futility of doing anything in the higher levels until we had laid a good foundation. High grade specialists cannot talk to each other. It affects the country, this having no common understanding of important common problems.

Must Know End in View.

"Finally, I have been impressed that the old confidence in the mere collection of facts, data, information, would have to be very much modified. I used to think that the main thing was to get the facts and that understanding would follow. It doesn't work that way. All the social data put on cards and run through hullers will not solve social service problems. You must know the end you have in view.

"The whole problem of standards struck me forcibly. I became interested in how we arrive at a scale of values, rather than the mere collection of data. The pressing problem, I think, is not material, but moral and intellectual, not to be solved by the accumulation of data. We must make our philosophy intelligible and, if possible, intelligent."

Explains His Philosophy.

As to what his educational ideas are, Dr. Hutchins says they are very simple.

"The St. John's program is the core of education I favor. It begins in junior year in high school and ends in sophomore year in college. The problem at the University of Chicago, however, goes through junior and senior years into professional work.

"A boy may express a desire to be a carpenter. Later he may change his mind, or there may be no carpenter jobs. He is also a citizen. It is just as silly as the decision of a boy of 6 to be a doctor. Many doctors don't know anything but medicine and many engineers are totally uneducated. I favor education for everybody, doctor, carpenter, engineer, newspaper man. I am against the curse of too much specialization.

Can't Solve Practical Problems.

"The university cannot solve immediate, practical problems, such as marriage, international relations, depressions. Throw out the trade school idea. The so-called coöperative plan in technological schools is interesting, and may be of value if it keeps vocational subjects out of the curriculum. Otherwise it is more narrowing.

"St. John's is an interesting attempt. It is confronted by the situation that every college confronts, that is that high school students can't read or write. We have to equip them with the tools of work before we begin. But the Marylanders are eating it up and we have started three freshman classes now. With a youthful faculty hastily gathered, with the material at hand, and a bad financial situation the result is nothing short of startling."

As a solid basis for democracy, Dr. Hutchins says that each man must have his measure of liberal education, since choices can neither be free nor intelligent without relevant training and understanding.

There is much of mathematics, for St. John's has more required mathematics than any other liberal college in the country, also more required laboratory work.

A four year laboratory in science and mathematics has been set up, backed by training in mathematical techniques and symbolisms. This provides the material and intellectual background for the modern study of humanistic and social science. The great books are the original teachers, interpreted by the faculty. The aim of the teaching is the production of good intellectual and moral habits which provide the basis for human freedom and which may be used in any of life's activities or specialties.

MARY LEE DOVE.

One hundred sixty very young persons were entered in the contest to decide the champion baby of the Woodlawn golden jubilee celebration. Last night the finals were held in the Lex theater at 1162 East 63d street and Mary Lee Dove, 3 years old, won the title. She is the daughter of James Dove, 6620 Kimbark avenue. Mrs. Lottye Randall was chairman of the contest.

$1,000,000 LEFT TO A UNIVERSITY BY EX-PROFESSOR

Los Angles, Cal., Sept. 30 [Special].—An estate of more than $1,000,000 was bequeathed to Johns Hopkins university under the will of Dr. John Martin Vincent of Pasadena, retired professor who died a week ago at the age of 81.

The will provides that the residue of Dr. Vincent's $1,500,000 estate shall go to the university after specific bequests to relatives have been satisfied.

Steel Company Official and Wife Holdup Victims

Abe J. Clonick, president of the Clonick Steel company, 1475 South State street, and his wife were held up last night by two bandits in the automobile driveway of their home at 451 Aldine avenue and robbed of $170 and a diamond ring valued at $3,000. The robbers were waiting when the Clonicks drove up. Clonick told police that he believed the bandits had trailed him and his wife from a loop hotel.

12,000 BURNERS OF MIDNIGHT OIL BACK IN SCHOOL

Chicago Evening Colleges Show Amazing Growth.

An estimated 12,000 working men and women started night courses in Chicago colleges last week. Their subjects range from writing for radio to advanced psychiatry for social workers, and from spring flora to the mathematics of investment and insurance.

Night education is not new in Chicago, but it has grown so fast that its place in the adult thought of the city may surprise those not familiar with it. From an enrollment of 225 in 1909, when Northwestern university started a school of commerce with downtown evening courses, the number of night students has increased by about 4,800 per cent in the Chicago area.

In 1928, for example, Northwestern opened a university college offering a general college education for men and women who work in the day time. That year 285 persons enrolled. Today 2,641 are enrolled in the same institution. From less than 50 colleges offering night courses in the United States in 1928, the number in a decade has grown to about 160.

These colleges offer working Chicagoans as complete an advanced education in evening classes as nonworking college students can get in the daytime—with the exceptions of advanced medical and dental training. Among the subjects covered are art, anthropology, biology, chemistry, economics, education, English, geology, geography, history, languages [ancient and modern], literature, mathematics, music, philosophy, political science, psychology, religion, sociology, speech, writing, and hundreds of subdivisions of these and others.

The principal institutions in Chicago offering such night courses are Northwestern university, the University of Chicago, Loyola university, De Paul university, Y. M. C. A. college, Lewis institute, Armour Institute of Technology, and others giving law, business, or specialized training.

Students Usually Are Mature.

Night colleges are conducted as separate institutions principally because the type of students who go to them differ on the whole from ordinary college students. They usually are more serious and mature. Actually many of them are successful men and women in business or professional life, and the instructors discuss subjects with them as man to man rather than as teacher to pupil.

Many of the students return year after year for more education. At Northwestern's university college, for instance, 85 per cent of the students who take night courses are studying for a bachelor of arts degree. This usually takes nearly eight years, or twice as long as in a full-time day college, but some hard working students accomplish it in six years.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 30.—An errant toe, not one of their own but the property of the enemy, kept Wisconsin's Badgers in the rôle of victor this afternoon as they unveiled themselves for the 1939 season. Melted down by a forward passing touchdown barrage turned loose by Marquette's Hilltoppers in the last few minutes of play, the Badgers rallied long enough to hurry and thus render futile a kick which carried the tying point. The kick missed the target, leaving a final score of Wisconsin, 14; Marquette, 13.

The Badgers, seemingly unable to swing into serious action because of the doggedness of their foes, were denied the privilege of including any heroics in their season's inaugural. They scored early by taking to the air and soon thereafter were sent into a daze by the deed of a youth named Jim Richardson, who grabbed a punt and didn't stop until he had traveled eighty-five yards to the Badgers' goal. Helped by a Marquette fumble, the Badgers passed themselves back into the lead in the second period and there they remained, but always under pressure.

Murray Prevents Touchdown.

Marquette, except for the Richardson dash and the aerial lightning touched off in desperation just before the close, had only one other real opportunity to score on the team it has whipped only twice in fourteen meetings. In the third period, when the two teams surprised 29,000 spectators with a series of plays which enabled them to confine the battling to a spot the size of a dime for about ten minutes, the Hilltoppers finally got close enough to toss a touchdown pass, but the threat vanished when Center Jack Murray swarmed on the ball as it was sailing over the goal line.

In registering first downs the Hilltoppers fashioned a slight edge of eight against seven. The Hilltoppers also did a bit better than their enemy in the air. They threw sixteen and completed six. Wisconsin threw fourteen and hooked up on four of them. But the Badgers intercepted four tosses and lost none of their own through enemy vigilance. The Badgers fumbled twice against five by

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Chicago's Maroons aroused but not quite awakened the spirit of a lost era in Midway football on historic old Stagg Field yesterday with a gallant goal line stand and a final minute rally steeped in the best traditions of Eckersall, Steffen, and Des Jardiens.

In the end, however, order was restored by Roy Thomas, a chunky guard, who pulled out of the Beloit line to batter down a short pass on the goal line on the last play of the game, thus assuring the Wisconsin collegians of a 6 to 0 victory on a third period touchdown. A gathering of approximately 5,000, mostly Boy Scouts and school children guests of the Maroons, saw the game contested under beaming skies.

Score on Sixty-two Yard March.

After a scoreless first half, in which the fortunes of both teams fluctuated with the consistency of their punters, Eddie May, a fleet colored half back, sent Beloit into the lead with a two yard smash that ended a sixty-two yard drive through struggling Maroon defenders. Otis Andrews, another half back, missed the kick for extra point, but no one attached any importance to the failure. Beloit appeared to have found itself and the Maroons appeared to be just the Maroons.

Beloit pressed on. Another score seemed imminent. But three times some little thing went wrong, and the Maroons found surcease in fleeting moments on the offense. One of these reprieves came on Full Back Bob Howard's interception of Glen Johnson's pass on Chicago's 12 yard line.

But John Davenport fumbled on the first play and Paul Giloth, a sophomore end, recovered for Beloit on the 10 yard line. A holding penalty moved Beloit back fifteen yards, but May immediately went on one of his rambling excursions and wound up on the 5 yard line. Loyll Plinske, a

Bradley Holds Illinois to Scoreless Tie

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 30.—Illinois opened its football season at 2:30 p. m. today with mixed feelings of optimism and foreboding. By 4:45 o'clock the optimism had vanished and the foreboding had darkened into black pessimism. For Illinois, which must face some of the strongest teams of the country this fall, was held to a scoreless tie by Bradley Tech of Peoria.

When the Illini began a march from their own 31 yard line in the first quarter, the home town crowd of 12,000 beamed with satisfaction. The folks weren't a bit disturbed when the Illini lost the ball on the Bradley 21 yard line. That first advance had been so easy that they felt sure many more would come before the game was over.

They Were Half Right.

They were right about that. Many more opportunities did come in the course of the afternoon, but Illinois wasn't able to do anything with them. One by one the chances slipped away while the crowd's confidence faded to anxiety and eventually to dismay.

Things came to such a pretty pass that Bradley was actualy taking the offensive in the last seven minutes when Kenneth Olson returned a punt from his own 45 yard line to the Illinois 28. Though the visitors lost that chance, they threatened again.

With only three minutes to go, Olson intercepted a pass and was downed on the Illinois 36 yard line. Instead of playing safe and being content with its chances for a scoreless tie, Bradley then went right out to try to win the game with passes. The rest of the engagement was a series of interceptions until Illinois completed a fourth down pass on the Bradley 40 yard line as the last whistle sounded.

The Fans Keep Hoping.

Even after the Illini followers realized that their boys were going

HUSKERS' RALLY TIES HOOSIERS IN LAST TWO MINUTES OF PLAY

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 30.—Indiana university's Hoosiers, who had to celebrate their homecoming today because their next six games are abroad, left a satisfactory memory with 18,000 of their public by outplaying a big University of Nebraska team in a battle which ended in a hair raising 7 to 7 tie.

From their deportment this afternoon the Hoosiers, who have become identified as "those pore little boys," may well be known as those bad little boys before the conference season is ended. Their alertness against a Nebraska team which appeared sluggish until the last four minutes of play enabled them to take a 7 to 0 lead which endured until the 58th minute of the game.

145 Pound Zimmer Stars.

Harold [Red] Zimmer, a 145 pound redhead who was attempting to fill the shoes of three allegedly abler right half backs who had been lost or slowed down by injuries, turned in one of the grandest jobs of the day. Red dashed off 43 yards on the opening kickoff and repeated on the opening kickoff of the second half. Ten plays and 4½ minutes later, Full Back Joe Tofil charged over the Nebraska goal line. Eddie Herbert, who had directed play during this march, place kicked the extra point.

Then with only four minutes to go the Huskers came out of their coma and started a passing barrage in which Roy Petch, the Husker quarter back, and Herman Rorhig, left half, clicked so well that they finally brought the ball to Indiana's one yard line. Here again the Hoosiers distinguished themselves, throwing the Huskers back to the six yard line before they ultimately were deceived by a double reverse which sent Walt Luther over. Luther also was a factor in Nebraska's fifty three yard march to the saving touchdown. Rorhig place kicked the tying point.

Last-Minute Counter Rally.

Pirates Make Frisch Pilot for Two Years

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 30 [Special].—Frankie Frisch, who left the baseball wars after the 1938 season to talk about the game from a Boston broadcasting booth, will come back as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates next year.

Announcement that the man who managed the Cardinals for six seasons will succeed Harold [Pie] Traynor was made early tonight by William E. Benswanger, president of the Pirates. He said Frisch will sign a two-year contract in New York, probably on Tuesday, when he will confer with Benswanger and Traynor at the major league player draft meeting.

It Was Expected.

As early as last May, when the Pirates were bogged down in the second division, there were rumors that Frisch would succeed Traynor as manager. Traynor announced his resignation Thursday. He will remain with the Pirates in some other capacity.

Although the Cardinals lost their steam under Frisch's direction in 1938 when they finished sixth, he was credited with instilling the spirit into the club that made it famous as the Gas House Gang. His teams reached their crest in 1934 when the Dean brothers, Jerome and Paul, were at their height. With the Deans, Joe Medwick, Leo Durocher, Pepper Martin, and Frisch himself sparking the Cards, they defeated the Tigers in the 1934 world series.

Cubs Spoil His Dreams.

In 1935, Frisch saw his chance to repeat with the Cards fade away when the Cubs put on their famous September drive which netted them 21 straight victories and the pennant. In 1936, the Cardinals and Cubs tied for second place and the following year the Cards finished fourth as the Deans started to decline.

Frisch retired as an active player after the 1936 season. He spent a major league career dating from 1919 with only the Giants and Cardinals.

CUBS LOSE, 7-5; THEN WIN FROM CARDINALS, 5-1

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs were dunked into fourth place in the National league yesterday when they blew the first game of a double header in Wrigley field with the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 5. Big Bill Lee pitched the Cubs to a 5 to 1 victory over assorted St. Louis substitutes and rang up his nineteenth favorable decision in the second game but the accomplishment failed to lift the Chicagoans back to third, inasmuch as Brooklyn swept a double-header with Philadelphia.

Unless the Cubs recover third place by winning this afternoon while the Dodgers lose two to the Phillies, they will finish lower than in any season since 1927. If the Cubs win their single game with the Cardinals and the Dodgers split their double-header with the Phillies, the Dodgers and Cubs will divide third and fourth place money. If the Cubs lose, the Dodgers will have to lose two to give the Cubs a tie for third and fourth money.

FIRST GAME

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 30.—Write the name of John Charles Kelleher alongside those of Marty Peters and Bill Hofer in the annals of Notre Dame football. For this afternoon Kelleher, a senior and fifth team quarter back last season place kicked from Purdue's 15 yard line in the third period and the Irish whipped the Boilermakers, 3 to 0.

Kelleher's successful kick drove home Notre Dame's 300th gridiron victory as the Irish opened their 51st campaign. The goal the senior quarter back arched over the cross bar from a slight angle to his right eventually proved as important as the 3 points Peters kicked on this same field to whip Pittsburgh in 1935 and the field goal by Hofer that defeated Northwestern last fall, 9 to 7.

40,000 Crowd Sets Record.

Kelleher's success was emphasized, for as the first half ended the Irish had failed to score by the same weapon. Lou Zontini, kicking with the ball on Purdue's 10 yard line, missed the target in the second quarter.

Forty thousand gathered in Notre Dame's buff brick stadium, setting a new attendance record for opening games. They saw two hard charging lines successfully defend their goal lines, but Purdue's forwards gave way momentarily after seven minutes of the third quarter before the individual brilliance of Zontini, Steve Sitko and Joe Thesing.

Except for this opening, in which the Irish linked together two first downs to make possible Kelleher's field goal, neither team threatened by steady attack.

Irish Varsity Stops a Drive.

In the fourth period, from deep in their own territory, the Boilermakers finally moved to midfield with three first downs, but that start was against a second Notre Dame line. It was smothered when the varsity rushed to the rescue. This futile sortie did enable Purdue, however, to tie Notre Dame in total first downs.

Sitko started the scoring advance when he brought back Jack Brown's punt eighteen yards down the east side line to Purdue's 34. Then Zontini took charge. After losing a yard at defensive right guard, Lou shot through center for ten yards and plunged again for a first down on Purdue's 21 yard line.

After Purdue's time out, Thesing took the ball on a reverse and plunged down the west side of the field, bowling over Brown in the secondary and driving on past the clutching hands of Lou Brock before he was driven out of bounds on the Boilermakers' 5 yard line.

Then Comes the Kick.

The South Siders, with several members of the 1938 championship cast which played in Mayor Kelly's all-city game missing, will appear against St. Rita in St. Rita field, 63d street and Claremont avenue.

Although the squad lost several leading players through graduation, Coach Wally Fromhart, former Notre Dame quarter back, and the team are confident they will make another appearance in the city title game and avenge the 13 to 0 defeat at the hands of Donald Griffin and the Fenger team, champions of the Public School league, before 80,000 last year in Soldiers' field.

Fenwick of Oak Park, defending titleholder in the north section, which lost to Mount Carmel in a close battle in the league title game, opens its schedule against St. Patrick in Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue.

Two other games will be played on the west side. St. Mel opposes St. George of Evanston in a new athletic stadium at Roosevelt road and Central avenue, and St. Ignatius will meet Loyola academy in St. Philip stadium, Van Buren and Albany streets. The Loyola-St. Ignatius game will be the nineteenth of their series which started in 1911. Loyola has won 10, St. Ignatius five and three contests ended in ties.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 30 (AP).—The University of Illinois trustees voted today to increase membership of the athletic association's board of directors from five to seven.

Athletic department officials said the two new members would be Charles M. Thompson, dean of the college of commerce, and Milton M. Olander, Toledo, O., business man, Illinois alumnus and former coach. Thompson, representing the faculty, and Olander, representing the alumni, were named on the recommendation of President A. C. Willard.

Hornsby, Wilson Seek Hollywood Manager's Job

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 30 (AP).—Hollywood baseball club officials today received two new applicants for the managerial job of the Stars. Rogers Hornsby and Hack Wilson applied for the berth, Vice President Bob Cobb disclosed. The club hasn't decided whether to hire a new pilot or keep Wade Killefer, whose contract has another season to run.

Red Kress of Detroit, Frank Shellenback of the St. Louis Browns' coaching staff, and two Hollywood players, Babe Herman and Bill Cissell, are among the applicants. Cobb said the matter would not be decided for several weeks.

Stop Beloit at Goal.

There was a huddle, some back slapping, and a roar from the Maroons. Linemen dug in and backs moved up, Plinske was held for no gain. On fourth down, May raced up to Chicago's left tackle, where he had found room to scamper all afternoon, but this time he was piled up under his own interference and a group of beleaguered Maroons. The Scouts whistled, the school children hooted, and here and there among the adult trade some old Maroon beamed down on the field with a wistful look. This was old time Chicago stuff.

The illusion endured through the next four minutes. But there is always an ending and yesterday's came on the 5 yard line where the Maroons' one big drive of the day, a seventy-five yard advance in thirteen plays, cracked up after time had expired. Louis Letts passed seven yards to Davenport. Davenport went twelve yards around end. Letts lost nine and ten yards, respectively, on consecutive attempts to pass, then fired one twenty-two yards to Russell Parsons, a senior end. This made it fourth down and seven.

Chicago Rally Nearly Succeeds.

Beloit expected a punt, but Letts passed twenty-four yards to Parsons. There were two five yard penalties on the Maroons for too many times out, then there was a twenty-five yard pass, Letts to Parsons, putting the ball on the 15 yard line. Davenport skirted end for six yards. But three passes failed, the last one as the gun sounded. Beloit was offside on the play and there was a delay while the field was cleared and Chicago given one more chance. Davenport raced wide to the left, fired the ball, and as two Maroon receivers reached for it in the end zone, Thomas battered it down.

Chicago can attribute its failure to beat Beloit for the first time in history as much to its inability to tackle efficiently as to the impulse that told Thomas to pull out of the line and turn half back. May, Johnson, and Plinske, Beloit's big ground gainers, drove, danced, and skipped through the arms of tacklers time after time, when a firm grip would have hauled them down for a loss. This was especially true of the touchdown march.

May-Plinske Offensive.

May got the winning drive under way with successive six yard gains. Plinske popped through the center of the line for nineteen yards, shaking off Maroons as he went. He repeated for six, then May swung wide to the right and cut back for eight. Plinske sliced inside the Maroons' left tackle for 16 yards, placing the ball on the 7 yard line. May got four at tackle, Plinske added two, and May went over.

Chicago's passing combination of Letts to Parsons and Bob Wasem, who played the entire game, enabled the Maroons to make a respectable showing in the statistics, accounting for 137 yards. With the 57 gained by rushing, the Maroons had a total of 194 against 277 for Beloit, which completed only one pass for a gain of eleven yards. The Maroons attempted 17 passes and connected with eight. Beloit's superiority lay in its better blocking and tackling, the mastery of which enabled the invaders to overcome an obvious handicap in size. Beloit piled up 13 first downs against the Maroons' 10.

CHALLEDON WINS TO BECOME 1939'S EARNINGS LEADER

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 30 (AP).—Challedon, the pride of Maryland, celebrated his return to his native state today by scoring an easy victory in the $15,000 added Havre de Grace handicap to become the leading money winning horse of the year.

The five length triumph that W. L. Brann's big bay colt registered before a closing day crowd of 18,000 brought him $13,200 and boosted his 1939 earnings to $164,010, compared to $152,225 for C. S. Howard's Kayak II., his nearest rival.

Running on a track made muddy by overnight rains, Challedon covered the mile and an eighth in 1:52 3-5.

Pitt Batters Washington on Passes, 27 to 6

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 30 (AP).—Pittsburgh's Panthers, who traveled the 2,600 miles from Pittsburgh to Seattle by plane, took to the air again today, completing 12 of 18 passes for a 27 to 6 football victory over the University of Washington Huskies before 25,000.

The Pitt aerial circus took command in the first five minutes and never was headed. Dick Cassiano, only remaining member of Pitt's strong 1938 backfield, and Ben Kish, 200-pound quarterback, led the attack.

Pitt Starts on Its Way.

After Washington took the opening kickoff and punted, Pitt started on its 31 yard line and interspersed long ground gains with passes to travel sixty-nine yards, the scoring play being a twenty yard pass from Emil Narick to Joe Rettinger.

Partly blocked punts by John Dickinson led to Pitt's second and fourth touchdowns. Dickinson recovered one on the Husky 44 yard line in the second quarter, and Cassiano went over nine plays later. In the final quarter Dickinson blocked another punt in the end zone.

Washington Captain Scores.

The final Pitt score came in the last quarter. Center Dick Fullerton set it up with a 44 yard pass interception, running to the Husky 9 yard line. Cassiano passed to Kish for the score. Rettinger converted twice, Kish once.

Washington marched from the Pitt 46 yard line for a score in the third quarter with Captain Don Jones and McAdams making most of the yardage. Jones scored from a yard and a half out.

OREGON BATTLES SO. CALIFORNIA TO TIE SCORE, 7-7

Trojans Forced to Rally to Gain Deadlock.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept 30 [Special].—A surprisingly strong University of Oregon football team today held the University of Southern California to a 7 to 7 tie here before 45,000 awed fans. U. S. C. had been 4 to 1 pregame favorite.

Doyle Nave, U. S. C.'s Rose bowl famous quarter back who saved the Duke game last New Year's day, again rescued the Trojans when he fired a pass to Full Back Bob Peoples in the middle of the last quarter for the Trojan touchdown. Nave played most of the game despite pre-season opinion that he would be little used because a marked man, and varied his passing with expert running.

Oregon scored in the last 30 seconds of the second quarter, after Joe Graybeal, 158 pound left half back, set up the scoring opportunity with two brilliant runs and an accurate pass. Bob Smith, substitute full back, tossed a 16-yard pass to John Berry for the score.

Both teams successfully converted.

STANFORD LOSES, 12-0.

Palo Alto, Cal., Sept. 30 (AP)—Oregon State college, ranked a pre-season contender for the Pacific Coast conference football championship, established itself as a challenger today with a 12 to 0 victory over Stanford before a crowd of 20,000.

Superior blocking, better choice of plays and a solid running and passing attack produced touchdowns for Oregon State in the first two periods.

Stanford turned in a loosely played game. Its aerial sorties generally failed to function, and ground plays often found the line men tangled with the backs.

PACIFIC, 6; CALIFORNIA, 0.

Berkeley, Cal., Sept. 30 [U. P.].—Little College of the Pacific achieved probably its greatest football success today by beating University of California, 6 to 0, adding another triumph to Amos Alonzo Stagg's long career as a football coach.

It was the second game of a football double header undertaken by California. In the first game University of California defeated California Aggies, 32 to 14.

In the final game Stagg's men fought the Bears to a standstill and in the third quarter marched from the California 46 yard line to the 5. There Bob Adamina threw the winning touchdown pass to Doug Smallwood.

ANDY K. WINS; JOHNSTOWN TO BE PUT IN STUD

Bimelech, owned by E. R. Bradley, was withdrawn because of the muddy track, and the race lost much of its lustre for the crowd of 15,000. Similarly the late withdrawal of Johnstown dimmed the Lawrence Realization, won by Mrs. Payne Whitney's odds-on favorite, Hash.

William Woodward announced that Johnstown had been withdrawn permanently from racing and that he would go to Arthur B. Hancock's Kentucky stud.

"Johnstown has not been altogether himself since the Dwyer," Woodward said of his fine 3 year old, the winner of the Wood Memorial, Kentucky Derby and Belmont stakes this year.

to accumulate no glory, their hopes were continually being perked up by a series of marches which earned eighteen first downs to two for the opposition. The Illini followed up that first advance to the Bradley 21 yard line with another to the 10. In the second quarter they went from the Bradley 39 yard line to the 16 and a few minutes later from the 25 to the 5, only to fail again.

They continued the march to nowhere in the third quarter, going to the Bradley 24 yard line before losing the ball. Again taking the ball on their own 13 yard line, the Illini charged to their opponents' 17 as the fourth period began, only to lose possession when an attempted lateral went wrong. They showed to good advantage again by working a succession of reverses, mixed with passes, to go from their own 27 yard line to the Bradley 40 before faltering.

Reverse Gains Yards.

The running play which the Illini found most successful was a reverse in which the full back, George Rettinger or Cliff Peterson, as the case might be, handed the ball to the left half back, Jimmy Smith or Chuck Purvis. While this was going on, the left side of the Bradley line was being drawn out of position or knocked off its feet, leaving the Illini left half back an opening big enough to admit an American Legion float.

Illinois' closest approach to a touchdown occurred in the second quarter after Purvis had returned a punt ten yards to the Bradley 25 yard line. Peterson failed to gain, then Purvis went through center to the 10 yard line. Purvis then hit the line for two yards, threw a pass that failed, and made three more yards off tackle. On fourth down Don Elting tried to get around end but was stopped without gain.

Illinois attempted twenty-two passes and completed seventeen for a net gain of twenty-nine yards. Bradley made good on three out of six for eighteen yards net.

CARROLL BEATS NORTH CENTRAL COLLEGE, 25 TO 7

Carroll college defeated the North Central football team, 25 to 7, yesterday in Naperville. Carroll scored in the second, third and fourth quarters and outplayed the Naperville team throughout.

North Central scored its touchdown in the third quarter when Bill Shatzer threw a 30 yard pass to Fred Gillogly, who stepped out of bounds on the one yard line. On the next play Shatzer scored around left end and also kicked the extra point. Carroll opened the second quarter with a steady drive from North Central's 45 yard line which ended when John McGrath drove over for the first score. Another drive at the beginning of the third quarter ended with another Carroll touchdown scored by Bob Jacobson.

Bill McDonald scored the third touchdown shortly after the fourth quarter began.

Cubs Split with Cards; Drop to 4th

ing third on Herman's single. Galan popped to Brown but Leiber scored Hack with a sacrifice fly to Pepper Martin.

The Cards went ahead with two unearned runs after two were out in the third inning. After Cooper and Brown had supplied infield outs, Gutteridge singled to center and stopped at third on Slaughter's double to right. Mattick fumbled Medwick's bouncer, Gutteridge scoring. Slaughter got home on Mize's single to right.

Cubs Go Ahead in 7th.

From the third to the home seventh neither side threatened. With one out, Mancuso doubled to right for the fifth Chicago hit and went to third on Slaughter's faulty throw past second. Gleeson batted for French and walked after which Mancuso scored on Hack's sacrifice fly to Pepper Martin, Gleeson reaching second on the throw to the plate. Then Herman singled to center, scoring Gleeson and breaking the 2 to 2 tie.

Whitehill took over the pitching chore in the eighth and Medwick started things by beating out an infield hit. Mize grounded to Russell, but Pepper Martin walked. Herman fumbled Owen's grounder for one error and erred again by making a bad throw past first after recovering the fumble. Medwick scored the tying run on the second error.

Cards Assault Whitehill.

The Cards showed their old time dash in knocking out Whitehill in the ninth and continuing against J. Russell for four runs. After Cooper struck out, Brown, Gutteridge, and Slaughter hit successive singles. J. Russell came in and Medwick was safe when Mattick dropped Herman's throw, Gutteridge scoring. A walk and another single scored two more runs.

The Cubs had the solace of knocking out Cooper in their half, although they fell two short of a tie with the bases filled. Cavarretta started the rally with a single. Herman doubled, and Galan and Leiber walked after Hack flied out. Shoun came in and fanned Pinch Batsman Reynolds but was taken out in favor of Bowman when Russell walked to force in Herman. Then Mattick forced Russell.

SECOND GAME

The Cards made their only run in the first inning of the second game. Lake opened with a single to center, but was forced by Gutteridge. Slaughter walked, and the bases were loaded on Mattick's fumble of Medwick's grounder. Gutteridge scored while Mize was forcing Medwick.

In their half of the first inning the Cubs scored two runs without a hit and added a third on the only hit of the inning. Sunkel walked Hack and Herman, then Galan fanned. After Hack stole third Leiber walked, loading the bases. Hack scored while Lake was throwing out Nicholson, after which Herman scored on a wild pitch. Hartnett singled to right, scoring Leiber.

The Cubs added two more in the fifth on some hits and one thing or another, although three Cubs struck out.

GALENTO SAID TO BE IN DANGER OF LOSING ONE EYE

Newark, N. J., Sept. 30 (AP).—The Newark Ledger tonight said Tony Galento, number one contender for the world's heavyweight boxing title, was threatened with blindness in one eye.

"Tony," said the Ledger, "is ready to risk his sight for another title bout with Joe Louis and the big purse it would mean. He has been told that such an attempt might be disastrous. The eye condition is reported as a result of the Louis fight and aggravated by the long battle with Lou Nova. An operation might save the sight and little hope is held out for the sight in it if he doesn't submit. He has preferred so far to say 'No' to all advice because such an operation might kill the lucrative contracts he has."

Galento was reported to be "resting" in the Pocono mountains.

ROBERT LACKEY, FORMER COACH OF ILLINI, DIES

Robert A. Lackey of 224 South Marion street, Oak Park, coach of the University of Illinois football team in 1891, died last night in the Garfield Park hospital. At the time of his death Lackey, 70 years old, was vice president and general manager of the Payson Manufacturing company.

Under the direction of Lackey, who came to Illinois after his graduation from Purdue university in the spring of 1891, the Illini eleven won five straight games after losing its opener to Lake Forest, a game which later was awarded to Illinois by forfeit to give the 1891 squad a clear record.

While at Purdue he was captain of the 1890 baseball and football teams.

VANDERBILT PASS IN FINAL SECONDS BEATS RICE, 13-12

Houston, Tex., Sept. 30 (AP).—Vanderbilt whipped Rice at its own aerial game tonight, 13 to 12, with Junior Plunkett, the Commodores' great back, throwing the clinching second touchdown pass to Roy Huggins seven seconds before the game ended.

WHITE SOX LOSE TO BROWNS, 5-1; THEN WIN, 7 TO 5

Retain Only Slim Chance to Finish Third.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 30 [Special].—The White Sox hopes for a clear claim to third place in the final American league standings were snuffed out today when the Browns won the opening game of a double header, 5 to 1, behind the six hit pitching of Roxie Lawson. The Sox won the second game, 7 to 5, but the best they can do now is to finish in a tie with the Indians.

If they are to gain a tie with Cleveland the Sox must beat the Browns in their final game of the year tomorrow while the Indians are losing a double header to the Tigers.

Lee Is Battered.

Thornton Lee was the victim in the opening game this afternoon, the Browns bunching six hits in the third inning for all of their runs. Johnny Marcum replaced Lee at the start of the fourth and held St. Louis scoreless.

Jack Knott and Clint Brown did the hurling for Chicago in the second game, while Manager Fred Haney used three pitchers. Roy Hanning, who pitched for Springfield, Ill., of the Three-Eye league this summer, started on the mound for the Browns and held the Sox hitless until the fifth, when he was pounded hard.

The Browns' victory was the first they have scored over Chicago in St. Louis this year.

FIRST GAME

The Browns got five runs in the third inning after one was out. Berardino beat out a hit to deep short to start it and Lawson singled to right, Berardino stopping at second. Heffner got a hit off Lee's shins, filling the bases. Hoag struck out, but McQuinn singled to left, scoring Berardino and Lawson. Laabs doubled off the right field screen, scoring Heffner and McQuinn, and Clift singled to center scoring Laabs. Solters forced Clift, Appling to Bejma, to end it.

Tresh bounced a hit off Clift's shins to open the seventh and Marcum singled to right center, sending him to third. Bejma hit into a double play, Heffner to Berardino to McQuinn, Tresh scoring, and Kuhel popped to Heffner.

SECOND GAME

With two out in the first inning of the second game, McQuinn hit his twentieth home run of the season on top of the right field pavilion. Laabs doubled to center and Clift flied to Kreevich.

McNair was safe on Berardino's fumble to open the second inning. Walker fanned and McNair stole second on the pitch. Rosenthal popped to Clift. Then Berardino let Schlueter's grounder go through for an error, scoring McNair.

Chicago's big fifth inning opened with a single by Rosenthal. Berardino fumbled Schlueter's grounder, Rosenthal stopping at second. Knott bunted and, when Hanning's throw to third trying to force Rosenthal was late, every one was safe, filling the bases. Bejma got a double when Laabs slipped going after his fly, scoring Rosenthal and Schlueter. Kuhel singled to center, scoring Knott and on the throw in Kuhel was caught off first, Bejma scoring.

Gee Smashes One.

Solters doubled to center to open the home seventh. Spindel singled to deep short. Berardino singled to right center, scoring Solters. Harshany batted for Kramer and popped a single back of first, scoring Spindel.

Neighbors ran for Harshany and Brown replaced Knott for Chicago. McNair threw out Lucadello, Berardino scoring and Neighbors moving to second. Sullivan and McQuinn grounded out to Kuhel.

GREENTREE WINS WATERBURY CUP IN POLO FINAL

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Tommy Hitchcock lead Greentree's polo four to a 10 to 8 victory over the Texas Rangers today in the final match for the Monty Waterbury cup, emblematic of the high goal handicap championship of the country.

Bob Skene, the Australian star, at No. 2 for Greentree was the outstanding factor in his team's victory, scoring four of his team's 10 goals. Texas took a 3 to 0 lead in the first period on two goals by Wrightsman and one by Smith and still led at the half-time, but Greentree clicked in the fifth and sixth periods to take command.

Sophomores carried off scoring honors as Northwestern's varsity rolled up a 44 to 0 victory over the freshmen in one half of regulation play before 6,000 spectators in Dyche stadium yesterday. Four of the seven varsity touchdowns were made by newcomers.

The game was limited to one half because of light freshman reserve strength. The second half consisted of an intrasquad game in which varsity teams competed against each other.

Kepford Scores Twice.

Ike Kepford and Floyd [Tuffy] Chambers, sophomore rivals for right half back, turned in some of the best ball carrying performances of the game, the former scoring the first two touchdowns of the game on runs of 68 and 60 yards while the latter broke loose for a number of long runs, one of which was for forty-four yards.

Two more sophomores, Bill De Correvont, former Austin star, and George Benson of Hammond, figured in the scoring. De Correvont made runs of twenty-one, fourteen, and ten yards but it was a seven yard smash off tackle by which he scored the third touchdown of the game.

De Correvont suffered a cleat wound on his lower left leg during the contest and afterward went to the Evanston hospital for treatment. The injury was reported to be a minor one and he was released after it had been dressed. He is expected to be ready for the opening game with Oklahoma next Saturday.

Varsity Line Smothers Frosh.

Paul Soper, a rival of De Correvont's for left half, looked impressive both as a runner and passer. He arched a thirty-five yard pass to Jim Smith, colored end, for a touchdown, and scored another on a ten yard sprint around end. Francis Purtell, reserve full back, scored the final touchdown of the game on a two yard plunge after De Correvont had passed fifteen yards to Don Kruger, sophomore right half.

Ollie [Red] Hahnenstein was used sparingly because of a foot injury received in practice during the week. He got away for several runs of fifteen and twenty yards before being replaced by De Correvont.

YANKS HEAVY FAVORITES IN WORLD SERIES

New York After Fourth Straight World Title.

Reds Optimistic

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 30 (AP).—Twenty pounds underweight, but recovering fast now that his boys are in, Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds is choosing his words very carefully when he talks about the world series starting next Wednesday against the New York Yankees.

"Now don't expect me to make any fire eating predictions," said the deacon today. "But I will say this much: The Yankees are a long way from being a super team. Every club in their league has beaten them this year, and I think I have a lot better team than most of them in that league."

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The annual world series baseball act with a slight change in the cast since a year ago is about to have its fleeting moments on the stage. While the cast has been altered, it's the same old plot—the Simon Legree Yankees chasing the National league's Elizas over the ice.

The Cincinnati Reds will be the poor Elizas, a rôle essayed last fall by the Cubs who were tracked down in four games. The Yanks may not do it that quickly in the impending performance, but when they assemble on their stadium turf in New York on Wednesday they undoubtedly will have a fair idea that if they can't do it in four games they'll do it in six, thus establishing for themselves another series record of four world titles in as many years.

Cards Last to Win.

The National league should be getting pretty tired of it all—not having taken one of those titles since the Cards skinned the Tigers in 1934.

The Yanks of this year may not be as steady as the Yanks of last year, or they may be as good or even better. A slight change for better or worse doesn't make much difference in the prospective outcome. They're still good enough to run away from their own league, which isn't an easy circuit, and that should be good enough to whip an entry from the National league, which seems to be going through one of those makeover periods. The National league is paying for its shortsighted policy of collecting what the other major circuit casts off.

Anything can happen in a short series, but there is no consolation in this possibility for the National league. The Yanks are good enough to offset whatever bad luck might do to them in one spot or another. But perhaps the National leaguers, who can't be blamed for grasping even at straws, see some hope in the supposed shakiness of the Yankee pitching staf. It's not safe to count on this alleged weakness as an opening through which the National might sneak to victory.

Pearson Turns in Masterpiece.

It is readily recalled that exactly a year ago the dopesters, trying to figure a way in which the Cubs might have a chance, pointed to the uncertainties of Joe McCarthy's pitchers. Outside of Charles Ruffing and Lefty Gomez, the Yanks had nothing, at least that was how the experts figured. What happened? After Ruffing and Gomez had won at Chicago the scene shifted to New York and McCarthy pulled the unexpected by starting Monte Pearson. The former Indian hadn't been considered because of an ailing arm. But he came up with the choicest pitching effort of the series, beating the Cubs, 5 to 2, on five hits.

This is typical of the Yankees, not only in their world series, but regular season play. There's always somebody able to fill a gap whether it is pitching or hitting. For the opener this time McCarthy undoubtedly will depend on Ruffing, winner of the fourth as well as the first game last fall. As Lefty Gomez has been none too steady he may not draw the second day assignment, as he did a year ago, but McCarthy probably isn't worrying about that. He still has Oral Hildebrand, Irving Hadley, Atley Donald, and Steve Sundra, in addition to Pearson. Any one of these might come through, even if the Yanks should happen to have one or two of their rare attacks of batting feebleness.

Reds Have Two Steady Pitchers.

The Reds can lay claim to only a pair of steady pitchers and a defense of that sort isn't the kind to pit against the Yanks' batting power. For the first two games Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds will have no choice other than Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters Conceding that both are excellent mound workers, will they be at their best or will they show the result of carrying the Reds to a pennant almost without assistance from other members of the staff?

The Reds have a couple of left handers—Johnny Vander Meer and Lee Grissom—and the Yanks can be slowed down by southpaws, but they must be good. Both these lads have been extremely wild. That's all the Yanks need. A wild pitcher has to ease up to locate the plate, and that's the kind of a pitch the Yanks knock out of the park. The Reds also have their distance hitters, but even in this respect are outnumbered by 3 to 1.

And the big item will be poise on the ball field. A world series for the Yanks is just that many more ball games. For the Reds it will be a big event after a strenuous race in which they revealed a chronic case of defensive jitters. You can't make errors in front of the Yankees and escape paying the price.

In this park the world series will open Wednesday with the Yankees once again representing the American league and the Cincinnati Reds the National league. The Reds clinched the pennant on Thursday by beating the Cardinals, 5 to 3, bringing the first league title to Cincinnati since 1919.

Serious Bill McKechnie, who pulled the Reds through in a hotly contested National league race, knows he faces another tough task against the Yankees. From McKechnie's expressions while directing a game it can be gathered that winning the pennant in itself was no easy chore. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

[This is the first of a series of three stories on the city series between the Cubs and White Sox. The city series opens Wednesday night in Comiskey park.]

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox, major league champions of Chicago, Wednesday night will play the Cubs in Comiskey park in the first game in defense of the title they won in four out of seven games in 1937. For the first time in many years the Cubs will not have their familiar alibi, that they are suffering from fatigue as a result of a pennant drive in their own league. Neither the Sox nor the Cubs has been a real pennant contender all year. Both, however, have been regular first division performers.

Johnny Rigney, who has won consistently under the lights and in afternoon competitions this year, will open for the Sox, and Larry French will start for the Cubs.

Sox Probable Favorites.

The Sox probably will enter the series a favorite. And for several reasons, not the least of which is the fact that they have been able to whip the Cubs even when they had had teams which were pitiful in American league competition. This year, on the basis of the teams as they stand, without the confidence induced by precedent, the Sox should win because they have a stronger, brisker team.

The Sox will be just as well directed as the Cubs. Manager Jimmy Dykes has infinitly more executive poise than Manager Gabby Hartnett possesses. He has more experience than Hartnett and will not be in sackcloth and ashes because his team did not win the American league pennant. Unless umpires drive him crazy Jimmy probably will show up Gabby on strategy.

Best Sox Team Since 1916.

The Cubs will face the best Sox team they have met since 1916 [no series were played in 1917, 1918, 1919, and 1920]. The Cubs have not won a series since 1930, when they took four out of six games. Since 1920 the Sox and Cubs have played a dozen fall series. The Sox have won eight of the twelve, including the last four. Of the twelve series since 1920 the Sox have swept three. In 1921 they won five games to the Cubs' none, in what could have been a nine game series. In 1933 and 1936 the Sox won four straight.

The opener will be the first Sox-Cub night game. Both teams, however, have had a great deal of experience in night play. The Cubs have been playing at least one night game a year since 1935 when the arc idea was introduced in Cincinnati. This year they have played three night games. The Sox never played under the lamps until this year, but this season have played eight, seven of them since Aug. 14. Manager Hartnett has never played a night game, and has said he never will. This means that Gus Mancuso will do the catching in the series opener, and in the sixth game, which also will be played at night if the series goes that far and weather permits.

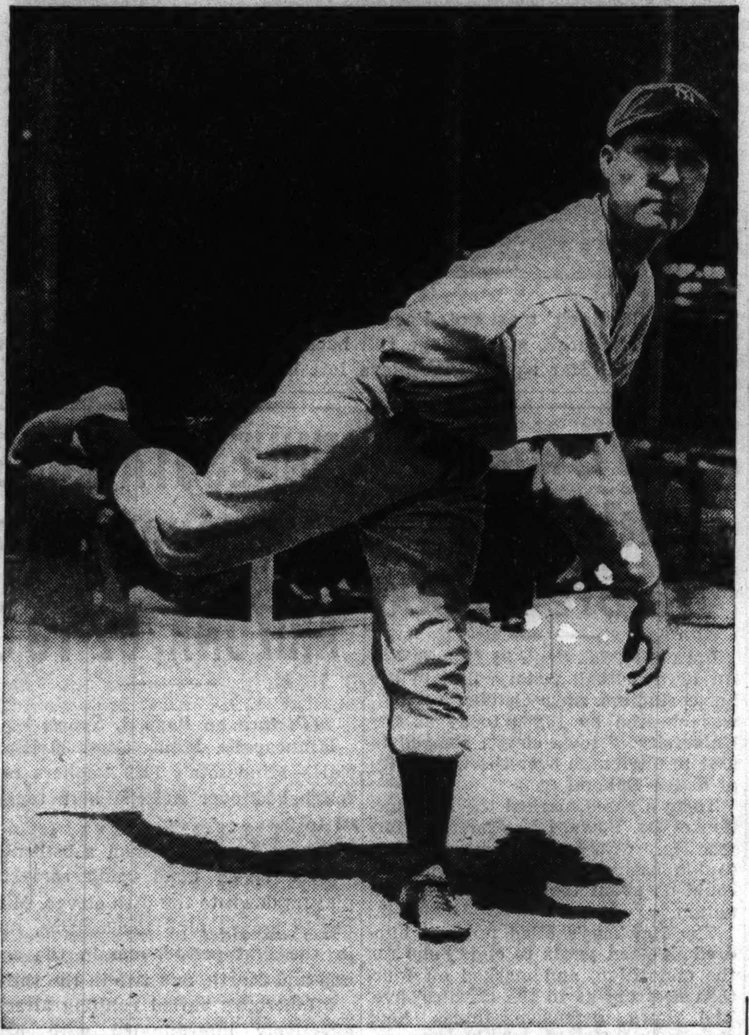
Same Schedule as World Series.

The series will be conducted on the same schedule as the world series. The first two games will be played in the American league park, the next three in the National league park, and the others, if any, in the American league park.

It will be the 22d series since the feature was begun in 1903. The Sox have won 15 and the Cubs five. The first series was a tie, each team winning seven games.

Greenviews to Meet Red Sox in Niles Center

The Chicago Greenviews will play Scotty Krier's Red Sox in a Midwest league game at Oakton park, Cicero avenue and Oakton street in Niles Center this afternoon. The contest will start at 2:30 o'clock.



In picking a starting pitcher for the Yankees observers lean to Red Ruffing who won 21 games while losing 7 for a .750 percentage. While trailing Atley Donald's percentage of .830 on 13 won and 3 lost, Ruffing is the choice since Donald is reported to have lost his fast ball.

Notre Dame Beats Purdue on Field Goal

goal line stand. Bob Saggau went wide to his right but he couldn't clear Dave Ranking, Purdue's left end, and failed to gain. Then Zontini tried the other side, but Lavern Johnson, who played a crashing game all afternoon, chased him back for a five yard loss.

Then Kelleher came from the side lines to replace Sitko. On third down Kelleher sent Thesing at Purdue's left tackle. Thesing gained a yard and placed the ball in kicking position on Purdue's 9 yard line. On fourth down, Kelleher went back to the 15 and, with Zontini holding, kicked the winning points.

Kelleher is the son of Bill Kelleher, who played half back for Notre Dame in 1913 and 1914. He is the first son of a Notre Dame football man to gain prominence in the sport. Young Kelleher was unlisted in his sophomore year. Last season he finished with fifth ranking among the quarter backs. Now he is one step behind Sitko, but, like that veteran, he is a senior.

His Dad Played with Elward.

The elder Kelleher was a team mate of Purdue's coach, Mal Elward, who played end for the Irish in 1913, 1914 and 1915.

For one fleeting second in the final quarter Purdue threatened to snatch victory from Notre Dame's confident men. An exchange of kicks sent the Irish into Purdue territory only to fail narrowly of a first down, after which Milt Piepul kicked into the end zone for a touchback.

On the second play Mike Byelene shot through guard, side stepped the first line of defense and raced twenty yards. One more stride and he had a clear field, a certain touchdown and victory, but in that fraction of a second, Piepul came up from behind with a diving tackle to fell the slender half back.

Irish Varsity Halt Drive.

John Galvin, sophomore left half, followed with an 11 yard pass to Paul Liebrecht, substituting for Leon Dewitte, at full back. This brought the Irish regulars to the field but before they stopped the rally, Byelene had sent a ten yard pass to Rankin for a third consecutive first down on Notre Dame's 37 yard line. There the drive ended as Galvin lost six yards at left end and on fourth down he had to kick.

Notre Dame's chance for a field goal in the second period came because of the accuracy of Saggau's kick and alert coverage by Bill Kerr, left end. Saggau, kicking from his own 40 yard line, dropped the ball on Purdue's 10 from so great a height that Galvin, at safety, stepped aside. As the ball bounded toward the end zone Kerr sprinted in past Brock and grounded the ball one foot from the goal line.

Brown kicked out and Sitko returned sixteen yards to Purdue's 18 yard line. Three plays advanced eight yards and were followed by Zontini's unsuccessful field goal.

Passing Attacks Fail.

Most apparent difference between the teams was in the blocking for passers. While Notre Dame failed to complete a pass and one was intercepted, the record still was better than Purdue's. The Boilermakers completed two passes for twenty-one yards, but two were intercepted and more important, its passers were chased back and thrown for heavy losses on at least three occasions.

On successive pass plays in the third period after Notre Dame had scored, Brown lost twelve yards and Galvin fourteen as the Irish forwards rushed them.

Notre Dame didn't play John Gubanich, regular guard. Brock, although handicapped by an ankle injury, divided service with Byelene. Brown was slightly injured in the second half. Statistics follow:

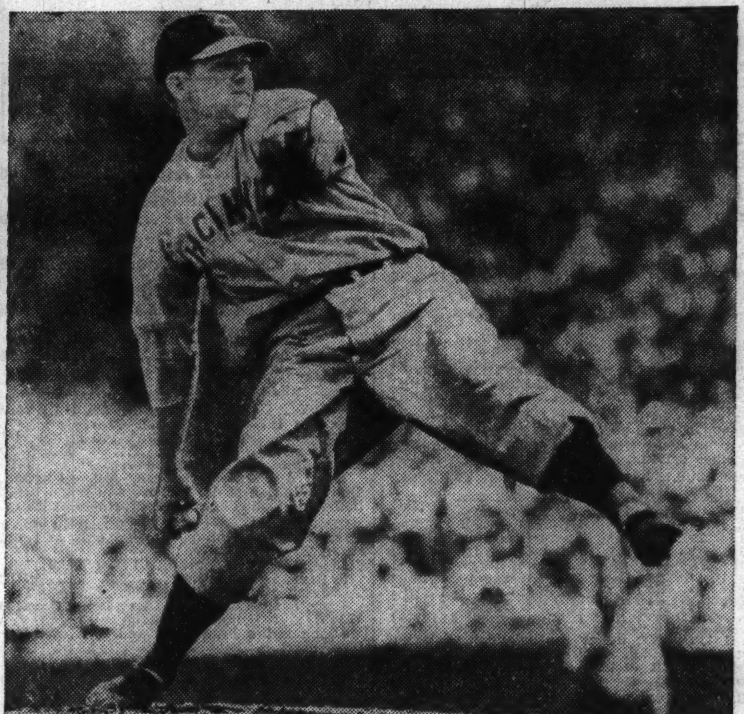
Reds Seek Fans' Help in Fight on Ticket Scalpers

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 30 (AP).—Following announcement that two ticket brokers planned to open an office across the Ohio river in Covington, Ky., General Manager Warren C. Giles of the Cincinnati Reds today appealed to purchasers paying more than the established price for world series tickets to notify club officials.

With the section and seat number of the tickets, Giles said, "We can tell within a half hour to whom that ticket was originally assigned."



The pitching arm of Paul Derringer carried the Reds to 25 victories while losing only 7, and on the basis of his .781 percentage, he is the logical choice to open for the Reds in New York. His teammate, Bucky Walters, won 27, losing 11, for a .716 percentage.

Set Date for C.Y.O. Boxing Title Matches

At a special meeting of the C. Y. O. boxing committee plans were made last week to hold the ninth annual C. Y. O. Christmas Fund boxing tournament.

The championship matches will be held on Wednesday night, Nov. 29, in Chicago Stadium. Arrangements are now being made for preliminary bouts in the various sections of the city and the suburbs. Sectional matches are expected to start the first week in November. Boys winning sectional titles will advance to the semi-finals. Victors in these contests will qualify to take part in the title bouts in the Stadium on Nov. 29.

Tom O'Connell, boxing director of the C. Y. O., has sent out 6,000 entry blanks. Boys desiring to compete may obtain entry blanks at all parishes, parks, and playgrounds. The tournament is open to all boys who are 16 years old or more. Simply fill out an entry blank and mail it to the C. Y. O. boxing department, 31 East Congress street.

CENTRAL STATES HAVE BIG FIELD TRIAL SCHEDULE

Section Becomes Center for Sporting Dogs.

BY BOB BECKER.

Sportsmen and dog fanciers in the central states who like to watch hunting dogs work on live game won't have to travel far from home this fall to see some of the best trained field dogs in the country. So many field trials for the sporting breeds are scheduled for the central states this fall that it's going to be a problem for the outdoor and sporting breed fan to attend all of them.

There is no part of the United States developing the field trial game as rapidly as the central states. This is especially true of the retriever trials, which have grown so rapidly that it has the boys down east much worried. Here is a partial schedule of some of the most interesting dog events coming up during the next few weeks:

Offers Use of Grounds.

Next Saturday and Sunday the English Springer Spaniel Field Trial club of Illinois holds its annual fall trial on the F. L. Bateman estate west of Barrington. Mrs. Walton Ferguson Jr. of Fairfield, Conn.; Arthur Welch of Milwaukee, and Glen Dundore of Plainfield will judge the trial, with Mrs. Ferguson, noted field trial judge and sporting dog authority, acting as the senior judge of the open all-age stake on Sunday.

F. L. Bateman of Barrington has offered the club the use of more than 100 acres of ideal field trial ground for this springer test. Several eastern springers are expected to compete in the open all-age stake on Sunday in addition to a large entry from Chicagoland and midwestern kennels. The public is invited to attend this trial and watch the springers work on live game. Details of the trial and entry blanks may be obtained from Charles Goodall, 745 Chicago avenue, Downers Grove, Ill.

Central States Meet Oct. 28.

On Oct. 14 and 15 the Midwest Field club will hold its annual fall trial for all retriever breeds. The F. L. Bateman farm west of Barrington also will be the scene of this trial, according to Ferd Bunte, president of the club. The West Suburban Hunting Dog club, Inc., has scheduled its fourth annual trial for that same week-end. A springer spaniel stake will be one of the events on the program.

The springer spaniels step into the field trial spotlight again on Oct. 28 and 29 when the Central States club holds its annual field trial at Northbrook, Ill. Harry I. Cæsar of New York and Ferd Bunte of Chicago have been chosen to judge the trial. On the following week-end the cocker spaniels take over the field trial game in the annual trial of the Cocker Spaniel club of the central states.

OTHER GAMES TODAY.
New York at Washington.
Brooklyn at Philadelphia.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Changed in every respect except uniforms and record, the Chicago Cardinals make their seasonal debut before hometown well wishers in Soldiers' field tonight. Their opponents will be the unbeaten Detroit Lions, who, like the Cardinals, have undergone almost a complete change from coaching staff to personnel. It will be the second meeting between the teams and the game will be one of four scheduled in the National Football league today. The kickoff has been set for 8:30 o'clock.

Other games bring the champion New York Giants and the Redskins together in Washington, pit Brooklyn against the Eagles in Philadelphia and pair Cleveland and the undefeated Packers at Green Bay in afternoon engagements. The week-end schedule will be completed tomorrow night in Pittsburgh where the Bears face Coach Johnny Blood's courageous Pirates.

Four Make Chicago Debuts.

Four members of this year's Chicago Tribune All-Star game will be making their first appearance as professional players before Chicago spectators. They are Marshall Goldberg and George Faust of the Cardinals, and Howie Weiss and Johnny Pingel of Detroit. Goldberg and Faust are the chief reasons why the Cardinals expect to reach the .500 mark by beating Detroit for the first time in history. But it will not be surprising if the hero of the contest is Bill Smith, a veteran Cardinal, whose play at end in three games this year has equaled any performance in the memory of the league's oldest coaches.

Goldberg, however, is an important factor in the Cardinals' plans. His accomplishments in Pittsburgh last Sunday, where the Cardinals beat the Pirates for their first victory, fired the players with an enthusiasm entirely foreign to the squad in the last five seasons. They see in Goldberg the running back they have lacked and are prepared to go the limit for the former Pittsburgh Panther.

Birlem Will Be Watched.

Another newcomer who will be watched closely by the more rabid Cardinal adherents is Keith Birlem, a rookie. He will start at left end. Birlem, a graduate of San José college, was signed as a quarter back. When Gaynell Tinsley was released and other ends failed to meet expectations, Birlem was transferred. It was to be temporary, but has turned out to be permanent.

Detroit brings to Chicago its new offense, a combination of single wing back, the Notre Dame system and sleight of hand, designed by the Lions' new coach, Gloomy Gus Henderson. It is not highly regarded by football men. They respect its deception and possibilities against a team seeing it for the first time, but have an idea it can be stopped easily thereafter. This adds an interesting sidelight to tonight's contest. The Cardinals faced the Henderson razzle-dazzle in their opening game and lost 21 to 13.

Detroit players are sold on the offense and also on their line coach, Hunk Anderson, and his tactics. Anderson, former head coach at Notre Dame, and now an automobile parts salesman in Detroit, has given them more worthwhile instruction on line play than any other coach in professional and college football, they say.

Lions Now Air Minded.

Steady and perceptible improvement over their showing in the season opener in Detroit has given the Cardinals new hope and they enter tonight's game surprisingly optimistic. Better line play, the return of Faust, who was injured in Detroit, and Goldberg's readiness to assume a star's share of the offensive, have left them quite confident.

Detroit, on the other hand, beat the Cardinals without the use of Henderson's famed aerial attack. The Lions took to the air for the first time last week and with Pingel doing the passing, triumphed, 27 to 7, over Brooklyn. Pingel's chief assistants on the offense will be Bill Shepherd, Lloyd Cardwell and Fred Vanzo, while in the line the Lions will introduce to Chicago Ray George, a tackle from Southern California, and John Wiethe, a guard from Xavier in Cincinnati.

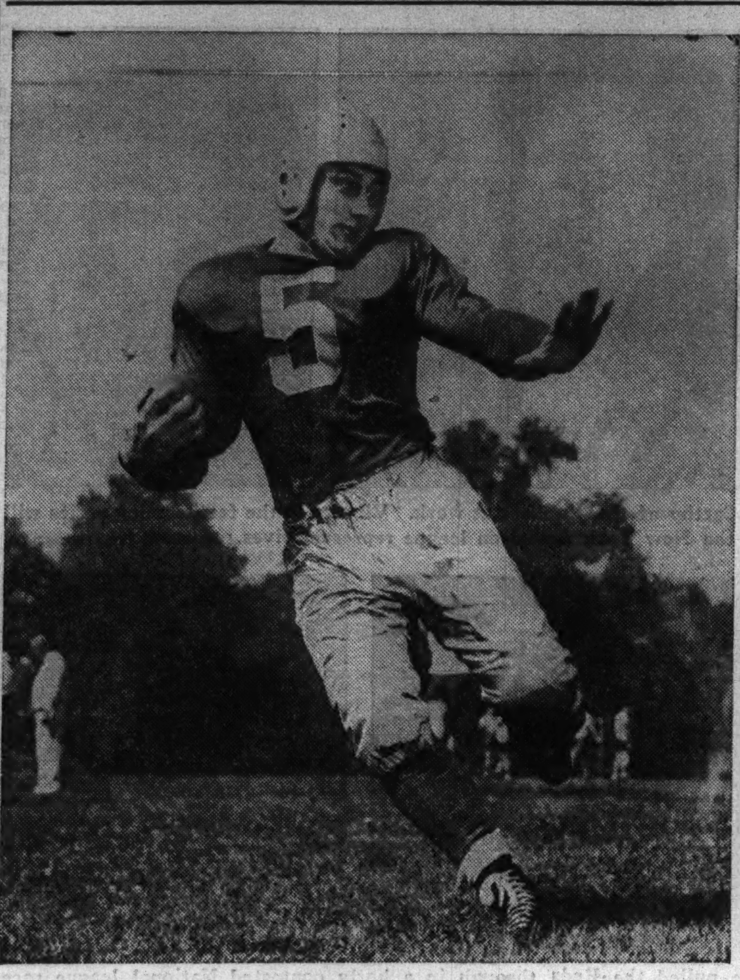
New York and the Redskins, opening Washington's home season, will strive to get the upper hand in the eastern division race by remaining unbeaten. It will be the second start for each team. New York will rely upon its veterans and a balanced attack while Washington pins its hopes on the fire and speed of a squad that includes a great number of new men.

Cleveland Will Be Busy.

Cleveland's superb back field will be in for another busy afternoon at Green Bay. A weak line has shackled John Drake, Parker Hall, Gaylon Smith, Vic Spadaccini and Corby Davis in its previous starts. They have had to make all the tackles in addition to battling for yards. The line will not have much chance to make an improved showing today, unless Green Bay reacts unfavorably to last week's third quarter rally against the Bears.

Brooklyn at Philadelphia promises to develop into another passing duel with Ace Parker and Davey O'Brien doing the honors.

LEADING PERFORMERS IN PRO BATTLE



National Professional league football returns to Chicago tonight as the Cardinals meet the Detroit Lions in Soldiers' field in their first home game. A fellow the Chicagoans must watch is Howie Weiss, full back from Wisconsin, winner of The Chicago Tribune's most valuable player award in the Big Ten for 1938 and starting full back on the All-Star team.

A quarter back who knows his business is Johnny Pingel of Michigan State, now with the Lions. Pingel is an outstanding punter and passer.

Iowa Crushes South Dakota Before 16,000

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 30 [Special].—An Iowa football victory, first in the home stadium since October of 1937, was cheered by 16,000 today as the University of Iowa eleven romped to a 41 to 0 triumph over the University of South Dakota.

Today's game marked the introduction of Dr. Edward N. Anderson, former Holy Cross coach, who returned to his native state to see what he could do about the Iowa football situation.

The Hawkeye's piled up four hundred-nineteen yards to eighty-one for the opposition, and marked off fourteen first downs to the Coyotes' five. The Iowa defensive forces kept abreast the offensive, nipping two serious South Dakota scoring threats near the goal line.

Nile Kinnick, triple threat senior half back, made three touchdowns. In addition, he scored five extra points by drop kicks and made one hundred-ten yards in carrying the ball eight times. One of his touchdown runs, for sixty-five yards, opened the scoring. Kinnick did most of Iowa's passing and took his turn at punting.

Coach Bernie Bierman substituted with a lavish hand using some 50 players down to the fifth eleven. Minnesota scored nine touchdowns, five in the first period, one in the second and fourth, and two in the third.

Minnesota's varied running attack, effectively intermingled with brilliant passing, had the westerners completely bewildered. During the first quarter when Minnesota regulars were on the field, Arizona was helpless.

Gophers Gain 465 Yards.

Minnesota gained 465 yards against 90 for Arizona, and had a margin of 19 first downs to 6.

Minnesota attempted 20 passes of which seven were completed for 130 yards. None were intercepted. Arizona, trying gallantly to score, tried the aerial route only to have it backfire as the alert Gophers intercepted 6 out of Arizona's 14 and from the interceptions gained 115 yards and two touchdowns. Arizona completed only 3 out of 14 passes, gaining only 30 yards, so effective was Minnesota's defense.

Van Every Runs 66 Yards.

Harold Van Every raced 66 yards for the first score on the third play after Minnesota received the opening kickoff. The second score came after a pass, Van Every to Mernik, gained 40 yards, putting ball on the 1 yard line from where Christianson bucked it over. Dashes by Franck, Van Every, and Sweiger quickly paved the way for the third with Sweiger going over on first down from the 1 yard line.

Franck intercepted a pass on Minnesota's 40 yard line and raced 60 yards for the fourth touchdown. A few minutes later Sweiger intercepted an Arizona pass on the westerners' 25 yard line and tallied.

A long pass, Van Every to Hirscher, scored in the second quarter. On the fifth play of the third period Bruce Smith went around his left end for 10 yards to score. Franck passed to Belfiori for 27 yards and the second touchdown of the third quarter.

AMERICAN TRACK TEAM RETURNS FROM EUROPE

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—The ten man A. A. U. track and field team which competed in Scotland, England, and Europe before being stranded by the war, returned today on the liner Manhattan.

Les Steers, Stanford university high jumper, said a meet in Greece was canceled, leaving the athletes stranded in Monte Carlo.

"We had to telegraph to the A. A. U. here for money," Steers said. "We would have sailed on the Rex but we got the funds a day too late and maybe it was just as well because the Italian increase in fares would have cost us $1,300 more."

Returning with Steers were Clyde Jeffrey of Stanford; Erwin Miller of the Southern California A. A. U.; Charles Beetham of New York; Blaine Rideout, formerly of North Texas State Teachers college; Ralph Schwartzkopf, University of Michigan; Roy Cochran, Indiana; George Varoff, San Francisco; Bill Watson, University of Michigan, and Joe Batiste, Tuscon, Ariz., high school hurdler.

The Americans competed in meets in Glasgow, London, Basel, and Zurich, Switzerland; Strasbourg, Paris, and Monte Carlo.

Connaught's Backers Get $82.60 to Win

A couple of horses, one a veteran and the other a youngster, which refused to accept the mutuel verdict of a crowd of 15,000 that they were overmatched, drove to victory yesterday in the two $2,500 events which concluded Hawthorne's September meeting of 24 days.

First and most spectacular, was the thrashing Connaught, a 2 year old maiden out of the Shadybrook Farm stable, dealt a group of the fleetest juveniles in the central states. Included in this field was the Lexbrook stable's colt, Potranco, which had won seven races and $11,590 on Chicago district tracks this summer.

Hardly Rates in Field.

On what had gone before, Connaught hardly deserved to be in this field, having started only three times and finishing out of the money on each occasion. He was sent to the post at 40 to 1, but never at any point in the six and a half furlongs justified such weak support, breaking in front and leading all the way to beat Potranco by four lengths. Good conduct was third. Connaught paid $82.60 to win, $42.40 to place, and $22.80 to show.

Equally as pleasing to his backers and owner, C. E. Davison, was the narrow victory of the veteran gelding Chance Ray in the mile and a sixteenth Illinois Owners handicap. Chance Ray went at a much shorter price than Connaught, 7 to 1, but still did not excite a crowd which figured it was between Some Count and Bob's Boys.

Chance Ray Goes to Front.

Chance Ray won as did Connaught, going right to the front and leading all the way, although he barely lasted to get a head decision over the fast finishing Shot Put, which came down on the rail. Bob's Boys was third, after racing wide and failing to respond to urging until the last three sixteenths. Some Count was fourth.

Chance Ray brought $16.60, $8.20, and $4.60, while Shot Put paid $10.20 to place and $5.20 to show.

Marquette, three of the latter being recovered by the victors.

Badgers Score Early.

The Badgers burst forth with their initial touchdown just about the time the first period was at its half way mark. The Hilltoppers made the third of a necessary series of punts, Gradisnik running it back nineteen yards to Marquette's 49 yard mark before being halted by Busler. In thrusts by Paskvan and Gradisnik the Badgers composed a ten yard advance for first down, but travel afoot apparently didn't suit their fancy. So Gradisnik turned loose a pass which Gage caught on Marquette's 25 yard line and went his way to a touchdown, later kicking for the seventh point.

Two minutes of play was sufficient for the Hilltoppers to promote themselves into a 7 to 7 tie. After the Badgers' kickoff following the touchdown, Marquette took to the air, but Richardson's toss was intercepted by Murray who, when cornered, lateralled to Gradisnik, the latter going five more yards to midfield before being floored. Three Badger line plays netted practically nothing so Gage punted and Richardson, starting from his 15 yard line, swung to his right and floated down the field to the Badger goal. Kemnitz' kick knotted it at 7 to 7.

Badgers Score Again.

The Hilltoppers fell out of the tie with the same ease with which they dropped into it. The Badgers opened the second period with Schmitz punting, the ball going out of bounds on Marquette's 34 yard mark. On the Hilltoppers' first offensive maneuver Coldagelli let the ball squirt from his hands and Embick reclaimed it for the Badgers with the goal line only twenty-six yards away. Cone tried right end and was flopped for a loss. A pass by Schmitz was slapped aside by Richardson, but Schmitz tried it again and Cone carried it eleven yards before being pushed out of bounds on the 4 yard mark.

The Badgers wanted to travel the remainder of the distance on foot, but the plan didn't work. Schmitz made one attempt and was downed by Apolskis for a four yard loss. He recovered two yards in a second attempt, then passed to Cone in the end zone, putting the Badgers in front by 13 to 7. Eckl's kick for the extra point was blocked, but Schmitz picked it up and hiked over the goal line, much to the surprise of his foes.

Then with the opening of the final quarter a Hilltop pass failed, so they tried another. Murray intercepted it, carried it out to the 9 yard mark, and Marquette's big opportunity vanished.

Missed Kick Costs Tie.

There were exactly three minutes and thirty seconds to go when the Hilltoppers turned loose the drive that fell one point short of a tie. Taking a poor Badger kick on their 20 yard line the Hilltoppers sent two smashes at the wall and with the help of a five yard penalty pushed out to the 32 yard mark.

Then the passing started. Richardson threw to Thompson for 24 yards. He threw another and Vosberg snared it for a six yard advantage. The pair attempted to repeat, but failed. Richardson threw again, Thomson snaring the ball for a seven yard gain.

On the next play Richardson passed to Vosberg, the lanky guy folding his arms around the oval while his legs were carrying him over the goal line. Then came the toughest break of all for the Hilltoppers. Kemnitz's placement effort for the tying point missed the target.

them after the ensuing kickoff from their own 35-yard line to the Nebraska 9 yard stripe. Harold Hursh's final fling was intercepted on the 5-yard line by Monsky of Nebraska.

Indiana made twelve first downs to six for Nebraska, gaining 220 yards from scrimmage, against seventy-one for the Huskers. The latter collected fifty-nine yards on passes, all of them valuable, while Indiana picked up 162 through the air. Indiana completed ten out of twenty-one, and Nebraska six out of thirteen.

See-Saw First Half.

The first half produced nothing approximating a scoring threat, punts and quick kicks shifting the action from one 20 yard line to the other until near the end of the second quarter, when both teams broke out with a couple of passes. Nebraska's proved futile, but the first of the Hoosier tries was nearly fielded on the 5 yard line in a gallant attempt by Zimmer. On the next play Tipmore caught a toss by Hursh and took it to the Nebraska 30 yard line as the gun sounded. This was the most progressive advance made by either team during the first 30 minutes.

Scarcity of First Downs.

The statistics for the first half reflected the leisurely nature of the action before the intermission. Indiana made three first downs to Nebraska's two.

The homecomers barely had settled in the stands at the outset of the second half before the Hoosiers, with a surprising verve for their work, had whipped up a touchdown. Zimmer again was the receiver of the Husker kickoff, traveling another twisting forty-three yard path this time to his own 45 yard stripe. After Tofil had negotiated three yards over left tackle Higgenbotham caught Hursh's pass and went to the Husker 45 yard mark. Zimmer then made another valuable contribution by sprinting around his left end for a nineteen yard gain. Hursh and Zimmer picked up a pair of yards after which Higgenbotham took Hursh's pass to the Husker 9 yard mark. Tofil then was given the job of taking the ball over therefrom, succeeding on fourth down with a yard to go over his right guard. Herbert place kicked the extra point.

Following this swift performance Nebraska could do no more than trade punts with the Hoosiers, not to mention an exchange of pass interceptions which profited neither team.

Squelch Huskers' First Bid.

Rorhig then hurled a short pass to Petsch good for a five yard gain to the Hoosier 28 yard line. Hursh ended this foray by intercepting Rorhig's pass in the end zone.

From there on the reliable Tofil delivered a first down in three plays eventually bringing the ball up to the Hoosier 33 yard line. After Dumke lost a yard, a forward, Hursh to Harris, and a lateral from Harris to Brooks, left the ball on Nebraska's 49 yard mark. Another set of passes culminating with one from Hursh to Tipmore brought the Hoosiers within seventeen yards of another touchdown. Three more tosses failed and then Bucchianeri attempted a place kick which went wide from the 24 yard line.

With less than four minutes to go Nebraska snapped out of its lethargy, marching from their own 47 yard line to the Hoosier one yard mark. Luther caught a pass on the Indiana 35 yard line. Petsch and Luther then collaborated with Rorhig on three more passes within four plays, reaching the Indiana ten yard line. Two more passes failed but on the next effort Petsch, after twice juggling the ball on his finger tips held on to it as he dropped on the one yard line. It took the Nebraskans four plays to put the ball over, Indiana pushing the Huskers back to the six yard line before Luther scored on a double reverse from Rorhig. The latter kicked the extra point within a minute to go.

Policeman's Bravery Wins Him a Hero Award.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

The policeman was fully exposed as he approached the fugitive gunman. The suspect whirled and ran.

Roger M. O'Dea.

"Stop, we are police!" the policeman commanded.

Defiantly, the gunman halted in his flight and turned. Two revolver shots rang out in the black summer night. Heedless of the bullets flying past his head, the policeman plunged ahead and emptied his service revolver. The gunman stumbled, wounded, into the grass at the edge of the sidewalk.

That sounds like a piece from a fiction thriller, but it isn't. It actually happened at 4:30 a. m. the night of Aug. 23 on a dark street alongside a city dump in the Marquette police district.

Hero a 17 Year Veteran.

The policeman was Roger M. O'Dea, 41 years old, 6351 South Richmond street. He is an ex-service man, has served 17 years on park and city police forces, and is the proud father of Virginia Frances O'Dea, a Lindblom High school freshman.

When the fast and furious gun play took place O'Dea was pursuing a colored suspect later identified as McClellan Hardy, 2209 West Lake street. Hardy and an accomplice, Henry Beck, were on their way home after committing a robbery.

A few minutes before, O'Dea, in plain clothes, had been driving a squad car near 18th street and Damen avenue. With him were Patrolmen Edward M. Collins and William J. O'Rourke.

Over the police radio they got an order to proceed to a robbery at 2012 13th street.

Spotlight Picks Out Pair.

As they speeded up to the intersection at 18th and Damen, O'Dea swung the car spotlight back and forth to warn possible oncoming motorists.

The finger of light showed two colored men standing on the southeast corner. When the light struck them they separated, one running across the street ahead of the squad car. The other ducked back into the shadows.

O'Dea sensed trouble. He pulled the car to the curb and leaped out. His two fellow policemen ran after the first man who had crossed the street.

"I'll get the other one," O'Dea shouted.

Crossing the street, he saw his suspect standing behind a newsstand. The gunplay followed.

Two Bullets Find the Mark.

A later examination showed O'Dea hit his man twice, both times while the two were running. One shot hit Hardy in the thigh and the other shattered his leg.

Hardy was taken to the Bridewell hospital and the other man, caught by O'Dea's partners, was placed in the county jail.

The captives confessed robbing the Carleton hotel, 1517 South Michigan avenue. They were identified later by Louis Wilde, night clerk of the hotel.

Their trial is being delayed pending the recovery of Hardy.

It was because of "fearlessness shown without regard for his personal safety by advancing in the face of gunfire while his two partners were chasing another suspect" that O'Dea received the Tribune hero award for August. The quotations are from the official report of his commanding officer.

Each month THE TRIBUNE awards $100 to the city or park policeman or fireman who displays the highest courage beyond the ordinary requirements of his service.

NEW YORK OPENS ITS NORTH BEACH AIRPORT OCT. 15

New York, Sept. 30 [Special].—After two years of construction it was announced today that the New York municipal airport would be dedicated at North Beach, Queens, on Oct. 15, fully ready to operate.

Meantime the Civil Aeronautics authority is expected to decide in the city's favor in the pending proceeding brought by Newark officials to block the issuance of transfer certificates to four major air lines now operating at Newark airport. With that obstacle eliminated there will be no further bar to use of the city's airport.

Undertaken as the largest WPA project in the country, the airport was financed with city and federal funds estimated at $33,000,000 to $50,000,000. Hangar space already has been leased to American Airlines, T. W. A. and United Airlines, and Pan American Airways has contracted for the use of the seaplane base which is designed to handle the trans-Atlantic clippers now flying between Europe and Port Washington, N. Y. In addition, Canadian Colonial Airlines is now negotiating a contract for hangar space.

PRINCIPALS VETO MERIT SYSTEM FOR PROMOTION

A proposed plan to govern the promotion of principals in the public schools by a merit system was voted down yesterday at a meeting of the Chicago Principals' club in its headquarters at 185 North Wabash avenue.

Harry L. Tate, director of Auxiliary five of the club, outlined the plan as "a definite step toward taking the schools out of politics and a measure which would free the superintendent of schools from any criticism of any personal or political favoritism." The system provides for promotion on the basis of seniority, efficiency, educational background, and educational leadership, he said.

A majority of the 150 members present opposed the measure on the ground it implied that there was favoritism in the present school administration which, spokesmen said, "we know is not true." The directors of the club were directed to abandon consideration of the plan.

GRANDMA'S RIGHT ABOUT REPENTING HASTY WEDDINGS

Married persons whose courtship lasted less than a year have 20 per cent less chance of happiness than those whose courtship lasted longer than a year. Those whose courtships were less than three months have 30 per cent less chance. And the best courtship, according to a survey conducted by Prof. E. W. Burgess of the University of Chicago and Dr. L. S. Cottrell Jr. of Cornell university, lasts from three to five years. Those longer than five years are too long, they found.

The survey covered a seven year span and included studies of 526 married couples. Wives who worked before marriage make better adjustments than whose who did not, it was learned, and professional men, especially chemical engineers, and ministers make the best husbands. The amount of income is relatively unimportant. Few husbands, the survey says, are henpecked, most wives "achieving their aims in subtle and indirect ways."

Woman in Court to Force Father to Support Her

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 30 (AP).—In one of the most unusual cases of record in Massachusetts history a woman, claiming she is poor and ill and unable to work, seeks to have the courts force her father to support her and pay her debts, amounting to $1,500. The suit was brought by Miss Rose M. Shanley of Boston, 43 years old, a graduate of a Boston law school, against her father, Daniel W. Kelley, Woburn druggist. Miss Shanley appeared in her own behalf. She said she received $5 a week from a fund her father established for her, but that it was not enough. Her parents were divorced when she was less than a year old.

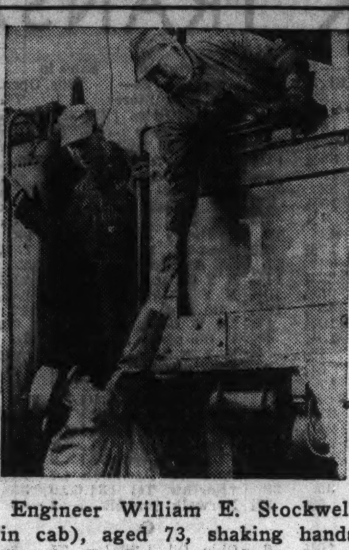
Engineer Retires



Engineer William E. Stockwell (in cab), aged 73, shaking hands with A. T. Berg, terminal superintendent for the Milwaukee railroad, as Fireman R. J. Martwick looks on. Stockwell retired yesterday after 56 years of service with the railroad.

Two veteran trainmen completed their last runs yesterday and retired after a total of 104 years' service. They are William E. Stockwell, 73 years old, 4135 North Kilbourn avenue, and Martin O. Brown, 71, of 123 West Franklin avenue, Crystal Lake. Stockwell is an engineer for the Milwaukee road, for which he has worked for 56 years. He was congratulated by fellow employés. Brown, who went to work for the North Western railroad in 1891, became a conductor after serving as a freight brakeman for four years. His friends gave a party in the conductors' room at the North Western station before his last run to Crystal Lake.

INDICTED ON MAIL FRAUD CHARGES IN STOCK SCHEME

Harry Crawford, 40 years old, of New York City, was indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday on charges of using the mails to defraud. He is alleged to have tried to gain possession of stock in the Central Illinois Public Service company by illegal methods.

Postal inspectors who arrested Crawford here, said he wrote letters to owners of the stock in Chicago stating he was an officer of the company designated to call in the securities. It was charged that he offered $35 more per share than the market value for the stock. He gave a New York address as the address of the company, directing that the stock be sent there. Martin S. Gerber, assistant United States district attorney, presented the case to the grand jury.

Since his arrest Crawford has refused to give government agents any information about himself. Finger print records show that he was convicted in Plymouth, Mass., in 1927 on similar charges.

HORNER DELAYS SUPERHIGHWAY BOND SALE TEST

F. Lynden Smith, director of the state highway department, yesterday rescinded his approval, pending a conference with Gov. Horner, of the proposed sale of $100,000 worth of superhighway bonds. The bond sale was to permit an early court test of the constitutionality of the $100,000,000 superhighway program for Chicago.

"Gov. Horner telephoned me in Springfield and told me he wanted to look into the matter," Smith said. "I don't think there is any objection to the plan, but he wants to be personally certain of its legality."

The city council asked the state to sell the bonds and to make the $100,000 receipts available for engineering costs. Gov. Horner, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes, and State Auditor Edward J. Barrett compose the board which is to sell the bonds.

THE SEEING EYES OF BLIND LEAD 400 TO SUCCESS

Faithful Dogs Open Up New World to Afflicted.

Since 1927 when the Seeing Eye was started in Morristown, N. J., 400 blind persons have been trained in the use of guide dogs. The 400 include about 25 Chicagoans.

A survey of the graduates, announced yesterday by Mrs. Harrison Eustis, founder and president of the school, shows that 75 per cent of the 400 are attending school, managing households, or are employed in full time jobs.

Makes Blind Independent.

Attorney Samuel S. Holmes, chairman of the Chicago executive committee of the Seeing Eye, attributes this to the initiative and independence which possession of the dogs gives their sightless owners.

"Once they have been trained in the use of the dog," he said, "they are free to go where they choose and can do almost anything that a person with sight can do except, perhaps, tell colors. Each person either pays for his dog, or promises to pay after he has earned the money, so that none feels he is receiving charity. And of the 400 graduates none has been in a serious accident while accompanied by a Seeing Eye dog."

There apparently are few occupations which the blind may not follow successfully after acquiring a guide. The percentages of Seeing Eye graduates employed in trades or professions follow:

Salesmen, 20; stand operators, 18; students, 13; hand industry workers, 8; home teachers, 7; proprietors, 5; musicians and teachers, 4; lawyers, 3; administrators, housekeepers, piano tuners, 2, and Braille transcribers, farmers, lecturers and ministers, 1.

Active in Other Lines.

There are graduates who are librarians, magazine agents, osteopaths, reporters, social workers, writers, real estate agents, placement officers, factory employés and express service workers. Also among the graduates are a curator, a dictaphone operator, a florist, a justice of the peace, a municipal employé, a newsboy and a telegraph messenger.

Attorney Holmes said the Seeing Eye, a non-profit organization, hopes to train 200 dogs this year and 400 in 1942, when a second unit of the school is to be established in Morristown.

INDICT DR. GORE FOR SLAYING OF SON'S ATTORNEY

Benton, Ill., Sept. 30 [Special].—Dr. George W. Gore of Benton was indicted today on a charge of murdering Carl Choisser, 46 years old, attorney and publisher of the Benton Evening News.

The indictment, bearing the names of 22 witnesses, was returned by the first mixed grand jury in Franklin county. Twelve women and 11 men made up the jury.

Choisser was shot down last Monday as he walked through an alley from the public square in Benton toward his newspaper plant. Charles F. Settlemoir, a locksmith who was walking with Choisser, told a coroner's jury on Thursday that Dr. Gore, who is 65 years old, killed the publisher.

Dr. Gore's son, George Jr., 32 years old, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., is being held in the county jail here on a charge of murdering his stepmother last July 23 on the porch of his father's home, where she and Dr. Gore had been sleeping.

Choisser was a cousin of young Gore, and was serving as his defense attorney.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Relatives inherit the bulk of the estate of Charles M. Schwab, steel executive who died Sept. 18, under the terms of a will filed for probate today. The size of the estate was not given, but Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, generally was regarded as one of the country's wealthiest men.

The principal beneficiaries are a brother, Edward H. Schwab; a sister, Mrs. Gertrude Barry, and the children of the late Joseph E. Schwab, brother of Charles. Schwab's wife preceded him in death.

There were no bequests for charitable or educational purposes. "Having made liberal contributions during my life for charitable and educational purposes," Schwab wrote, "I make no bequests for such purposes herein, but suggest that the beneficiaries herein named continue to make such contributions according to their respective means."

WHEAT MOUNTS ON PROSPECT OF WAR CONTINUING

Drouth in West Also Is Price Influence.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

Closing prices on the December delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .84½	$ .82¼	$ .64
Corn	.51	.49¾	.47½
Oats	.33	.31⅞	.25⅛
Rye	.54⅝	.53¼	.43¼
Soy beans	.82¼	.80⅛	.75½

Reports that England and France would reject German peace proposals, if and when they are made, combined with strength in securities to lift wheat futures 2¼ cents on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. Closing trades were at the top. Corn advanced 1¼ to 1⅜ cents and soy beans closed at gains of 1½ to 2 cents a bushel.

At no time was there any material pressure on the grain markets. Many speculators who sold futures on Friday were active on the buying side yesterday. Dry weather in the southwest overnight and the weather bureau long range forecast indicating fair and warm weather during the current week helped the upturn in wheat.

England Buys Canadian Wheat.

England has been buying much larger quantities of Canadian cash wheat than has been reported recently, it was indicated in messages from New York. The convoy system from St. Lawrence river ports is said to be resulting in delaying the movement of steamers bound for England for a few days while the fleet of boats is assembled.

Rains in the winter wheat belt Thursday and Friday failed to relieve the drouth situation to any large extent, according to B. W. Snow, crop expert with Fuller, Rodney & Redmond. Official records showed only a few points in Nebraska and Oklahoma had as much as one-half inch of rain, he said. In Kansas only 6 out of 42 reporting stations received as much as one-half inch of rain.

Country offerings of cash corn were much smaller yesterday despite the upturn in prices.

Farmers Await War Demand.

Farmers were said to have been impressed by the reports from Europe indicating there was little prospect of peace in the near future. Chicago handlers bought 92,000 bushels for deferred shipment from the country, including 19,000 bushels of new crop grain.

Exporters were reported to be seeking cash corn. Although no sales could be confirmed it was estimated that Europe purchased between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 bushels last week. In addition, England bought about 1,500,000 bushels of Argentina corn.

Harvesting of the new corn crop is expected to make rapid progress this week if weather conditions are favorable. Private estimates on the crop, to be issued Oct. 4, are expected to show little change from the 2,524,000,000 bushels indicated a month ago.

FUTURES PRICES OF COMMODITIES ADVANCE AGAIN

Hides Make Large Gain; Wool Strong.

Commodity prices recovered yesterday from Friday's reaction on rumors of peace proposals. Britain's refusal to negotiate a Polish settlement brought the possibility of large foreign purchases of American goods to the fore again, and buyers reëntered the markets.

Hide futures were outstanding with gains of .62 to .67 cent a pound. Wool tops were also strong at New York, moving up 2.1 to 2.9 cent a pound in futures trading. Rubber was up .10 to .29 cent a pound and tin climbed ¼ cent. Most cash commodities showed little or no changes

Week's Prices Uneven.

Advances and declines were about evenly distributed in trading during the entire week. The nonferrous metals were strong with the exception of tin, which declined 10 cents a pound to 60 cents in cash dealings. As the week closed it was rumored copper refiners may boost their quotation ½ cent to 12½ cents a pound. Copper sales for all of September, totaling about 175,000 tons, were only a few thousand tons short of the all-time record of 182,576 tons sold during the July buying wave.

Worsted goods, however, continued to show strength. Manufacturers raised prices 10 to 20 cents a yard, the third advance since the war started. The aggregate price increase amounted to 50 to 60 cents a yard.

Price tables follow:

WAR BOOM HAS ITS DARK SIDE, BANKERS WARN

Fear Vast Inflation in Long Conflict.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Additional evidence of expansion in business appeared last week amidst warnings by bankers that inflation in Japan and Europe may spread to America, bringing its blight of rapid price boosting and speculation.

Taking note of war stimulation of exports, the bankers cautioned that if the conflict lasts long, business of all nations will suffer when the time comes to pay the piper. In a similar declaration a leading steel executive said war business is bad business, despite any temporary profits.

The views of the nation's bankers were expressed at the annual convention of the American Bankers association at Seattle, Wash. It was the association's economic policy committee which said that monetary inflation appears to be developing in the warring nations and may spread to the United States.

Urges Government Relent.

A plea that government conflict with business be halted in the interest of national stability was made by Philip A. Benson of Brooklyn.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

He made the appeal before retiring as president of the association, which will be headed in 1941 by H. W. Koeneke of Ponca City, Okla., if the usual rule of succession prevails. Keoneke was elected second vice president. Robert M. Hanes of Winston-Salem, N. C., is the new president for 1940.

Other bankers, speaking at the meeting, said that unwise laws impair the efficiency of industry at a time when the nation should be using every economic means to make itself secure. They termed the government's cheap money policy a failure and said interest rates now are heading upward.

Industry Expands Further.

These warnings were given while the steel mills were increasing output to a new two year peak, and while industry as a whole, on the basis of some measurements, was attaining the highest September level since 1929. According to some estimates, present industrial activity has been exceeded only once at any season of the year since 1929, the exception being in the spring of 1937.

Besides the steel production rate, several other business indicators which give some of the best clews to trends showed advances last week, as compared with the preceding week. These included automobile production, railroad freight volume, electric power and cotton textile output, bank loans to business in Chicago and New York City, residential building, retail sales and wholesale orders.

Two Indices Show Declines.

Declines were shown in bank clearings in twenty-two leading cities and in the volume of engineering construction awards.

Dun & Bradstreet said wholesale trade at various centers equaled or bettered the 1937 records, and that retail sales are rapidly nearing the high level of that year.

Output of electricity was the largest for any week on record, and automobile production was the largest for any corresponding September week since 1929.

The lumber industry reported it is receiving orders in the largest volume since 1930, with new business running 42 per cent ahead of current production.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity advanced to 104.8 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. It stood at 101.0 per cent a week earlier and at 78.4 per cent in the corresponding 1938 week. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Previous week.	Year ago.
Automobile prod....	78.0	77.0	34.8

New Building Mounts 8 Pct. During August

Building construction reversed the seasonal trend and increased in August, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins announced yesterday.

Instead of showing the customary decline, the value of building permits increased 8 per cent over the July level to a total of $194,906,276, according to the survey, based on reports from 2,087 cities with a population of 1,000 or more. The value of permits issued in the first eight months of 1938 rose 26 per cent over the 1938 level to $1,405,749,000.

Home Building Active.

Residential construction continued the substantial improvement which has been recorded for many months. The value of this type of building in August rose to $116,612,085, or 21 per cent over the July total. Residential permits issued in the eight months increased 38 per cent.

Nonresidential building and alterations and repairs registered smaller gains than new residential construction, and this held down the total gains of all classifications.

Construction permits issued by 451 cities in the "east north central area"—Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, and Wisconsin—totaled $46,448,686 in August, gains of 30.9 per cent over July and 60.6 per cent over August, 1938.

Biggest Gain in East.

New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, comprising the middle Atlantic states, issued the largest volume of permits of any of the geographical divisions. Their total of $53,522,250 for 538 cities was 15.6 per cent ahead of July and 18.1 per cent above the volume of August, 1938.

The largest percentage gain over July was registered by 78 cities in Alabama, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Tennessee, with a total of $8,108,205, or a gain of 68 per cent. Compared with August, 1938, the total was up 93.5 per cent.

The department listed Chicago's permit valuations for the first eight months of 1939 at $34,003,739, against $18,102,492 a year earlier.

STATE SALES TAX APPLIED TO SOME 'OUTSIDE' DEALS

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 30 (AP).—A new regulation applying the Illinois 3 per cent sales tax to certain "interstate" sales will be enforced by the state finance department, effective Oct. 1.

Merchandise purchased from an Illinois dealer, but shipped direct to the buyer from outside the state, is held to be taxable under the new ruling except when the merchandise is not available in Illinois.

Previously such transactions have been tax exempt if there existed a contract calling for shipment from outside the state.

J. W. Huston, supervisor of the rulings and research division of the state finance department, said the former regulations made it possible for dealers in such commodities as cement to escape the sales tax by contracting for shipments from out of state cement manufacturers.

Million Dollar Silk Cargo Landed; Largest in 5 Years

San Pedro, Cal., Sept. 30 (AP).—A million dollar silk cargo was landed today from Yokohama, Japan, and placed aboard a special Union Pacific train which will leave tonight for New York City on limited schedule. The shipment of raw silk, 2,500 bales, is the largest sent from here in the last five years. Two hundred bales will be dropped off at Chicago.

Norfolk & Western Freight Trafic Sets All Time Peak

The Norfolk and Western railway reported yesterday that loadings of 20,663 cars in the week ended Sept. 23 established a new all time record. Canadian car loadings in the week ended Sept. 23, totaling 72,157 cars, was largest since 1930.

3 to 5 year term loan of $150,000.00 desired by well-rated manufacturer of staple product. Funds to be used to handle increased sales volume. Repayment can be arranged on monthly, semi-annual, or annual basis. Not interested in refinancing for stock issue. Ample security available. Prefer to deal direct with principal.

CHICAGO STEEL MILLS BOOSTING OUTPUT TO 84.8% OF CAPACITY

Chicago steel mills are scheduled to begin tomorrow with operations at 84.8 per cent of capacity, which will be above last week's national average of 83.8 per cent. The new Chicago rate represents an increase of 2.8 points over last week's rate for this district and a gain of 36.7 points in the last four weeks. In 1938 Chicago steel production was at 37.3 per cent of theoretical capacity. The new rate is the highest since the week of Aug. 30, 1937, when mills operated at 85.2 per cent.

The Pittsburgh district's schedule for the coming week was the outstanding news yesterday. Operations there will climb 4½ points to 82 per cent of capacity, reaching the highest level since the post-war boom days of 1929. In the latter year Pittsburgh operations reached 85 per cent.

Pittsburgh steel output has climbed 26 points in four weeks and tomorrow will be more than double the corresponding 1938 week's rate of 38 per cent. In the 1937 week the rate was 71 per cent.

No. 1 heavy melting steel scrap was lifted 50 cents a ton yesterday to $19-$19.50 in the Chicago market. Most sales were made at the higher level, it was reported.

RAILS SPEND 70 MILLION IN FIRST MONTH OF WAR

Within the first month of the European war, American railroads have placed orders for 70 million dollars' worth of new freight cars and locomotives, and are actively interested in the purchase of another 35 million dollars' worth of cars, it was estimated yesterday.

A survey of the railroad equipment industry indicated that operations, which only a few months ago had been depressed as a result of the slim business placed by railroads, had expanded to the highest point in several years. Recent orders have appeared in the largest volume since 1929.

In addition to vast new business placed by American railroads, which are expanding their equipment and improving facilities generally to keep abreast of the advance in industrial operations, the upsurge in the rail equipment industry is being accelerated by orders from South America, the survey indicated.

A report from Birmingham, Ala., said the volume of business placed during the week was "unprecedented" for that market.

FEDERAL OWNED GRAIN IS LOST IN ELEVATOR BREAK

Canton, Ill., Sept. 30 (AP).—Twelve thousand bushels of corn and 3,000 bushels of oats were dumped on rain-soaked ground yesterday when two sides of the Farmers' Coöperative Grain and Supply company elevator collapsed, it was announced today.

The grain, which was owned by the federal Commodity Credit corporation, was declared a "complete loss" by Earl Nagel, manager of the elevator.

Nagel said he was unable to determine the reason for the collapse. He said the frame and galvanized iron structure had been filled to capacity on the previous occasions. He estimated the damage to the building was $10,000.

A CHEAP STOCK FOR BIG PROFIT

WE have located a cheap stock which we believe to be one of the most attractive speculations we have ever discovered. It appears to be selling much below its prospective value. In fact, this issue promises to be one of the leaders in the coming "boom" in stocks.

WHY THIS BARGAIN STOCK SHOULD BE BOUGHT NOW

1. This low-priced stock is within the reach of all investors, selling as it does for around $7 a share. But it is not a "cat or dog." The company is a well-known and important factor in a leading industry.
2. The company stands to benefit directly from war and inflation. Earnings are expected to mount rapidly.
3. Both the near-term and long-term prospects for this stock are favorable. The action of the stock leads us to believe that a sharp rise is in prospect.

This is one of the most promising issues that we have been able to uncover in a long time. Those who buy this stock should reap excellent profits. Most likely, however, it will not long be available at its present low price.

The name of this stock will be sent to you absolutely free. Also an interesting little book, "Greater Stock Market Profit." No charge—no obligation. Just address:

List Roosevelt Powers if War Is 'Imminent'

The Illinois Manufacturers' association, in an opinion by its general counsel made public yesterday, listed the ways in which private industry may be affected drastically through powers granted the President and which he could exercise without the actual declaration of war. The opinion was released by James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the association.

James L. Donnelly.

Under the national defense act of June 3, 1916, the opinion held, the President might mobilize industry and require the production of supplies and equipment, including arms and ammunition, if, in the opinion of the secretary of war, a plant were adaptable for such production, not only in time of war, but "when war is imminent."

President Can Decide.

The opinion held that "it would be within the sound discretion of the President to determine when war is imminent." President Roosevelt's recent proclamation of a state of "limited national emergancy" carried no implication regarding the imminence of war, it was stated.

The act makes compliance with the President's orders obligatory and provides that orders placed for such equipment and supplies take precedence over all others. Corporations and individuals declining to comply with the provisions of the act shall be deemed guilty of a felony. Conviction provides for imprisonment of not more than three years and a fine not exceeding $50,000. Compensation, the act states, shall be "just and fair."

1917 Act More Drastic.

Even more draastic are provisions of the act of March 4, 1917. This act, however, is applicable only in time of war. It provides that the President may take immediate possession of any factory and use it in any way he deems necessary or expedient when the owners fail to give the government preference in orders or otherwise violate provisions of the act.

There is a provision in the law for peace time survey of private industrial production facilities. This includes peace time planning for the use of such facilities—including testing, investigation, standardization, and purchase of war materials.

Wartime emergency conditions would not affect the operation of the fair labor standards act [wages and hours], the Wagner act [labor relations], the Davis-Bacon act [prevailing wages on public works], the Byrnes act [interstate transportation of strike breakers], the Norris-La Guardia act [anti-injunction], or any anti-trust laws, the opinion stated.

The federal eight hour law may be suspended by the President "in case of national emergency." But time worked in excess of the maximum hours must be paid for at one and a half times the regular rate.

TAXES CONSUME NATION'S INCOME MORE GREEDILY

Eating Deeper Into Economic Life.

The percentage of national income now being consumed in taxes is larger than at any other time in this nation's history.

Earnings of the people are diverted in growing amounts to the maintenance of government. This trend, which curtails the purchasing power of the people, places a restraint upon business and retards any rise in the national standard of living.

That the federal government debt is the greatest in history, and that taxes are high, is well known. But that these taxes are taking a larger portion of the national income is not well known. It is a fact which has been quite generally ignored.

Many Taxes Hidden.

So many taxes are of the "hidden" variety—such as taxes on clothing, food, and other items of everyday life—that a part of the population does not realize it pays taxes. But it does pay them, and it is now turning over a larger portion of its earnings to the tax collector than ever before.

Exponents of government debt have promised that government spending, which is a major cause of debt, will raise the national income. Then the debt may be reduced, it is argued, without placing any additional burden on the people.

But the burden on the people, which is best represented by the percentage of national income which must be devoted to paying taxes, already has increased. Despite its increase, no serious effort has been made to reduce the national debt, which constantly mounts.

Total Tax Sets Record.

Total tax collections last year reached a new record high of $13,700,000,000, equal to about $105 for every American citizen, man, woman and child. The total tax was equal to about $317 for each employed person. It amounted to 22 per cent of national income, highest for which there is any record, compared with taxes amounting to only 12.3 per cent of national income in 1928.

These statistics are summarized in the following table, based on figures compiled by the National Industrial Conference board. The table shows total federal, state and local taxes, taxes per capita, national income, and the percentage of taxes to national income.

Year.	Tot. taxes [millions].	Taxes per capita.	Natl. inc. [millions].	Per cent taxes to natl. inc.

Debt Above 40 Billion.

The national debt on June 30, 1939, end of the last fiscal year, was $40,440,000,000. Interest alone on the federal direct debt amounted to about $841,000,000 last year. This debt is equal to $308 per capita or $1,232 per family of four persons. When state and local debt is added, the total of direct government debt is about $60,000,000,000

One feature of recent income tax returns has been the decrease in the number of people reporting incomes above $25,000 a year. Even in the years 1936 and 1937, when the country enjoyed fairly substantial business, the number of people who made more than $25,000 annually was much less than in 1922 to 1929.

In addition, the people who did have incomes in excess of $25,000 were able to keep a smaller percentage of this income than formerly. More of it went to the government in taxes. The shrinkage of the number of people with such incomes has reduced private charity donations, gifts and bequests to universities, churches, hospitals and similar institutions.

Gifts Automatically Reduced.

A large percentage of such bequests must come from people whose earnings give them the opportunity to make substantial savings. Reduce

Illinois May Yield Billion Barrels of Oil

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 30.—Discoveries of new oil pools in Illinois during the current oil boom have lifted the state's total prospective output to more than a billion barrels, Dr. Alfred H. Bell, geologist, estimated here today. Dr. Bell is head of the oil and gas division of the state geological survey.

The estimate, Dr. Bell said, includes approximately half a billion barrels produced from 1904 to the present time and an additional half a billion that will be taken from Illinois wells on the basis present estimates of reserves. The pools that will account for virtually all of coming production have been discovered in the last two and one half years.

Believes Output Near Peak.

Illinois output at the present time appears to be nearing a peak, in the opinion of Dr. Bell. Based on the latest figures, the state is producing at the rate of about 340,000 barrels a day, or more than four times the daily average in 1938.

1937	21,000
1938	66,500
Week of Sept. 23, 1939......	340,116

Dr. Bell predicted that unless some new rich fields, now unknown, are opened within a few months, the state's output will level off to a daily rate of 325,000 to 350,000 barrels.

Tenth of Nation's Output.

This would amount to nearly ten per cent of the nation's total oil production, which runs about 3,500,000 barrels a day. In 1936 Illinois accounted for less than one-half of one per cent of the country's oil.

Any estimates of ultimate production at this time are extremely tentative, Dr. Bell warned. The estimates may be increased greatly by the discovery of additional pools and by the production of oil from new levels in present pools, he explained. He also cautioned that estimates of the daily rate of production would probably be reduced if state control of production, including proration of the amount to oil to be taken from each well, is voted by the legislature.

Proration May Increase Yield.

Proration measures would tend to increase the total yield that will be eventually realized, however, he added.

The old oil fields, largely in the southeastern part of the state, produced approximately 421,000,000 barrels of oil from 1904 through 1936. Production, however, had dwindled to less than 5 million barrels in 1936.

In 1937 the discovery of the new fields in Clay and Wayne counties and then in other acreas opened up a rising tide of Illinois oil. Since Jan. 1, 1937, more than 80 million barrels have been produced in the new and old fields combined. Estimates of August production of approximately 7 million barrels have lifted the state's all-time output past the half billion mark.

Estimates Proved Reserves.

"Present estimates indicate that Illinois now has 400 million barrels of proved reserves," Dr. Bell said. "It is safe to assume, moreover, that at least 100 million barrels will be realized from unproved reserves, and Illinois can be counted on to produce

CADILLAC MOTOR TO SHOW 1940 CARS THIS WEEK

Several Refinements Are Announced.

The 1940 models of the Cadillac Motor Car division of General Motors will be displayed this week in dealer showrooms throughout the country. The new line consists of seven series, two La Salles and five Cadillacs. Two series, the La Salle Special and the Cadillac Fleetwood Seventy-two, are new.

Numerous refinements and improvements in the bodies and chassis and in the mechanical parts are included. The 1940 models generally are longer and they have increased passenger room compared with the 1939 models.

The La Salle Special bears a marked resemblance to the Cadillac Sixty Special, which has exerted a strong style influence in many of the cars throughout the General Motors line.

Has New Seat Construction.

Features of all the cars include a new type of seat construction, directional turn indicators, clear vision safety glass, easier gear shifting, larger generators, sturdier clutches, and longer rear springs.

Refinements in the engine are said to reduce operating expense 10 to 15 per cent. These include a special automatic spark advance controled by pressures in the intake manifold, a vacuum metering system on the carburetor which permits a leaner mixture, and redesigned accelerator jet-pumps which give a more direct passage for the fuel. These changes have been made to produce more complete fuel combustion and to ensure instaneous throttle response. The new generators reach peak production at a speed as slow as 27 miles an hour.

Use Sealed Beam Lights.

All cars will be equipped with "sealed beam" lights for better night driving. In the La Salle models the head lamps are mounted on the fenders. Head lamps are mounted on the sides of the hoods on the Cadillacs and in addition these cars have parking and directional lights on the fenders.

The new seat combines three materials in which springs form the base, topped by layers of foam rubber and cotton or wool padding. Body frames are heavier.

The horse power of the engine remains the same. The complete line includes 47 body types.

PLACE INTEREST AND DIVIDENDS AT 487 MILLION

New York, Sept. 30 [Special].—Interest and dividend payments in October will total $487,165,000, the Journal of Commerce estimated today. Payments in the same month last year totaled $508,507,000.

Dividend payments are expected to amount to $257,549,000, compared with $265,810,000 paid out last year. Industrials, the estimate said, will disburse $123,079,000, utilites $85,716,000, rails $14,456,000, and financial firms $34,298,000.

Interest payments are expected to total $229,616,000. Utility payments will lead the group with $46,614,000. Then come the rails with $25,816,000, industrials $19,586,000, foreign $30,916,000, state and municipals, $41,084,000, and federal and others $65,600,000. Interest payments last year were $242,697,000.

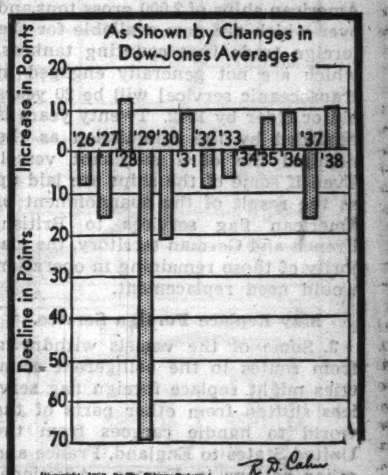
Dim Peace Prospect Boosts Market.

New York, Sept. 30 [Special].—Dwindling hopes of peace in Europe today caused a sharp reversal of the downward trend of prices in the two previous sessions and sent stock values soaring fractions to more than 5 points. All classes of stocks participated in the rally and closing prices were near the best of the day.

The "war babies," which had appeared fatigued in earlier sessions this week, came back to life to set the pace of the advance. Steels were especially buoyant, being aided by the stimulus of forecasts that operations next week would be stepped up sharply in the major producing areas.

Trading Tempo Increases.

Trading started slowly but, going into the second hour, the tempo increased as buying orders reached the exchange in substantial numbers.



[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

How stock prices have moved in October of each year since 1926.

Total volume for the session amounted to 843,340 shares, compared with 562,460 in last week's brief session.

Steels, rails, coppers, chemicals, and rail equipments loomed prominently throughout the sessions and higher prices were paid for farm equipments, aircrafts, motors, electrical equipments, sugars, textiles, motor accessories, utilities, merchandising issues, and rails.

Steels Set Strong Pace.

Bethlehem Steel and United States Steel set a blistering pace for the rest of the market. The former shot ahead to tack up a gain of 5⅞ points and the latter finished a strong second with an advantage of 4⅝ points.

Rail stocks gave the steels a good run. Though gains were not as spectacular they were active and higher throughout the session. Gains of 1 to 2 points were posted by New York Central, the volume leader, Atchison, Nickel Plate issues, and Chesapeake and Ohio. The volatile Norfolk and Western soared 6 points.

Rail equipments turned in a strong performance as orders piled up in the shops. American Brake Shoe and American Car and Foundry each were up better than 2 points. American Locomotive and Baldwin were bid up more than a point.

Chemical Issues Strong.

Allied Chemical went 3½ points higher in the chemicals, Westinghouse soared 3 points in the electrical equipments, International Business Machines advanced 3⅛ points and South Porto Rican Sugar went 2½ points higher.

Douglas featured the aviation group with a rise of 3⅛. Chrysler went up more than 3 points to a new high of 92½ before falling back to 91¼, where it had a gain of 2 points. General Motors and Mack Trucks were each more than a point higher at the final bell.

Stock market transactions in September, the first month of the war in Europe, totaled 57,080,610 shares, about triple the preceding month's 17,372,781. They were the highest since January, 1937, when volume reached 58,671,416 shares. A year ago the total was 23,826,970 shares.

AMERICAN SHIP BUILDING RUSHED BY GOVERNMENT

Speeded Despite Possible Neutrality Bans.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30 (AP)—The maritime commission is speeding up the reconstruction of the United States merchant marine despite the fact that congress is considering a proposal that would sweep the fleet off the seas so far as trade with warring nations is concerned.

Recent contract lettings have brought to approximately $300,000,000 the amount of shipbuilding which the commission has placed under contract in less than two years after the start of its ten year $1,250,000,000 program.

Arguments for Program.

The principal arguments advanced for going ahead rapidly with this construction, even though congress may enact a new neutrality law containing a prohibition against American ships carrying goods or passengers to belligerents, or entering combat zones, are these:

1. In event of this country becoming engaged in a war, fast merchant vessels would be needed for conversions into aircraft carriers, for use as auxiliary naval cruisers, possibly for troop transports, and to carry supplies.

2. Eighty-eight per cent of the 326 American ships of 2,000 gross tons and over which are now available for the foreign trade [not counting tankers, which are not generally engaged in transoceanic service] will be 20 years old or older by 1942. Twenty years is regarded by the commission as the nominal life of a merchant vessel. Even if some of the ships are laid up as the result of the abandonment of American flag services to British, French and German territory, the majority of those remaining in operation would need replacement.

May Replace Foreign Service.

3. Some of the vessels withdrawn from routes to the belligerent countries might replace foreign flag services shifted from other parts of the world to handle cargoes from the United States to England, France and other nations in Europe. Additional American ships would be placed in service to South America and on some lines in the Pacific, although voyages to Australia, New Zealand and other British and French ports would be prohibited. Increased demand for this country's ships would result from any substantial increase in trade with South America, which some members of congress say may be promoted by long time credits.

4. If the United States avoids involvment in the war, a modernized merchant fleet would place her in a favorable economic position. Her ships would be in demand due to the depletion of the merchant fleets of the belligerent countries, and her foreign trade would be promoted by the fast shipping service she could offer.

Officials said that about one-third of America's foreign trade was carried in American bottoms in 1938.

RAILROAD BOND PRICES ADVANCE; FEDERALS WEAK

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Railway issues, selected utilities, and some industrial loans forged upward in the bond market today. Closing gains ranged from fractions to 2 or more points among the leaders.

United States government issues, after showing rising tendencies in the preceding four days, turned weak and ended with losses of as much as 30-32ds.

Many foreign dollar bonds also turned downward as war reports from abroad continued unsettling. Canadian 4s of '60 at 87¾ fell 2¼.

Bond sales on the exchange in September amounted to $481,361,375, face value, third highest for any month on record and the largest since $536,315,000 changed hands in December, 1920. This compared with $11,394,000 in August and $133,954,000 in September of last year.

COTTON

Speculative interest in cotton yesterday was limited and prices held within a narrow range. Mills and shorts were fair buyers at times, while hedging sales increased on the small upturns. There was some selling of December against purchases of March at 30 points difference. Closing trades on futures were .04 to .13 cent a pound higher.

Political developments in Europe are having considerable influence on trade sentiment. Part of the upturn was in sympathy with securities.

Spot cotton closed .10 to .11 cent higher with New York, 9.39 cents; New Orleans, 9.32 cents; Galveston, 9.16 cents, and Houston at 9.15 cents a pound. Prices follow: the number of such people, and the number of private gifts and donations is automatically reduced. In addition, the number of people willing to risk surplus cash in business ventures decreases.

TAXES CONSUME NATION'S INCOME MORE GREEDILY

Eating Still Deeper Into Economic Life Line.

These facts are revealed in a recent summary by the treasury department of individual income tax returns, filed last year and covering 1937 incomes.

The number of net incomes over $25,000 in 1937 was far below 1928, top of the last great boom, and was below that of earlier years [with the exception of the severe depression years] back to 1922.

In 1937 the national income was back to about the 1925 level, but the number of incomes over $25,000 a year was 39 per cent less in 1937 than in 1925. The combined net income of these individuals was 48 per cent less.

Statistics Reveal Trend.

The following table illustrates this trend, giving the number of people reporting net income over $25,000 a year, the total amount of such incomes, the balance of such income after paying the federal income tax alone, and the percentage of the tax to net income:

Year.	No. of Returns.	Net inc. [millions].	Bal. aft. taxes [millions].	Per cent tax to net inc.
1930	60,692	3,875	3,475	10.3
1931	35,322	2,128	1,933	9.2
1932	26,218	1,406	1,205	14.3
1934	28,931	1,534	1,184	22.8
1935	36,709	1,993	1,528	23.3
1936	59,476	3,288	2,390	27.3
1937	55,416	3,006	2,196	26.9

These figures clearly disclose that a larger portion of the total national income is going to smaller income groups, and a lesser portion to those in the higher income class.

THE SPECIALIST.

A stock exchange is a highly complicated mechanism. It is divided into a large number of units, each performing an essential function. Different individuals have specialized tasks. Among these individuals the specialist is in a central position.

The specialist concentrates on one or more stocks. He is always at one place on the floor, carries a book in which customers' bid and ask quotations are kept, and is the man to whom brokers first go when desiring to make a transaction.

The specialist's book lists all buying and selling orders that he has in his stocks. Such orders may have been on his book for many weeks and may be at prices quite removed from current market quotations. It is from this book, which no one except he may see, that the specialist makes a market in his stocks.

When a broker gets an order to buy or sell from his customer—the public—he goes to the specialist and asks for the market price. The specialist quotes the nearest bid and asked prices. The broker may then try to get a better price from other brokers or another specialist. If he does not, he may make a transaction with the original specialist.

The privilege of specializing is a franchise granted by the exchange. In order to get the franchise the specialist accepts responsibility for making a fair and orderly market in the stock or stocks in which he specializes. If he fails to establish such a market he may be suspended from the exchange.

The manner in which a specialist makes a fair and orderly market may best be shown by two illustrations governing the same situation.

1. When the specialist does not operate:

One hundred shares of a stock are sold at 48½. Then come into the market 200 shares which are to be sold "at the market"—or the highest existing bid price. The highest bid is for 100 shares at 48, and the next highest is for 100 shares at 45. Of the 200 shares offered for sale, 100 are sold at 48 and 100 at 45. The price breaks 3½ points on two trades.

2. When the specialist does operate:

In the same situation as outlined above, the first 100 of the 200 shares offered for sale are sold at 48. Then the specialist must step in and create a "fair and orderly" market. He cannot permit a sudden price break to 45, the next highest bid for 100 shares. He therefore buys for his own account the second 100 shares offered. He believes that 47 is a fair price and pays that price for it. The price has broken only 1½ points.

When the market is rising, the specialist must supply stock from his own account in the same manner. He takes the risk.

The ability of the specialist to keep an orderly market in his stocks is watched closely by exchange authorities. Each week the floor committee of the New York Stock exchange requests reports from specialists, of which there are about 25 to 30 on the exchange. Not all stocks have specialists, but the active ones do.

The specialist's job, little known to the average market trader, is considered serviceable to the public.

WAR MAY HALT PORK IMPORTS INTO AMERICA

Foreign Shipments Drop Sharply at New York.

The war in Europe may cut off the flow of foreign pork, which during recent years has commanded a large trade in the United States, live stock men at the Chicago stockyards said yesterday. They made this prediction after reviewing a late report on unloadings from ships at New York, the principal port of entry for pork from abroad.

During the seven days from Sept. 14 to 20, inclusive, only 58,154 pounds of pork came into New York from other countries, mostly from Canada. This compared with 671,168 pounds during the seven preceding days. Of the latest imports 24,901 pounds were hams from Canada and Denmark. The latter was the only overseas country that shipped in hams.

Poland Former Largest Seller.

Formerly 21 foreign countries had been almost steady sellers of hams in the United States, with Poland far in the lead. For more than four years other countries had furnished sufficient ham to feed approximately 3,000,000 Americans without help from packers in this country. The volume of ham received during the period Sept. 14 to 20 represented what fewer than 90,000 people eat a week. The imports were the smallest since December, 1934. Prior to the 1934 drouth and 1933 pig killing pork imports were almost negligible.

The end of foreign pork in the United States is having little effect on the prices of pork and hogs in this country. Domestic production has been increased in such volume this year that the expansion will more than offset any decline in shipments from abroad.

Hog Slaughtering Heavy.

Slaughtering of hogs at the leading packing centers during the last week was the heaviest for any September week since 1934.

It is possible for foreign countries to fill pork orders in the United States at prices that are below any corresponding period in six years. Last week's average price of live hogs at the Chicago stockyards at $7.20, off 40 cents from the preceding week, was $1.30 lower than during the corresponding week in 1938 and $4.20 lower than in 1937.

Wholesale markets for fresh pork tumbled to the lowest levels in recent weeks. Fresh loins finished within a range of $13.50 to $17.50 a hundred pounds, off $1.00 to $1.50 for the week and unevenly 50 cents to $5.50 lower than a month ago. A year ago loins wholesaled from $15.00 to $19.50.

Lard Hogs Lead Decline.

The various classes of hogs fell unevenly 40 to 85 cents in value last week, "lard hogs" leading the way down. Most other classes of meat animals also declined in value. Beef steers slumped mostly 25 to 50 cents. Yearlings closed steady to 25 cents lower. Beef cows fell off fully 25 to 50 cents, but heifers held steady. Calves declined 50 cents to $1.00.

Lambs ran counter to the general trend in live stock, closing 25 to 50 cents higher for the week. Old sheep and yearling wethers gained 25 cents.

Nearly All Lines of Chicago Business Gain During August

Nearly all indices of Chicago business and industry registered gains during August compared with August, 1938, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday in its monthly statistical summary. Forecasting the September statistics will show an acceleration of the rate of gain, the association said:

"The August gains were registered in the last month before the outbreak of war in Europe and consequently do not reflect the further sharp increase in many lines of business which has occurred since that time."

Pig Iron Makes Big Gain.

One of the most substantial advances over last year was registered in pig iron production, which nearly doubled the 1938 output of 249,940 tons, rising to 484,759 tons. The association's index of employment in manufacturing industries rose 6.4 points, or nearly 10 per cent, to 72.2. The payroll index showed an even larger rise, advancing from 52.2 to 61.3.

Coupled with these favorable indications of the employment trend was a drop in the cost of living index to 84.9 in August from 86.5 in 1938.

Other Lines Make Progress.

In addition to the spurt in pig iron production, bank clearings, electric power production, and retail sales registered improvement over last year. Real estate transfers were more numerous, but involved a smaller monetary value. Live stock production declined.

Significant gains by comparison with July, 1939, were recorded in the number of telephones in use, car loadings, bank clearings, pig iron production, and trafic on the Chicago Surface Lines.

INDUSTRY'S NEED BOOSTS UTILITY SALES OF POWER

Output of Consolidated Gas Sets Record.

An indication of the extent to which the general expansion in industrial operations has benefitted the utilities was furnished yesterday in a report of the Consolidated Gas Electric Light and Power company of Baltimore.

Herbert A. Wagner, president, told stockholders that during the first eight months of 1939 the company sold a larger volume of electricity than in any comparable period in its history. He credited this record to the rapid expansion in manufacturing operations in its territory.

Sales of electricity increased 13.8 per cent over those for the corresponding 1938 period and sales of gas were 4.9 per cent higher, he said.

Earnings Rise Sharply.

As a result, net earnings of the company for the eight months increased to $4,300,066, from $3,728,277 a year ago, and were equal to $3.08 a share on common stock after preferred dividends, compared with $2.56 a common share a year ago.

The Waukesha Motor company of Waukesha, Wis., announced its net income for the year ended July 31 was $513,818, equal to $1.28 a share, compared with $451,685, or $1.13 a share, in the preceding fiscal year. J. E. De Long, president, told stockholders the company expects an increased volume of business as the result of development of a new type of Diesel engine for motor trucks and buses as well as for industrial uses.

Chicago Concern Earns Less.

The Chicago Flexible Shaft company issued a report estimating net income of the parent company, exclusive of subsidiaries, at $689,553 for the first thirty-six weeks of 1939, before federal taxes, compared with $1,001,489 in the corresponding period of last year. On the same basis, sales ot the company, which manufactures a number of electrical products, amounted to $4,973,524, against $5,515,563 in the 1938 period.

Clearings in September, as reported yesterday by the Chicago Clearing House association, totaled $1,360,900,000, compared with $1,170,700,000 in the 1938 month. The association's report, follows:

ASSOCIATED GAS PLAN TO DISPOSE OF 10 COMPANIES

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Recapitalization and reorganization plans of the Associated Gas and Electric system in compliance with the public utilities holding act of 1935 were described in a letter from J. I. Mange, president Associated Gas and Electric company, to Jerome N. Frank, chairman Securities and Exchange commission, and made public today. The letter also disclosed that Associated plans to issue $50,000,000 of debentures as soon as salable.

The plans thus far call for elimination of ten subsidiary corporations. The SEC was urged to use its efforts to obtain exemption of this type of stock transfer from taxation.

Mexican Chamber Passes Bill to End Capital Levy

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 30.—The chamber of deputies today approved the bill suppressing the 4 per cent tax that has been levied on capital exported from Mexico since 1934. It is believed abolition of this tax will facilitate the entry of capital. The measure will help to peg the peso at about its present level with respect to the dollar.

MORE DEEP OIL TESTS MADE IN ILLINOIS FIELD

New Drilling Scheduled in Washington County.

Centralia, Ill., Sept. 30 (AP).—Deep oil field tests continued to hold the interests of operators in Illinois exploration this week. A location was announced for a well to be drilled to the deep lying Devonian formation in Washington county if more shallow production is not found. A Wayne county well was drilling toward the Devonian after finding the McClosky and the St. Louis lime formations dry. It will be the first to test the formation in the area.

A third deep test was a disappointment in the Fayette county field, abandoned after finding salt and sulphur water in the Devonian. Two other deep tests were completed as producers in the Sandoval pool of Marion county, but one found water after flowing 380 barrels of oil in 12 hours.

May Be Deepest Test.

The location for the well in Washington county was Kingwood's No. 1 Charles Brink well, a mile west and a half mile south of Irvington. The lease is a 160 acre tract in the midst of a large block held by major operators. If it is drilled below the McClosky lime, it will be the deepest test in the county, where drilling has been quiet except in the Cordes pool, southwest of Nashville. Drilling is to begin early in October.

The Wayne county deep test was the new Penn Development company's No. 1 Xanders, in Leech township, which found the McClosky and St. Louis lime, topped at 3,500 feet, dry. The Devonian was expected at about 5,000 feet.

Dry and abandoned was Gulf's No. 3 Smail in the St. James field of Fayette county. The Devonian was reached at 3,311 feet, but the hole began filling with salt and sulphur water.

One Produces Oil.

Menhall's No. 1 Robinson produced 30 barrels an hour under choke in an initial test in the Sandoval pool, but the Menhall-Gulf No. 1 Goodwin found water after being drilled 2 feet deeper in the formation. The Sandoval pool has the only Devonian production in Illinois.

There were 591 locations, wells drilling, or completions in the Illinois basin this week, a slight decline from the preceding week. Included in total operations were 86 completions, of which 69 were oil wells. Wildcatting increased as 26 first reports of wells in unproved area were recorded.

MONOPOLY PROBE MADE WATCHDOG ON PROFITEERING

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30 (AP).—President Roosevelt asked the temporary national economic committee [monopoly committee] today to be a watchdog against profiteering growing out of the war in Europe.

Instructing the committee to keep "a constant eye" on prices of basic materials, the President said in a letter to Chairman O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] that he believed the group was "well qualified to invoke the forceful check of impartial inquiry on this kind of un-American activity."

The President added that he believed the committee, which has been studying the whole economic structure of business, "can well become an important part of our first line of national defense against ugly and inhuman greed."

The letter addressed O'Mahoney, who broke with the President over the Supreme court bill in 1937, as "Dear Joe."

O'Mahoney said he would call the committee into special session soon to outline methods of bringing its previous study of price structure up to date.

CHARGES HALF OIL LAND OWNED BY TEN CONCERNS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30 (AP)—The monopoly investigating committee heard today that ten companies, headed by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, own half of the gross proved oil reserve in the United States.

The witness, E. De Golyer, of Dallas, Tex., said, however, that these large companies accounted for only 36.8 of the nation's gross production of oil. He remarked that he did not know whether this was "by force of circumstances or design." He did not name the 10 companies.

"On a net basis," the witness said, "approximately one-third of the nation's [oil] reserves are owned by the so-called old Standard companies, one-fourth by small companies or individuals, one-fifth by the 10 principal independents and from one-sixth to one-eighth is royalty owned by landowners and royalty owners."

Business Men to Visit Some of Leading Chicago Plants

Members of the Chicago Association of Commerce will visit some of the plants which contribute to this city's industrial leadership on a tour arranged for Oct. 10, Wells T. Albade, chairman of the association's Illinois committee, announced yesterday. A party of 150 members and their wives will travel on a special Rock Island train. The event also will mark the eighty-seventh anniversary of the operation of the first Rock Island train, on Oct. 10, 1852.

Foreign Trade Conference Scheduled for Tuesday

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30 [Special].—A conference of export and import trade organization representatives with Edward J. Noble, undersecretary of commerce, and other officials will be held here Tuesday to discuss special problems of Latin American trade relations growing out of the European war.

ILLINOIS MAY YIELD BILLION BARRELS OF OIL

Geologist Estimates State's Reserves.

Some estimates of the state's unproved reserves by oil men, Dr. Bell added, place the figure as high as 1 or 2 billion barrels, but such predictions are largely a matter of conjecture, he added.

More than 30 new fields are now producing in 18 counties in the state, according to reports from the state geological survey.

Salem-Centralia Field Richest.

The richest field is the Salem-Lake Centralia pool, where more than 1,200 wells have been drilled in a little more than a year of development. Geologists predict that its ultimate yield will be in excess of 180,000,000 barrels. The Texas corporation has about 70 per cent of the acreage in this field and has drilled more than 700 wells up to this time. The Shell Oil company and Socony-Vacuum Oil company also are important major producers in this area.

Second in output is the Louden field in Fayette county, where production is expected to reach a total of 165,000,000 barrels, on the basis of present estimates of reserves. The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is the major producer in this area, controling about 90 per cent of the acreage through a subsidiary, the Carter Oil company.

Central Basin Ranks Third.

The central basin fields in Clay, Richland, and Wayne counties, rank third in productivity. They are expected to produce ultimately from 75,000,000 to 100,000,000 barrels of oil. The Pure Oil company controls the bulk of the acreage in this producing area.

Dr. Bell said that although development has been going forward rapidly in most of the state's fields, thousands of more wells will be drilled in the present producing pools. There are now approximately 3,700 producing wells in fields discovered since Jan. 1, 1937.

One of the most hopeful prospects for uncovering additional reserves in Illinois, Dr. Bell said, lies in the possible discovery of new producing lime formations at deeper levels than most wells are now being drilled. Impetus has been given to deep-level drilling in recent months, he added.

Deeper Deposits Indicated.

He cited an experience in the Sandoval field, a few miles north of Centralia. Oil in commercial quantity was recently discovered in a formation known as Devonian limestone at a depth of 2,920 feet in the old Sandoval field, which had been producing for 30 years from a formation called Benoist sand at a depth of 1,550 feet.

"This is especially significant," Dr. Bell said, "because it suggests the possibility of extensive Devonian oil on favorable structures in the Illinois basin. Some of these, such as the Louden and the Salem-Lake Centralia pools, are known to be much larger than the Sandoval pool."

Production in the big Salem-Lake Centralia field is now coming from three formations, all of which are substantially above the Devonian depth. The deepest formation, McClosky lime, is about 1,990 feet below the surface.

Deep level production has possibilities for development in the central basin fields also, Dr. Bell said.

CHICAGO STOCKS ADVANCE; FOUR SET NEW PEAKS

Prices were mostly higher in yesterday's trading on the Chicago Stock exchange. Four issues—Manhattan-Dearborn, Aetna Ball Bearing, Chicago Rivet and Machine, and Jefferson Electric—rose to new high levels for the year. In a turnover of 22,000 shares, 85 issues were traded, of which 49 advanced, 20 declined, and 16 closed unchanged.

Active markets which resulted from the outbreak of the European war brought trading volume on the exchange to 1,265,000 shares during September. Trade was 614,000 shares in August and 585,800 in September, 1938.

Trading in the first nine months of 1939 amounted to 6,203,000 shares, compared with 5,063,000 in the corresponding period a year ago.

CURB EXCHANGE MEMBERS HIRE MORE EMPLOYES

New York, Sept. 30 [Special].—Regular and associate member firms of the New York Curb exchange have hired 784 new employés since Sept. 1, according to a survey made last week. Of 175 replies received to a questionnaire, 86 showed increases in personnel and 89 showed no change. Additions represented 13.2 per cent of personnel of the reporting houses at the beginning of the month.

Forces in many of the large wire houses were at the lowest point in years when the war market commenced. This is illustrated by the fact that one house added 64, another 63, another 48, another 41, and several employed more than 25 new workers during the month.

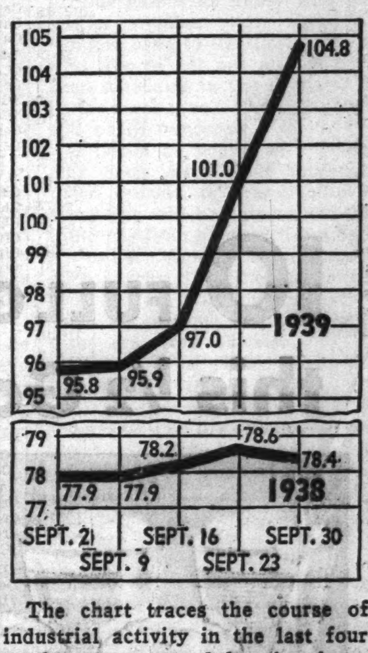
them, and a few let contracts for locomotives. Rail equipment orders in recent weeks have exceeded 150 million dollars, the largest amount in such a period since 1929. In spite of additions to equipment there were complaints of a car shortage. These came from coal operators in southeastern Kentucky.

Earnings reports of railroads still are showing improvement over 1938 levels. The combined net income of class 1 roads in August was estimated at around 10 million dollars, compared with $1,096,696 in the 1938 month. Freight volume in the latest week reported upon was the largest in two years.

Steel Mills Near Capacity.

Steel mills raised their operating rate to a national average of 83.8 per cent of theoretical capacity at the beginning of the week. The rate was near the 85 per cent level which the industry regards as its practical limit.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and shows the corresponding activity a year ago (1929-'30 average equals 100).

Some plants, however, are running at 100 per cent. Chicago mills last week operated at 82 per cent of capacity and are scheduled to produce at 84.8 per cent this week.

Most steel makers have all the orders they can fill this year and many are refusing to take bids on several important products. The mills are expected to announce their 1940 first quarter price schedules within two weeks. One mill raised prices last week.

Surveying the large amount of steel business that has developed in recent weeks, a trade publication said 500,000 tons of steel will be required for the 40,000 railroad cars which have been ordered in the last fourteen days. Steel companies were reported spending large amounts to recondition productive equipment.

Predict Larger Foreign Trade.

The department of commerce, announcing figures showing an increase in foreign trade in August, predicted further expansion as a result of the war. August exports were 9 per cent larger than those in July, and imports increased 4 per cent.

Conforming to expectations that Latin American countries will shunt some of their trade from Europe to the United States, Brazil announced rail and ship purchases in this country amounting to several million dollars.

Here are some of the statistics on industrial activity in the latest weekly periods for which figures are available:

Electric power output was 2,448,888,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 2,444,371,000 in the preceding week and 2,154,218,000 in the 1938 week; automobile production, 62,755 units, against 53,950 and 25,405; steel mill rate, 83.8 per cent of capacity, against 79.3 and 46.7 per cent, and freight loadings, 814,828, up 1.12 per cent for the week and 21.68 per cent compared with a year ago.

PARKS PREPARE FOR KING WINTER

50 YEARS' WORK AMONG NEEDY TO BE CELEBRATED

Hull House to Mark Golden Jubilee.

A man built a house in Chicago in 1856. It was a big house with great Corinthian pillars, heavy carved oak doors and important ceilings. The laughter of his children echoed through the paneled rooms and died in the far reaches of the lamplight. The man's name was Charles J. Hull.

Miss Charlotte Carr

More than 30 years passed. The owner and the children's voices were gone. The house was drab and gray with dust and neglect. Finally the wind working against its heavy windows stirred up a ghost. Neighbors shun stirred up a ghost: The neighbors shunned the old house at night and told of its haunted attic.

It was in 1889 that the old house suddenly came to life. So many neighbors came to call that five stone door steps were worn through. From basement to attic was new activity and throughout the entire world men and women began to hear of Hull house and its new mistress, Jane Addams. This month begins the golden anniversary year for the famed first settlement house of Chicago at Halsted and Polk streets.

Gathered to Read.

A half century ago this week the first group of young girls met in Hull house to read together from George Eliot's "Romola." Somehow their dull existence of work and worry faded away while the fascinating tale was unfolded.

The 50th anniversary booklet compiled under the supervision of Miss Charlotte Carr, director of Hull house for the last two years, is a pictorial survey of the art, drama, music, community service, recreation, and workers' education that today brings to Hull house a monthly average attendance of 40,000.

Of the golden anniversary year Miss Carr says: "We are not going to look backward. It is the progressive program outlined in the books written by Miss Addams that we will continue."

"Our greatest problem in this 50th year," explains Miss Carr, "is that Chicago takes Hull house for granted. With all its international fame, Hull house still must be financially supported. There are 13 buildings on Halsted street and 13 buildings at the Bowen County club to be kept up and a greater need than ever to be answered in the crowded community."

Building New Gym.

To make ready for the golden year a great deal of modernization work had to be done. "Hull house gymnasium was the first in Chicago. That means it is still the first," says Miss Carr, "and that means it is old and worn out."

Work of modernizing this gymnasium is almost completed. Old plumbing was ripped out and supplanted with modern showers. The third new floor in its history was put in.

By Oct. 9 the 30 year old coffee house which supplies meals for persons employed in the neighborhood at minimum cost will be reopened as a modern restaurant. The old-fashioned refrigeration has been supplanted by electric refrigerators. New tables, stoves, and decorations will make it completely up-to-date.

The game room for children has been redecorated. Most of this work was done by the children using the room. The furniture and new games were built in the trade school operated by the National Youth administration. The lumber and supervision was supplied by the settlement.

Senior Boys Have Room.

A new room was recently opened for senior boys. The boys are working on furniture now and are learning how to weave curtains for the windows and make Venetian blinds.

"The places where children may play cannot be dark, lurky corners," says Miss Carr. So $1,000 was spent to light the streets and alleys. In the summer time, until 10 o'clock, neighbors can use the front court to play cards. It has become an outdoor playground after sundown.

The two buildings at the Waukegan camp which can be heated in the winter will be open this year over week-ends for all types of meetings. The many Hull house clubs can now use the summer camp as a winter retreat.

Drama Division Changed.

Miss Carr has made another change in the drama division. Instead of the three or four drama groups in existence in other years, this fall they will be combined into one large group with three or four directors. The first performance on Nov. 3, 4, and 5 will be "Brave Little Tailor," by Putnam, to be produced by children under 10 years of age.

This summer a garden project was Zeal to Learn Unifies Those from War Area

BY MILDRED WILDS.

It couldn't happen any place else. A middle aged German sits every day between a Czech and a Pole in a room on the west side. Together they work on the same problem. Near them are several Chinese, a man from Japan, a pretty girl from Italy, and a plump Polish housewife.

A patient teacher with gray streaks in her hair points to the door. "What is this?" she asks slowly, distinctly. The Polish man looks at her closely, looks where her finger is pointing. He screws up his face, shakes his head. The Italian girl with pink bows in her hair smiles. "Thees ees a door," she answers haltingly.

New Home for All.

The pretty Italian girl came to America just a few weeks ago. The man from Greece served in the Greek navy. He arrived in August. The German Jew was in the drapery business in Berlin until a few weeks ago. All this class of immigrants from all parts of the world are students in Dante elementary school, 840 South Des Plaines street. They are learning to read and write English.

This year 105 students, a record breaker for the beginning of the term, came to Mrs. Helen G. Greenwood, Dante principal, to learn to read in this, the only elementary day school for adults in the city.

This year the classmates are more studious than ever. They ring out "with liberty and justice for all" when they give the pledge to the flag. Many accents blend the words into a shout. The Greek who served in the navy must learn English so he can go in the restaurant business. The Italian girl must learn English so she can be a dressmaker. The Polish girl, who talks with ther fingers and her eyes when her words give out, doesn't know what she will be when she is through school.

This Country—O. K.

"I know," she says through an interpreter, "that my home town is bombed. I don't know what has happened to my friends." Then in Polish she gives a long and animated explanation of why she came, how she likes it here.

The interpreter listens avidly, then gives a short translation to the vivacious oration. "She says," explains the interpreter, who is a more advanced student, "this country is—what is it you say—it is O. K."

The heavy set German Jew tells through an interpreter how he just missed the Gestapo in Germany who came after he had fled. His number came up just in time. It was for him a horrible few weeks after his Berlin business was gone until the immigration quota permitted him to sail. A cousin signed the affidavit. The cousin will try to get him a job when he learns to read and write English.

Dramatize Learning.

Some of the students are high school graduates, some have college training. But patiently they try again to dramatize a sentence and talk as they do it. "I stand," says the boy from Japan. "I walk" and "I sit down."

"What is this?" says the teacher, holding up a pencil.

"Thees ees a pencil," says the girl from Italy.

"What do I do with it?" asks the teacher.

There are 24 nationalities represented in Dante's adult elemenary school which was founded 30 years ago by Mrs. M. S. Pies in what is now Jones school. Each year the graduating students publish a year book which in June was dedicated to the faculty consisting of Mrs. Mary Dunn Velasco, grammar; Miss Rosina Larkin, history; Miss Julia Sheehan, vocabulary; Mrs. Naomi McLay, current events; Miss Marion Graves, geography, and Murl B. Bottlemy, arithmetic.

From 16 to 70.

There are a student government, clubs, and social events planned by the students, who range in age from 16 to 70 years. Mrs. Greenwood expects a larger enrollment this year than ever before.

The reason may be found in one girl's explanation of why she left her native land. "Here we have no beeg job, no beeg car, and eet ees strange. But we are free people."

LEAGUE TO HOLD ANNUAL BUNDLE DRIVE THIS WEEK

Churches of the west side are coöperating in the annual bundle campaign of the Chicago Christian Industrial league this week. Trucks from the league will call at homes in the area to gather discarded papers, clothing, and furniture.

These materials are used to furnish men with repair work which enables them to be 85 per cent self supporting. The bundle campaign is also a united effort to gather second hand clothing. During August more than 17,000 meals and 10,000 nights lodging were furnished to homeless men. Medical service and clothing was provided for hundreds.

Leading in promoting the campaign are Mrs. George Harvey Jones of River Forest, Mrs. Stuart B. Krohn of Oak Park, and Mrs. James Henderson of Austin. West side men on the board of directors are George Harvey Jones, the Rev. Lawrence E. Schwartz, the Rev. Paul S. Johnson, Stuart B. Krohn, and James Henderson of Austin. The Rev. William Seath of Oak Park is league president.

Striving to Capture Autumn's Fleeting Hues

This is a schoolroom. No more prim rows of little people with folded hands and no more copy books, for learning has gone modern. The trees and banks of fall flowers are the schoolroom walls and the lesson books are the birds that sing in the branches. St. Patrick academy, 2300 Washington boulevard, is using its garden for this kindergarten art class. Colors are taught with color charts, flash cards, and prints from The Tribune. Blueprints are made of leaves and flowers. To duplicate autumn's changing colors requires multiple paint pots. Sister Mary Dorothy is the instructor and four of her little charges are, left to right, Charles Scully, 921 South Austin boulevard; Patricia Ward, 112 South Lavergne avenue; Joan Bremer, 1301 North Monitor, and John Fertig, 4925 Jackson boulevard. HORSEMEN WAIT START OF ANNUAL 100 MILE JAUNT

Endurance Test Begins Friday Morning.

Fifty-two riders and their horses await the signal Friday morning that will announce the start of the 1939 Chicagoland 100-mile ride over Cook and Du Page counties forest preserve trails and highway bridle paths.

Purpose of the ride, as explained by Wayne Dinsmore, chairman, is to stimulate interest in horseback riding, to give better understanding of the essentials of good riding horses and how to condition them, and to encourage greater use of the safe riding trails available in the area.

Ten of the entrants in the ride are women and girls, two are from Ohio, two from Iowa, one from Michigan, and one from Indiana. The ride, lasting three days, will be the second conducted under the joint auspices of the Town and Country Equestrian association and the Horse and Mule Association of America.

35 Miles in Forests.

The journey will start at 8 o'clock Friday morning from the Woodland Valley Riding and Hunt area, near the Mascoutin forest preserve, and will first cover the 35 miles of trails in the Palos hills and Cantigny forest preserves. Later routes will be along county highways. The ride will end at 1 o'clock Sunday at the Dunham Riding club show ring in Wayne, where judging will take place.

Among points to be determined by the ride are the value of type and soundness in the selection of horses, the best methods of saddling, and the proper methods of training and conditioning the animals for long rides.

First and second winners will be presented trophies, and the next eight best riders will receive bronze medals. There will be a trophy for the rider considered to have displayed the finest horsemanship throughout the ride, and every rider who finishes the 100 miles will be awarded a bronze medal.

40 Miles in Seven Hours.

Albert W. Harris and R. Douglas Stuart will ride Arabian horses. Mr. Harris last year won the trophy for displaying the best horsemanship.

Horses will travel 40 miles each of the first two days, and are expected to cover the distance in approximately seven hours. Sunday, the distance will be 20 miles and the time three hours. Each horse must carry not less than 150 pounds nor more than 190 pounds. The ride is not a race but rather an endurance test.

The first prize trophy will be contributed and presented at the end of the ride by Clayton F. Smith, president of the board of forest preserve commissioners.

Committee and Judges.

Members of the committee of which Mr. Dinsmore is chairman include Roberts Mann, superintendent of maintenance of the forest preserve district, J. M. Fitzgerald, Helen M. L. Hall, Elmer J. Holsdorf, J. C. Thompson, and A. H. Sus, secretary treasurer of the Town and Country Equestrian association.

Judges for the ride are Prof. R. E. Hunt, of Blacksburg, Va.; Prof. C. W. Crawford, of the University of Illinois; and Harry D. Linn, assistant state secretary of agriculture from Des Moines, Ia. Dr. T. A. Sigler, of Greencasle, Ind., veterinarian, will examine all horses entered in the ride.

ACADEMY OF FINE ARTS IN AUSTIN TO HAVE OPEN HOUSE TUESDAY

The Austin Academy of Fine Arts, 631 North Central avenue, will hold its annual faculty reception and open house at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. The school will be open for inspection and a short program will be presented by Theodora Sturkow-Ryder, concert pianist, and Eugene Dressler, oratorio and concert singer.

Eugene Dressler.

Both Mme. Sturkow-Ryder and Mr. Dressler are new faculty members at the academy. She has appeared in more than 1,500 concerts and is the composer of 100 works.

Mr. Dressler has appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra sixteen times in addition to engagements with the Apollo club, Swedish Choral club, and North Shore Music festival.

OAK PARK C. OF C. TAKES POLL ON ARMORY PLAN

Shall an armory be built in Oak Park? That residents of the suburb may have an opportunity to voice their sentiment on the question, the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce has asked the president's council to conduct a vote among organizations represented by council members.

"We would like to have residents of Oak Park vote on the question individually," said Emile O. Bloche, president of the chamber. "Residents may do so by addressing a letter or post card to the Oak Park chamber."

Participants in the chamber's interfleet safety contest reported 339,338 miles of truck travel in August, with only three slight accidents. Jay F. Hepler is chairman of the Oak Park trafic control commission. The purpose of having an interfleet safety contest is to promote safety among truck drivers and automobile drivers who use their vehicles for business purposes.

SPORTS ATTIRE O. K. AT SUBURB CHURCH DINNER

Ranch and sports attire will be proper at the annual fall roundup and barbecue chicken dinner to be held Wednesday night under the sponsorship of the board of wardens of the River Forest Presbyterian church. The dinner, starting at 6:30 o'clock, will be served in the community house of the church, Quick and Jackson streets.

The annual roundups, attended by hundreds of members of the church and their friends, are in the nature of an old fashioned church social, although on a larger scale. Entertainment will include selections by the Erie Chapel Radio quartet.

Invocation will be by the pastor, the Rev. C. A. Spaulding, president of the church extension board of the presbytery of Chicago.

WOMAN STARTS BATTLE TO RID AUSTIN OF RATS

Also Is Seeking Better Transportation.

A modern Pied Piper with newer methods of getting rid of rats has come out of Austin. This time it's a woman. She is a dark haired, civic-minded matron named Mrs. Catherine Boyle, 5439 Kamerling avenue, whose weapon is the organization of 500 property owners into the Greater Austin Improvement association.

Mrs. Boyle's organization, which started work in June, has a platform of improvements for north Austin including rat extermination, better transportation and more police protection. Mrs. Boyle says: "This is the first improvement association in Austin; the first time the little fellow is getting a chance to talk it over with other little fellows."

Born in Area.

The organization's founder was born and grew up in the west area. Proud of the reputation north Austin has long had of being a fine residential section, Mrs. Boyle was astounded when a neighbor told her she was afraid to go into her basement for fear of rats.

Mrs. Boyle then made a survey of conditions, studied the accident statistics and the transportation problem. The results are the new organization, the campaign for a police station at North avenue near Augusta boulevard and the coöperation of Ald. Roger Kiley [37th] in distributing free rat poison to residents.

Ald. Kiley, in coöperation with the organization, is using his office as a free clinic for vermin extermination. Residents may call there for free powder or if conditions are very bad may call for an exterminator to place the powder around their property.

Ask Goose Island Bridge.

Mrs. Boyle's organization is also working to have Augusta boulevard made a through street with a bridge built over Goose Island where the boulevard is interrupted. By Oct. 15 the organization expects to have a leader appointed for each street in Austin to campaign for better west side transportation and more police protection at dangerous intersections.

The improvement association has held three meetings to date. Members have discussed the possibility of a new branch library built on or near the grounds of La Follette park. North Austin is now served by a small branch library in a store on North avenue which Mrs. Boyle explains is not fully equipped.

Officers elected by the organization are John Ellefsen, president; James Hood, vice president; Mrs. Boyle, secretary. Directors are Chester Grondy, Earl Grondy and Fred Lyons.

College to Offer Jewish Courses for Youth League

The Jewish Youth alliance of Chicago, coördinating organization for 18 Jewish Youth leagues of high school students, has opened registration for preparatory classes in Jewish subjects at the College of Jewish studies, 220 South State street. The courses are open to members of Jewish Youth leagues at Austin, Crane, Farragut, Harrison, Manley, and Marshall high schools on the west side. The first meeting will be held Oct. 11.

MORELAND LUTHERANS TO ASSEMBLE TODAY IN ANNUAL REUNION

The annual homecoming rally of Moreland Lutheran church, Lotus and Huron streets, will open at 10:45 o'clock this morning. The Rev. Joseph C. Simonson will preach the sermon, "Homecoming — Find God." Charles Gram of the Emmanuel United Lutheran church, Maywood, will address a rally day assembly in the Sunday school this morning.

Mrs. John Cruickshank is organist for the homecoming service, and Edward A. Nelson will direct the choir in Mozart's "Gloria in Excelsis." The morning offering will be used to purchase coal for the church.

A fellowship hour and confirmed reunion will be held at 5:15 o'clock this afternoon. The Rev. Myron C. Austinson of Grace church will speak and the Moreland choir will sing. Vocal soloist will be Miss Anne Kruzic. The Ladies Aid society, of which Mrs. Carl Franzen is president, will serve supper.

PLAN OX ROAST FOR WHEATON FALL FESTIVAL

An ox roast is being considered as a feature of a fall festival planned by members of the Wheaton Business association to be held Oct. 11 to 14. O. M. Anway recently was appointed chairman of the four day program by William Atten, president of the association. Mr. Anway suggested that a pit for roasting the animal could be located at Main and Front streets, or at the high school grounds.

Chosen to assist Mr. Anway in the festival, during which the streets would be decorated with corn stalks and streamers, are Joseph Kriebs, Miss Leona Binder, Anton Carlson, P. L. McPheeters, Harold Engstrom, E. R. Soukup, Don Murray, Duke Durfee, Mrs. Frances Jones, Bert Kauffman, Marvin Carney, Bernard Klein, Malcolm Seeley, Joseph Ruch, Albert Massman, E. C. Lindell, George M. Smith, and H. H. Overbey.

The association not only made plans for the October festival, but for the Christmas holidays as well. Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Scheffler have agreed to donate the tree. Byron Binder, chairman of the Christmas committee, will have as his assistants O. M. Anway, Bert Kauffman, Phil Richmond, Anton Carlson, Charles Pawlik, and Rudy Scheffler.

New England Women Plan to Meet Next Thursday

Mrs. Howard W. Evans, president of Pilgrim colony of the National Society of New England Women, will be hostess at a reception and tea for colony members in the Woman's University club at 410 South Michigan avenue next Thursday. It will be the first meeting of the new season.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

FOR 20 years Morris Roniger, 1530 South Christiana avenue, has been a cleaner and dyer in the Lawndale district. To his neighbors he was just an honest workingman who pressed pants and coats and got them delivered on time. But for three years Mr. Roniger has been writing a play, the story of his life and how he turned down a fortune. It is completed now and is called "The Outcast."

Morris Roniger.

Mr. Roniger was born in Austria. He was left by his father and mother, when he was 3 months old, to the care of a grandmother until her death six years later. From that early age he says he shifted for himself, went hungry, and searched for his mother. He finally found her. She had married a banker, and her home was a mansion. She treated him coldly and sent him away.

In 1891 he came to America, and he has served in the Spanish-American war and the world war. Years afterward, when Mr. Roniger had become a business man, a message came from his mother, then an old and lonely woman, who told him she wished him to come to Austria and share her wealth. But she said he must leave his wife behind. Mr. Roniger flatly refused.

ADDED to the list of biographies of members of the Cicero Rotary club being compiled by Francis P. Clish is that of Charles August Prexler, secretary of the Cicero-Berwyn Gasoline Retailers' association. Charles was born in Cicero on Aug. 19, 1914. A year later his parents moved to Berwyn. At Morton High school he worked and studied for three years as an automobile mechanic in the vocational shops. He was graduated from business college in 1932, after which he became a junior partner with his father in a gasoline service station business. His hobby is racing in his outboard motor boat Ann. He met Ann Baron of New Brunswick, N. J., at A Century of Progress. The wedding was set for this October, but Charles was taken ill, and it now appears that the date may have to be postponed.

St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church in Forest Park is welcoming to the office of teacher, organist, and choir director Robert Reuter, who until recently was educational assistant and director of music in First Trinity Lutheran church at Pittsburgh, Pa. Mr. Reuter began his musical education at the age of 6, when he studied piano with his father, who still is professor of music at Concordia college, Seward, Neb. At 12 he won a gold medal in a state-wide competition conducted by the Nebraska Music Teachers' association. Later he continued piano studies with Maurice Dumesnil, French teacher, at Concordia college, at the University of Nebraska, and at the Pittsburgh Musical institute. In 1931 he organized the Pittsburgh Bach chorus and became its director. He has studied choral conducting under Dr. F. M. Christiansen of St. Olaf choir.

Miss Zelia Phillips, now attending Morton High school for a second time after a lapse of four years, has had a varied career as a student. Within a few weeks her family plans moving either to Kentucky or New York. Miss Phillips' first grade work was experienced in St. Louis, Mo., her birthplace. Then, until she was ready for the eighth grade, her mother tutored her. The longest residence in one place for the family was a year, in California.

FULL PROGRAMS ARE ARRANGED FOR CHILDREN

Games and Skating Are Scheduled.

King Winter will be welcomed by his west side subjects whenever he chooses to come. The Chicago park district is ready for his long annual visit. Fall and winter sports, from fireside games for those who admire winter weather most through the window pane to ice skating for those who like to get out and in it, have been scheduled in the 13 major parks in the west area. The fall programs will begin tomorrow.

Children as young as 3 years old may come with their mothers, fathers, cousins, or grandmothers and every one will be entertained. Everything has been planned, from badminton to barn dancing, from pinochle to photography. Whether a woman has ever sewn a stitch or not she may enroll in costume, millinery and costume accessory classes.

With most of nature asleep during the snow blanket months, nature study classes will be continued with the use of wild life specimens donated by the Chicago Academy of Science in the study of birds and animals. These groups also will plant and maintain winter gardens for botanical study.

Advice for Parents.

Children will be prepared for the pneumonia months by the parks with many ounces of prevention. Infant welfare groups will be organized and conducted in many fieldhouses where parents may get advice on care and feeding.

For fun there will be folk dancing and all forms of the terpsichorean art. Little theater groups will present local park shows all through the season. A cast will be selected soon for the November production of "Room Service" in the Goodman theater. Plays will be under the direction of William S. Shepherd.

Will Have Ice Skating.

When it gets cold enough, frozen ponds, lagoons, and flooded fields in 108 parks throughout Chicago will serve as ice skating rinks. Then fires will burn brighter in park fieldhouses and tables will be cleared for checkers, chess, bridge, and pinochle. Badminton and ping-pong are always popular sports in the game rooms.

WOULD EDUCATE CYCLISTS.

It is gratifying to note that a number of west suburbs are giving serious consideration to the safety problem of bicycle riding by school children. Bicycles are more popular than ever, and much as many parents fear to have their youngsters ride them in trafic, most of them succumb to their pleadings to have a part in the activity. It appears that motorists are fairly aware of the hazard and that education at this time is required most by the bicycle riders, too many of whom are unfamiliar with trafic laws.

It is not enough for the bicycle rider to feel that motorists will be watching out to protect them. The motorist, however careful, cannot cope with the wholly unexpected darting out of a wheel from behind a parked car in the middle of a street.

Certainly, bicycle riders should be taught the rules and should abide by them under penalty of having their wheels impounded. This would probably bring better results than mere warnings of danger.

SAFETY SEEKER.

DISLIKES NOISY TAVERNS.

Of what value is the health of a family? Certain saloonkeepers and police departments regard it of no value.

We are loyal citizens of Forest Park and not at all opposed to saloons in general, but we believe that no one should ask for a permit to open a saloon when the same is only a few feet away from the bedrooms of the neighbors and when the saloon is to be open for business until all hours of the morning with music on full force, shouting and laughter which naturally will keep the family next door awake.

That is the sad condition we find ourselves in and about which we complained again and again to the police department—with no result, and wrote to the village administration only to find that everything continues as it was.

FRED BIRKIGT.

WHERE ARE STAMPS SOLD?

Where to get postage stamps is often a very hard job, as one does not know where to go and many people feel that they are imposing on a store when they buy stamps. In Europe, it is possible to buy postage stamps from the mailman. This custom should be extended to America as it would be both logical and convenient for the postman to carry a small supply of stamps which the home dwellers along his route can buy when they need them. If the postoffice deserves to be of service it should do this.

CHARLES WOHL.

ABOUT THOSE TREES.

Back in 1937 all the trees were cut down on 56th avenue from 12th to 26th streets and the pavement was torn up and the street widened. New pavement was laid and elm trees were planted by the state. Today some of the elm trees are doing nicely, but some of them are dead or dying.

Surely the state should replace those dead or dying trees so it will not spoil the beauty of the street with large gaps of treeless spaces in later years.

JAN MASARYK IS FIRST SPEAKER IN FORUM SERIES

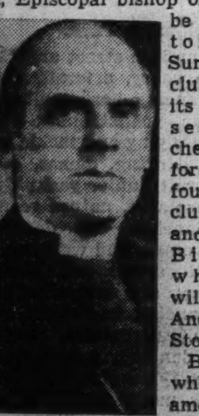
SUNDAY EVENING CLUB OPENING SPEAKER TO BE BISHOP STEWART

The Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, Episcopal bishop of Chicago will be the speaker tonight at the Sunday Evening club which opens its thirty-third season in Orchestra hall. Clifford W. Barnes, founder of the club, will preside and introduce Bishop Stewart whose subject will be "Four Anchors in the Storm."



Bishop Stewart.

Bishop Stewart, who is classified among the ten leading preachers of America, is noted for his active interest in church unity. In 1927 he was a delegate to Lausanne, Switzerland, where the first world conference on faith and order was held. Two years ago he attended the Edinburgh conference and was appointed a member of the continuation committee. Last year Bishop Stewart was awarded the Alumni medal at Northwestern university for distinguished service to his alma mater, of which he is a trustee.

Edgar Nelson continues to direct the club's choir of 125 mixed voices and the personnel of the quartet is unchanged from last year—Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano; Virginia Auyer, contralto; Charles Sears, tenor, and Mark Love, baritone.

The Marshall Field chorus, 200 voices also directed by Mr. Nelson will sing excerpts from Handel's "Messiah" at the 7 o'clock service; and Stanley Martin, the club's organist, will give a short recital before the 8 o'clock service at which the anthem will be "Prayer for Our Country." This number is based on a prayer written by George Washington to the governors of several states on June 8, 1794, and has been set to music by W. R. Voris, a contemporary American composer.

GOLDEN JUBILEE OF PARISH IS TO BEGIN TODAY

St. Francis Xavier Will Hold Celebration.

Observance of the golden jubilee year of the parish of St. Francis Xavier, La Grange, will begin this morning with the celebration of a solemn high mass at 11 o'clock. The Rev. William J. O'Brien, pastor, and his assistants, the Rev. James E. Donovan and the Rev. William J. Bennett, will officiate.

The Rev. William J. O'Brien.

In connection with the observance, a jubilee mission to be held Nov. 12 to 26 recently was announced by Father O'Brien. The mission will be conducted by the Marist Fathers of Washington, D. C.

Plans for a celebration to be held at the Palmer House on Dec. 2 are being made by the executive committee of the Catholic Woman's club and the Holy Name society of the parish. A suite of rooms has been reserved for the festival, and it is expected that many families who formerly resided in the parish, as well as friends of parishioners in other communities, will be present.

Created in 1890.

The parish of St. Francis Xavier was created Oct. 15, 1890, by an act of Archbishop Patrick A. Feehan. The Rev. James M. Hagan was appointed pastor and served until his death on Aug. 30, 1903.

Original boundaries of the parish were Roosevelt road on the north, Joliet road on the south, the Des Plaines river on the east, and the village of Belmont on the west. The number of families listed at the time was 94.

First mass was celebrated in the home of Dr. George Marshall Fox. Thereafter, for 18 months, Sunday mass was said at the country club. In 1891, land at the corner of Ogden and Spring avenues was donated for the erection of a new church by Franklin D. Cossitt, whose family is still actively interested in the parish.

In 1892, a frame structure of Gothic design was erected. First mass was celebrated in the new church on St. Patrick's day of that year, and Archbishop James E. Quigley conducted the dedication ceremonies the following June.

At the death of the Rev. Mr. Hagar, the first pastor, the Rev. Joseph A. Bollman was appointed to take charge. The Rev. Mr. Bollman was pastor for 19 years, until his death in 1922. The Rev. John H. Nawn was appointed by the then Archbishop Mundelein to succeed Father Bollman.

New Church Is Built.

During the pastorate of Father Nawn, in 1930, the old church and rectory were dismantled and the new church of St. Francis Xavier and its adjoining rectory were built. The Rev. James Doyle was assistant to Father Nawn at the time.

The edifice of St. Francis Xavier church is of Roman Byzantine stlyle and is considered one of the finest examples of architectural design in the diocese. Erected at a cost of $400,000, the church was dedicated on June 14, 1931, by Cardinal Mundelein. Father Nawn passed away in 1936 after serving as pastor for 14 years.

The Rev. William J. O'Brien, appointed to succeed Father Nawn, is a native Chicagoan. For fifteen years he was dean of studies at Quigley Preparatory seminary.

Several societies for youth have been organized in the parish. Two shrines—Our Lady of the Wayside and the Shrine of the Crucifixion—have been established. New class rooms have been added to the parochial school built in 1917 and at which the enrollment this year increased to 300 pupils. Plans are under consideration for a substantial addition to the school.

Social groups in the parish are planning increased activities during the 1939-'40 season in recognition of the jubilee year.

Special rites will be opened at 9:45 o'clock this morning when the congregation assembles at the old church, 9018 Brookfield avenue, for a procession to the new building.

Choral music will feature the services this evening. Young people will have charge of a program tomorrow night, and Bohemian churches of the area will join in services Tuesday evening. The Rev. LAWNDALE UNIT BUYS OIL DRUMS FOR 'CLEANUP'

To Be Used as Garbage Containers.

The purchase of 1,500 oil drums by the Better Lawndale association recently has ended a five year campaign for more garbage containers in the area. Assisted by the Lawndale chamber of commerce, the association is having the containers cut, stenciled, and painted for distribution in the community by March.

Arthur Schimmel.

The distribution of the garbage containers will begin an educational campaign in the grammar schools and Manley and Marshall High schools sponsored by the Lawndale chamber. Trophies will be awarded for the best poems, lyrics, and posters on the subject of cleanliness. Arthur Schimmel is chairman of the educational committee.

The garbage containers are being prepared for distribution under the supervision of Jacob Shapiro, ward superintendent. Mr. Schimmel has collected pictures of the alleys as they are now and will take others after the campaign so that the public may see the improvement made.

Accompanying the campaign for cleaner streets, alleys, and back porches of homes and apartments will be a search for more play space to take Lawndale children off busy thoroughfares.

The cleanliness contest for school children will be judged by William Kabaker, president of the Better Lawndale association; Mrs. Emery Bass, Miss Ida Linquist, Nondor Weiss, Charles Stein, Dean Dorph Brown of Herzl Junior college, and Charles Brady.

HOT CAMPAIGN OPENS TO NAME NEW BOY MAYOR

Brotherhood Republic to Vote Oct. 14.

A new mayor will be elected in Chicago on Oct. 14. He will be some boy who can kick a football across an empty lot; who has influence in his gang. He will be a general all around good fellow. The citizens who will elect him are harsh critics, for they know what an all around good fellow ought to be.

It is campaign and election time at the Boys' Brotherhood Republic, 1530 South Hamlin avenue. The purpose of the city of boys is told best in Joe Saruk's campaign letter. He's one of the candidates for the highest post in the republic government. Says Joe:

"It is time that the Boys' Brotherhood Republic dropped all trifling differences among its citizens and devoted its time to big problems. For 25 years we were loyal to our country and for 25 years our country was served through our methods of self-government by which eleven thousand boys were benefited directly."

Seems Like a Club.

To all outward appearances the Boys' Brotherhood Republic is a club where boys with grubby hands and skinned elbows wrestle and box, play football and checkers. It is, in fact, a city with a mayor and a code of ethics and good manners. Their clubhouse is really a city hall, for to hundreds of boys it is the center of their world.

Allan David is another candidate. His letters are printed on yellow paper with a picture of him in a platform pose. His message says:

"It is campaign and election time in the B. B. R. and the 31st mayor will be elected on Oct. 14. The destiny of your 'second home' is at stake and I feel it my duty to put every citizen on his guard."

Planks in Platform.

His platform has seven planks. He says: "I will appoint an unprejudiced chief of police and a citizen of business ability will be put in the office of coöperate store manager. I will remember the right of every citizen to bring up questions to the city council. I will call for a report of the city treasurer at all council sessions. I will appoint an athletic committee to arrange games and promote tournaments. I will call court trials every week."

Every night at election time these boys are giving campaign speeches at the club house. It will be a hard fought election. But on Oct. 20, installation night, one boy with his hair combed slick will become mayor of Chicago's west area boys. Then his hard work will really begin. But he knows now how hard it will be to manage a bunch of boys. He's just a boy himself.

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS SEEK RADIO COURSES

Lewis Institute to Give Instruction.

In answer to requests from teachers in the Chicago public school system for training in the field of radio, Lewis institute, 1951 West Madison street, will offer courses in broadcasting, writing, and education in its evening school which will open tomorrow.

One course, production and rehearsal of programs, is a laboratory course for beginners and advanced students. Radio acting, speech, microphone technique and interpretation, and production of scripts before the microphone will be included. There will also be a laboratory for the consideration of production methods.

The second course, radio in education, is a general survey of the field with special emphasis upon the selection, utilization, and evaluation of radio programs for both in-school and free-time listening.

The third course, radio writing, will include discussions of transcribed programs of different kinds and their problems for the writer. Criticism will be made during laboratory classes.

The course in production of radio programs will be under the direction of O. J. Neuworth of the Northwestern school of speech. Luella Hoskins will teach the course in radio education and George Jennings will teach the course in radio writing.

Classes will meet from 7 to 9 oclock on Monday evenings and will carry either two credit hours or promotional credit for teachers.

ELMHURST CIVIC GROUP TO HOLD ROUND TABLES

Round table discussions by the trade division of the Elmhurst Trade and Civic association will take place this fall and winter, according to Irving W. Giese, executive secretary. The discussions will be held the second Cottage Hill café annex.

So successful have the Halloween parties been in Elmhurst the last two years, it is expected the Trade and Civic association again will cooperate with the American Legion and Kiwanis club in a program. The city-wide Halloween party has proved popular not only with youngsters of the community but with the adult population.

Plans also are being made by the trade division of the association to hold the group's annual fall party on Oct. 18 at the Itasca Country club. During the afternoon there will be golf, and a buffet supper at 7 o'clock will be followed by cards and dancing.

LA GRANGE CHEST DRIVE TO HAVE GOAL OF $16,000

A total budget of $16,000, the same as last year, and the probable scheduling of a campaign prior to the first week in November recently was announced in La Grange by the 1939 Community Chest through Robert Tansey and Clinton Loomis, co-directors, after a meeting of the board of trustees.

Early action in adopting a budget was stressed by President John Harper. Groups participating in the chest soon will be given an opportunity to assist in arranging for solicitors to canvass the community during the drive.

Robert Williams, vice president of the La Grange State Trust and Savings bank and a member of the Young Men's Business club, has been appointed chairman of solicitors.

Work of revising the card file already has been started. During the one week drive, funds will be raised for nine participating organizations to carry out the year-round program.

The nine participating organizations of La Grange and La Grange Park are the Girl and Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Infant Welfare society, Red Cross, Community Nurse and Service association, Chicago Tuberculosis institute, Volunteers of America, and Salvation Army.

Other officers serving with President Harper this year are O. C. Stenger, vice president, who was director of last year's campaign; W. H. Toates, treasurer, and Mrs. Arthur W. Sprague, secretary. The trustees are Ira W. Schmidt, Mrs. George W. Simons, John C. Tully, Ernest Kuehn, and E. L. Woodward.

OPEN THURSDAY AND SATURDAY EVENINGS

NEW METHODIST UNITY TO EMERGE IN CONFERENCE

Rock River Conclave Will Open Tuesday.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Bishop Waldorf.

A new Rock River conference of the Methodist church, comprising the old Rock River conference of the Methodist Episcopal church and a half dozen churches of the old Illinois conference of the Methodist Protestant church will emerge from sessions of the Rock River conference beginning Tuesday at St. James' church, 4600 Ellis avenue. It will be the centennial session of the conference. Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf will preside.

The local reorganization was required as result of the nation-wide merger of the three principal Methodist groups last spring at Kansas City, Mo. These were the two groups named and the Methodist Episcopal church, South. There are no Southern Methodist churches in the Rock River area which covers northern Illinois.

Only two churches in Chicago will be affected. These are the Methodist Protestant churches in the Southfield community, 78th street and Cregier avenue, and the Wakeford church at 76th street and St. Lawrence avenue. The Methodist Protestant church severed itself from the parent Methodist Episcopal church before the Rock River conference was formed a century ago.

Basis of Centennial.

Completion of the local merger will form the basis of the centennial celebration which will be launched at the conference sessions.

Election of delegates to the first quadrennial general conference of the united Methodist church and to the organization sessions of the North Central jurisdictional conference will call for balloting by the local conference.

Among those who will receive many votes for the honor of representing the local conference at the coming historic meetings will be the Rev. Dr. Thomas M. Pender, who, as pastor of the host church, will give the address of welcome at Tuesday night's session. Others who probably will be nominated include Dr. John Thompson of Chicago temple, general conference veteran, who will give the conference memorial address on Wednesday morning; Dr. Aubrey S. Moore, head of the Chicago Home Missionary society; Dr. Ralph Wakefield, president of the Chicago Church federation, and Dr. Ernest F. Tittle of Evanston, who will address the conference Friday night on the subject, "Personal Religion." Four ministers and four laymen will be elected to the general conference and seven of each order to the jurisdictional conference.

The election has been set for Thursday following the formal organization of the new Rock River conference. Roll call of the members of the reorganized conference will precede the election.

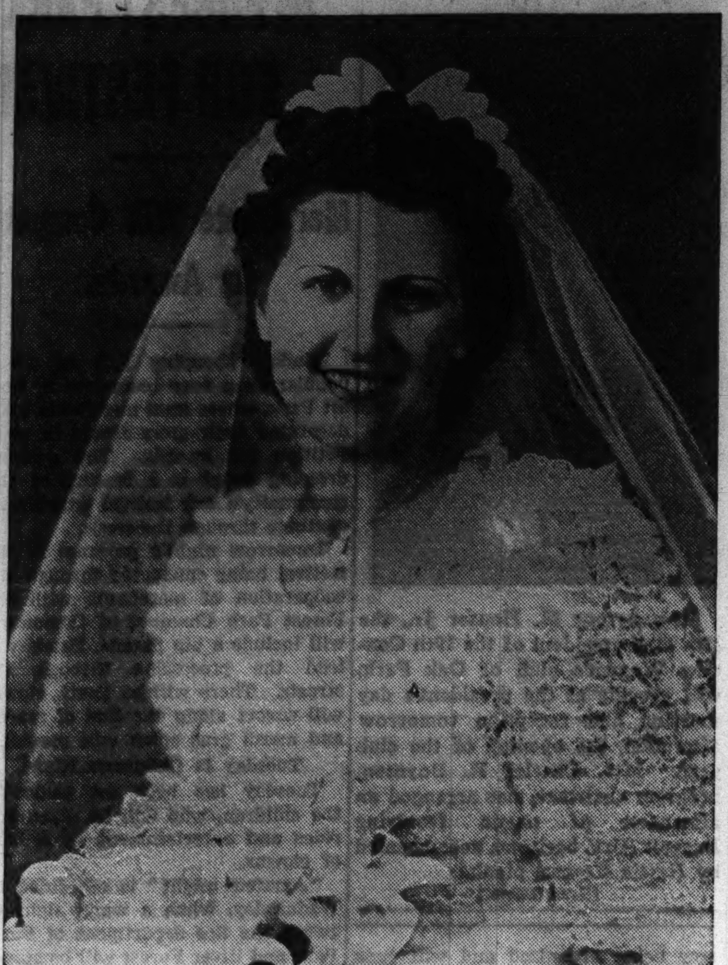
Report on War Affect.

What the European war and the Sino-Japanese conflict are doing to Methodist missions, educational institutions, and welfare agencies in Europe and Asia, will be outlined by Dr. Heil D. Bollinger, 740 Rush street, head of Wesley foundations of the church's board of education.

The final report of the laymen's association of the old Rock River conference will be made by A. C. Crawford, 10149 South Hoyne avenue, president of the association, on Wednesday morning. Women's societies will feature Wednesday afternoon sessions with Mrs. Blaine Lambert, 1745 Washington boulevard, presiding. Reports of the foreign and home missionary societies, the women's association, and the Rock River deaconess board, will be heard.

Centennial services will be held Thursday and Friday nights. Dr. Almer M. Pennewell of St. John's church will give the address at the former, and George B. McKibben, 4853 Kimbark avenue, will preside at the second historical meeting.

Cicero Girl Weds



Mrs. Walter J. Phillips was Miss Helen Magdalen Petkus before her recent wedding in St. Anthony's church, Cicero. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Petkus, 1436 South 50th avenue, Cicero. Manager,
Retail Advertising
Chicago Tribune

Dear Mr. McMahon:

Our Sunday Tribune metropolitan advertising on maternity dresses is proving so extraordinarily successful that we thought you would like to hear about it.

We have just recently started to show dresses of this type and the response has far exceeded our expectations.

To date, we have received letters from your readers in three states asking about our maternity dresses -- many of the replies containing our ads clipped for reference in the letters. This response came in addition to substantially increased buying from the people in our own neighborhood.

We never had such results from advertising before and we think they are due not only to the current campaign but also to our continued use of Sunday Tribune metropolitan advertising over the past year and a half.

Very truly yours,

A. Irwin May

Last year 687 neighborhood advertisers used this economical method to step up business and profits. Would you like to have more information about a sales-making plan to capitalize upon the buying power of those Sunday Tribune readers who are your best prospects?

Without obligation on your part in any way a Tribune representative will be glad to call on you at your request. Phone SUPerior 0100—Metropolitan section advertising.

Austin residents for more than 40 years, Mr. and Mrs. David Edmond Ayton, 5012 West Huron street, held open house recently for more than 200 friends and relatives in celebration of their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Ayton were married on Sept. 26, 1889, in the home of her parents in Jackson, Mich. She was Mimi Shearer before her marriage and was born in Chicago a year after her parents arrived from Scotland to make their home here. When her family moved to Aurora they were neighbors of the Ayton family who had come from Scotland. They had a baby named David, then 2 years old. He was destined to become her husband. The Aytons have two sons, Harvey Shearer Ayton, Winfield, and Kenneth Main Ayton of Park Ridge.

TRAFIC DEATHS FOR SEPTEMBER SHOW INCREASE

Sharp Gain Over August Is Revealed.

Pedestrian deaths increased sharply this month over those of August. This is shown by a study of trafic accident fatalities in Cook county.

Up to, but not including last Sunday, motor vehicles of all kinds had claimed 39 lives in Chicago and Cook county during September, and the month still had a full week to run.

During all of August, the pedestrian portion of the trafic massacre toll for the county was 32 lives. It seemed likely, therefore, that the September total might run 25 per cent or more ahead of that for the preceding month.

Likely to Exceed August.

It seemed probable, too, that this month's total of trafic deaths in all classifications for Cook county would exceed last month's by a fairly large margin. With a week still to go in September, the total had reached 65 deaths. The county's toll in all of August was 76 deaths.

Chicago continued as the principal scene of the county's fatal vehicular mishaps. Of the 65 lives snuffed out by gasoline driven conveyances on county streets in the first 24 days of this month, 52 are charged against Chicago.

Tribune Is Borne Out.

The trafic figures continue to bear out THE TRIBUNE's often repeated statement that "More than 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway."

Trafic observers agreed that none of the fatal crashes that occurred during the first 24 days of September could have happened on a modern elevated thoroughfare with a middle separator that would make head-on crashes impossible.

Only one of the August fatalities could have occurred on such a superhighway, in the opinion of police and other trafic authorities.

WEST SIDE 'Y' OUTLINES ITS GIRLS' PROGRAM

A fall and winter program arranged for west side girls is being planned by the west side branch of the Y. W. C. A. at 101 South Ashland boulevard. A swimming pool and gymnasium will be available, together with classes in archery, tennis, and dancing, the latter in conjunction with "boy friends."

For business girls and prospective brides a supper club will meet Wednesday evenings. Girls will buy the food, plan their menus, cook the meals, and serve and eat them at a cost of not more than 35 cents. Also there will be business girls' and industrial girls' clubs which will provide opportunities to make new friends and take part in country outings.

An open house for young men and women will be held each Sunday afternoon and evening. Miss Cecilia Jeffrey, general secretary, has announced that the new term for classes and clubs will officially start tomorrow.

started by Miss Carr. Window boxes were placed on every available ledge and window sill. A neighborhood woman, Mrs. Anna DeFalco, 711 South Miller street, famed for her own garden, became so interested in the project that she has volunteered to become gardener for next year.

The 50th anniversary celebration is being planned for some time this spring when all the neighborhood will be invited to take part. Tribute will be paid to Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, president of Hull house, for whom Bowen Country club is named.

Another new project is the Hull house shop at 124 East Delaware place supervised by Mrs. William McCormick Blair.

Miss Carr has taken her theme for future work from a statement made one Halloween at a party given for the children. So many children turned out for the party that Miss Carr realized there wouldn't be enough lollipops to go around. When she and some of the workers were discussing the plight and finding a solution, a woman with three tiny children in tow came up sympathetically. "Ain't it a shame," she said, "that children must learn so young to do without."

"So that is our purpose here at Hull house, or at least is a very important one of our purposes," says Miss Carr, "to prevent children from learning too young that they must do without."

BEAUTIFUL HOME IN LAKE FOREST ONCE COW BARN

Ingenuity Covers Traces of Its Origin.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Jerome Robert Cerny, Lake Forest architect, saw many fine possibilities in that portion of the estate of the late Cyrus H. McCormick in Lake Forest which was known as the dairy farm group. He bought that same portion and built a beautiful stone masonry Monterey, California, type home—a home converted into its present state late last spring by the dramatic modernization of a former groom's cottage, a cow barn, dairy and pasteurizing rooms, and bottling spaces. The surrounding landscaping has been carefully preserved, the original grounds having been laid out by Warren Manning, landscape artist of Cambridge, Mass.

It is an inspiring example of what can be done with an artist's imagination and an architect's skill. There was no lavish expenditure of money, but the myriad changes wrought, when analyzed and examined in detail, were those which can be accomplished in the renovation of many a smaller home under thoughtful, able direction.

So complete is the change that it is difficult to "travel back" to a year ago and visualize what had stood on the grounds before the work of remodeling started. Hard to imagine, as one stands on the second floor balcony overlooking the circular court at the back with its fine Chine elm and beautiful gardens, that a short time ago no such home had been in existence. For the present house so "belongs" to its site that it would seem as if it had stood there a long, long time.

Every effort has been made to preserve the beauty of the traditional in architecture and decorations.

As you enter the front court from the Ringwood side, you pass through white iron gates and into a rectangular court with buckthorn hedge and old hitching posts taken from the former barns on the estate.

Stone and Split Shakes.

The stonework of the exterior has an interesting warm buff shade, and that portion of the house which is not stone is executed in hand split shakes. In order to keep the weathered effect of the walls, paint was not used, but a specially prepared whitewash for this type of wood which gives a stark white weathered effect to the shingles.

On going thru the house, the entire color assembly has the distinction of houses seen in Jamaica.

The entrance hall, which goes thru the house, is executed in pale pink walls and heavily carved old English cornices and a floor of parquetry of a material which resembles marble.

The large living room, which was once a stable, has retained its striking bowed ceiling and all the architectural details lean heavily toward the Grecian motif and form a modern background for all traditional furnishings. The walls are a warm eggshell pink shade, with floor carried out in a very white oak in Fountainebleau pattern.

Tide Under Panels.

The dining room, which was formerly a pasteurizing room, is interesting in that its tile wall was retained and covered with a paneling of heart pine. There's a rare charm in the warm coral glaze which was rubbed into this wood. The kitchen is done in light chrome yellow with warm olive green trim; walls and floor remain of white tile.

There is an attractive first floor bedroom with a bowed ceiling, a bow window, and a semi-tropical atmosphere similar to bedrooms found in Charleston and New Orleans.

The upstairs bedrooms overlook the balcony and courtyard and are carried out in warm shades of light green, ice blue, and lime. One step from any of these rooms and you are out on the balcony which overlooks the circular court.

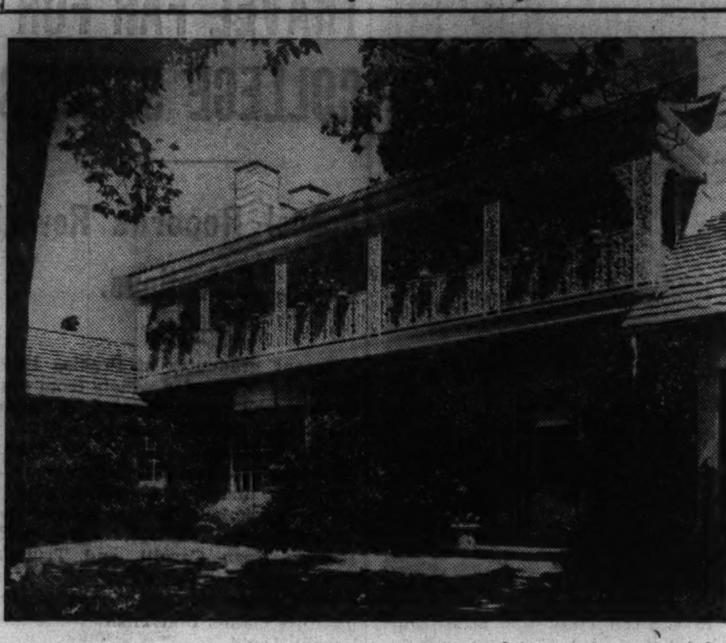
Another room of great interest is the summer living room. This was once an old implement shed and now its fine high ceiling adds distinction and character. The interior has been changed so that it now is not unlike a Swedish ski cabin.

Has Whitewashed Walls

The walls have been whitewashed, so applied as to flake off, and interesting sport posters have been mounted on the walls. In one corner there is a circular fireplace which has been designed to heat the room in winter time, and also there is a barbecue pit for picnic suppers.

From this main wing, embracing the court, is an "L" which consists of motor room and stables. These again are divided by a dog trot which is formed with an English portico. The interior of the dog trot is painted a pale blue.

Formerly a Dairy



From what was once a groom's cottage, dairy and pasteurizing rooms, and a large cow barn, there is now a beautiful Monterey type home of stone with ironwork of balcony recast from an old house in New Orleans. Jerome Robert Cerny, architect of Lake Forest and Chicago, bought the portion of the estate of the late Cyrus H. McCormick known as the dairy farm group and modernized it into a residence for himself and family.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 2.

Do not permit evergreens to dry out or they may be seriously checked, if not permanently injured. Autumn is an excellent time to change walks and drives and replant shrubbery borders. Cut back shrubs to put the tops and root systems in balance. Mutilated roots should be cut back to sound, healthy wood; surplus wood should be removed from the tops and at the same time cut back. Keep the center open. After the ground freezes mulch the newly planted stock. Mulching prevents heaving, and if strawy manure is used, it forms a blanket over the ground and keeps the plants in good condition for early growth in springtime. Plant lily bulbs as soon as they can be obtained. Groups of lilies add a delightful touch to the perennial border.

Tuesday, Oct. 3.

Lily of the valley should be planted during autumn. They do well in shade, where few things will grow. The flowers are fine for cutting. A top dressing of rich soil over the lawn will prove beneficial. Sow grass seed over the dressing. It will aid in filling bare spots and tend to thicken the stand. Dig gladioli and store in boxes in a frostproof room. They can be cleaned before spring. Save leaves for the compost pile. Wet them down if dry. If there are any semi-hardy perennials that are being tested lift and plant in a cold frame for winter protection.

Wednesday, Oct. 4.

Bulbs should be planted, but wait until the ground freezes before mulching. Transplant peonies, but do not use too many on the small grounds or they may dominate the plantings. Be sure not to plant too deeply; plant so that the crowns are no more than two and one-half inches below the surface. Remove house plants to the protection of an enclosed porch and later into the rooms.

Thursday, Oct. 5.

Be sure to label all kinds of plants when they are stored. It is easy to lose labels and to forget the names of varieties. The red hot poker is not dependable as a hardy plant and is best lifted and stored during winter. Amaryllis bulbs that have been growing during the summer should be lifted, or, if in pots, dried off and put in a dark place until activity is resumed toward spring. Do not pull dahlia tubers from the ground or the eyes may be injured. Dig the tubers carefully and store in a dry basement or cellar. Place the clumps upside down. If placed in an ordinary basement where it is very dry, pack the tubers in boxes of sand or peat. Cover with a moist newspaper.

Friday, Oct. 6.

Dig a few clumps of chrysanthemums if they are likely to be caught by frost. They quickly recover and will flower well. Plant a few bowls of pebbles and water with paper-white narcissi and Chinese sacred lilies. They will flower by Thanksgiving. It is a good time to feed the trees. Special food mixtures are available. Clean up the garden thoroughly. Remove all dried leaves from the iris as well as leaves that show brown or tan spots. Cut back the fans if there is any indication of disease. Remove all débris that has collected around the plants.

Saturday, Oct. 7.

Some trees should not be planted during autumn. Among these are the sugar maple, red maple, birch, beech, tuliptree, magnolias, poplars, linden and elms. It is best to wait until spring to transplant these. Late blooming perennials should wait until spring for removal and some shrubs do best when planted at that time. Among these are the butterflybush, hawthorn, hibiscus syriacus, spicebush, sumac, tamarisk and snowballs.

Plans Travel Talk.

Prof. I. J. Cox of Northwestern university's modern history department will address the members of the Polish Roman Catholic union at their regular meeting Thursday evening, Oct. 12, describing his recent journey to Latin America.

YOUNG MATRON QUESTIONS NEED OF DINING ROOM

Feels Space Wasted for Small Family.

Are you thinking of buying a home? This is the third of a series of articles recounting experiences of home purchasers and giving information on problems that confront any one preparing to invest in a home.

Is the dining room about to go the way of the parlor? It was a young housewife who raised the question. In her own home of midest size considerable floor space had been given to the dining room. She doubted that she needed the room set apart for the formal serving of meals.

Planners of homes where cost of heating must be considered along with building costs have long since abandoned the parlor that went with the days of cheap building material. To the modern housewife the parlor was an atrocity that even the company for whom it was designed must have found stiff and uncomfortable.

The passing of the dining room may not be favored by large families, but for a family of four the kitchenette takes its place admirably.

Kitchen Made Brighter.

"It may be that the kitchenette has attracted attention because of its novelty," the young housewife said. "Certainly the kitchen has been made one of the brightest rooms in the house. I am as proud of my refrigerator as of my living room furniture. The kitchenette table can be made cheery without the increase of laundry bills that comes with liberal use of table linen.

"Old timers may object to the loss of pomp and circumstance associated with the dining table of tradition," she said. "There may be more dignity to a master's chair than a niche in a breakfast nook. It is a debatable question whether the whiff of food from a distance is more appetizing than the privilege of being able to peek while it is prepared.

"For the couple in moderate circumstances the new home must be small, and sacrifices must be made here to make possible advantages there. The romantic, rambling house will continue to have charm, but practicality calls for snugness. I have observed that no matter how large the house all it affords is a place to eat and sleep and relax. Why not utilize dining room space for a larger living room?

Living Room Gains.

"Architects have done wonders with living rooms. They have given them spaciousness that belies actual dimensions. There are tricks to interior decoration that lift the height of ceilings. Furniture may be typed to lend depth to the living room.

"More meals are taken out and those at home are lighter than once they were. The person on a diet is always with us. The can opener, though derisively referred to by conscientious cooks, does make available an endless assortment of foods. The handy electrical gadget is as thrilling as any pompous butler in uniform."

FASHION PARADE OF FURNITURE IS DUE THIS WEEK

History Repeats Itself in Models Shown.

Fashion in furniture will be on parade beginning tomorrow when "at home" invitations are issued by the neighborhood merchants who will be hosts to homemakers during National Furniture week. Arrangements, better fabrics and color schemes will be the ABC's of home planning made available in every store on the street.

Whether the question of what to buy concerns the entire house or just a corner, advisors will be on hand with color charts and suggestions as to what to do that's different.

History Repeats Self.

History is repeating itself in furniture for the home. Window displays and model rooms are bringing back colonial simplicity, the floral-laden Victorian era, and Georgian elegance along with today's tastes for plain pastels and the wheat shades in wood.

One group of neighborhood department stores will feature 15 suites of dining room, bedroom, and living room furniture in all styles shown as a special offering to the home beautiful theme.

These stores will make use of the color harmonizer which presents to the patron by pictures some 200 different combinations of furniture, rugs, walls, and drapes. The buyer for these stores says that plain mohair is the popular fabric this year. He names shades of red as the most popular, with blues coming a close second. Rust and green are the next in line of choice.

Styles for Small Home.

The table is a drop leaf extension piece which can be folded into a wall piece or stretched out for a Thanksgiving banquet. A survey among manufacturers shows that 11 per cent of the larger size suites have been replaced by the junior pieces.

In the window displays there are very few pieces standing alone. The question of modern purchasers seems to be "What will this go with?" One group of neighborhood stores that sells furniture alone will have special sale price tags on some tables and chairs. These stores will encourage the customer to come in and look around alone, get acquainted with the stock, and then team up with a home advisor.

PLAN 2 SERIES CURTAIN RAISERS ON W-G-N-MUTUAL

Exclusive Baseball Show Starts Wednesday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

When the champions of the American league and title winners in the National league square off next Wednesday afternoon in Yankee stadium for the opening game of the World Series, W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network will present for the first time in history an exclusive broadcast of radio's biggest show.

The exclusive broadcasting rights were obtained by Mutual from organized baseball through a contract entered into between Baseball's Commissioner K. M. Landis, the Gillette Co. and the Mutual network.

Opener in New York.

According to schedule, the series is to open in Yankee stadium in New York on Wednesday and the second game will be played in the same park on Thursday. Broadcasts will start at 12:15 p. m., over W-G-N. Then the scene shifts to Cincinnati for games on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday. These broadcasts from the National league city are to begin at 1:15 p. m. over W-G-N.

In case additional games are needed to decide the four out of seven game series, the play will return to Yankee stadium in New York for games on Wednesday, Oct. 10, and Thursday, Oct. 11.

A great rray of sports broadcasters will present the W-G-N-Mutual accounts of the series. All of the play by play broadcasts will be given by Bob Elson, W-G-N's ace sportscaster, and Walter [Red] Barber, baseball broadcaster from WOR, alternating each day.

Plan Two Previews.

The "color" descriptions of the crowds and the attending pageantry, always a big feature of the series, will be broadcast by the following sports and radio personalities on this schedule: Wednesday, Edwin C. Hill; Thursday, Lowell Thomas; Saturday, Grantland Rice; Sunday, Stanley Lomax; Monday, Mr. Lomax; Wednesday, Oct. 11, Gabriel Heatter; Thursday, Oct. 12, Mr. Lomax.

Two special broadcasts in advance of the big series will be offered on W-G-N-Mutual. Bob Elson and Red Barber will be heard in a size-up of the two teams and the players at 9:15 p. m. tomorrow. J. P. Spang Jr., representing the sponsor, also will be heard on this program.

At 7:15 p. m. Tuesday President Will Harridge of the American league and President Ford C. Frick of the National league will be heard in addition to other baseball celebrities, and Elson and Barber. Both of these programs will originate in New York.

Wheel of Chance Will Feature 'Radio's Voice'

Radio's Voice, an unusual man on the street interview program, will be broadcast on W-G-N, beginning tomorrow from 11:45 a. m. to noon. The show will be heard daily, Monday through Saturdays. Guy Savage, W-G-N sportscaster, will be the interviewer, an unusual feature of the program will be the operation of a "wheel of chance," by Savage. A large wheel will be placed near the microphone, with a large number of cards attached. On each card will be written a question. Each person interviewed will be asked the question at the indicator when the wheel stops spinning.

START 'GUILTY BYSTANDERS' ON W-G-N FRIDAY

Story of Serial to Be Told in Graphic.

A dramatized version of "The Guilty Bystanders," a novel by Rupert Hughes, will be broadcast on W-G-N from 8:45 to 9 p. m. every Friday evening, beginning this week. Starred on the program will be Caroline Fisher, young movie actress and former Chicago model.

The story concerns the "guilty bystanders" at a murder trial, and tells how those who really suffer are often the witnesses against the defendant.

Also in Graphic Section.

Miss Fisher plays the rôle of the star witness. She is loved by two men, the states attorney and the defense attorney. Jack Barrick will be heard as the prosecutor and Stanley Waxman plays the part of the defense attorney.

Simultaneously with the presentation of the radio show the story of "The Guilty Bystanders" is to be told in pictures in the Graphic section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Bob Becker to Return.

Bob Becker, outdoors editor of THE TRIBUNE, will return to the air with his autumn program, "Bob Becker's Dog Chats," at 1:45 p. m. today on W-G-N. He will also be heard over a large NBC network.

"Dog News of the Air," title of the opening broadcast, will be devoted to last minute information on coming events and developments in the canine world.

JACK M'LEAN ON W-G-N-MUTUAL FROM TRIANON

Dancers and radio listeners welcomed a newcomer to the W-G-N microphones last night when Jack McLean and his orchestra made their first appearance at the Trianon ballroom.

Jack McLean.

Jack McLean already is familiar to W-G-N listeners, for his music has been carried over the Mutual network for several months from Bill Green's Casino in Pittsburgh. Before this he and his orchestra were heard over MBS for over a year from other night spots.

McLean is known for his sweet, distinctive music and his style, which although original, somewhat resembles that of Jan Garber and Guy Lombardo. He is a finished and accomplished saxophone player.

W-G-N Serial Is Renewed.

Bachelor's Children, popular script show which has been heard over W-G-N since 1935, has renewed for another 52 weeks. The contract became effective Sept. 25 and will run through Sept. 20, 1940.

In Bible Series

Kay Campbell, popular radio actress, who will be heard in the new dramatic program, "The Living Bible," at 9:45 a. m. Sundays on W-G-N. Miss Campbell is also heard in the dramatic programs, "Painted Dreams," and "Bachelor's Children."

LEGION WOMEN BESTOW AWARD ON CBS PROGRAM

The American Legion auxiliary bestowed its fourth annual Radio Award on the Columbia Broadcasting system for its program, "Americans All—Immigrants All," during its convention here last week. Radio City Music Hall Opens New Fall Series

Erno Rapee, distinguished conductor, will open his eighth consecutive season as director of the Radio City Music Hall of the Air with an all-Beethoven broadcast at 11:00 a. m. over WCFL. Jan Peerce, tenor, will sing Florestan's Aria from the opera, "Fidelio." The famous Leonora Overture, No. 3, will be the opening selection by the orchestra and the immortal Fifth Symphony will be heard in conclusion.

"NEUTRALITY" SUBJECT OF TWO BROADCASTS ON MUTUAL SYSTEM

The subject of American neutrality will be discussed in two programs on W-G-N and the coast-to-coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system today and tomorrow.

On the "American Forum of the Air," to be broadcast from 7 to 8 tonight from Washington, D. C., Senators Key Pittman of Nevada, Tom Connally of Texas, Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, and Frederick Van Nuys of Indiana will speak on the "Neutrality Bill."

Philip LaFollette, former governor of Wisconsin, will be heard from 10 to 10:15 p. m. Tuesday on W-G-N-Mutual, on the subject, "Neutrality."

BROADCAST TEN RADIO PROGRAMS TO CLASSROOMS

WAAF and WJJD Carry School Offerings.

The radio council of the board of education is producing 10 programs this year which are directed to the classrooms of the public schools. The programs, produced in the council studios, are relayed to WAAF and WJJD studios and broadcast during schooltime for pupils. These broadcasts are designed to coördinate certain phases of educational activities of the public schools.

Typical of the programs is the series, Makers of Chicago, to be aired at 2:30 Tuesdays over WAAF. This program is designed to acquaint youngsters from the fifth through the eighth grades with the many nationalities in metropolitan Chicago.

A chorus representing a different nationality will be presented each week, and an interview with an outstanding representative of the nationality will be featured.

Other broadcasts on WAAF, also at 2:30, are: Monday, the Hour of Magic Boots; Wednesday, Open Sesame; Thursday, Your Science Story Teller, and Friday, Pieces of Eight.

The broadcasts on WJJD, aired at 1:30 p. m., are:

Mondays, the Science Reporter; Tuesdays, That's News to Me, featuring Harold Kent, director of the council, in current events; Wednesdays, I Will, a series of broadcasts dealing with the growth and development of Chicago and its industries; Thursdays, Let's Tell a Story.

On Fridays a Music Appreciation hour is presented, featuring choral groups. Mr. Kent will act as commentator. All programs are prepared under the direction of Supt. William L. Johnson.

MURDER CASES GROW TO DEFY SCOTLAND YARD

Famous Force Swamped by Mysteries.

LONDON [U. P.].—Scotland Yard has so many unsolved murders on its hands that its famous detectives are working overtime continuously.

Normally Scotland Yard can throw a force into any district in the country so that no possible clew is left unexamined, thus following the famous Scotland Yard dictum that "it's thoroughness that does it."

Now, however, scores of its members are engaged in chasing terrorists, a chase that often consists in keeping unremitting watch on suspects and arresting them promptly if they do anything suspicious, so that Yard authorities are unable to devote all their energies to major crimes that still remain unsolved in various sections of the country.

Chief of the murder cases at present is that of Mrs. Margaret Newton Jackson, who was found strangled in her home at Sholden, near Deal Kent. She was the wife of a colliery employé, and although Scotland Yard has had its best men working on the case for days, they still are without a concrete clew.

All they know is that sometime between 8:15 a. m. and 11:30 a. m. somebody slipped into Mrs. Jackson's home, strangled her, and slipped out again without being seen, although the house is on the main road and hundreds of people passed it during that time.

Next on the list is the murder of George William Stapleton, just outside the village of Flitton, in Bedfordshire. He was followed by the murderer and killed by blows of a heavy willow stake. He had been paid his wages of 34 shillings a few minutes before. Of that 34 shillings, the murderer left 10s 3d.

A similar murder took place in Plasmont, 17 room mansion of William Alfred Lewis, in Pontypool, Monmouthshire. He had been killed by blows from an iron pipe in his home. Once again the motive for the crime apparently was robbery, although the murderer left a box containing £100 behind.

One murderer had killed for a few shillings, the other for real money, but in neither case can the Yard find a clew that will enable detectives to touch a suspect on the shoulder and say the usual formula of arrest.

Other cases the Yard has not yet abandoned, and which have occurred over the past 12 months, include:

William Murfitt, Norfolk farmer, who was poisoned.

Pamela Coventry, the 9 year old girl who was criminally attacked and killed. Her body was left in a sack in a ditch at Hornchurch, Essex. There the police arrested and charged a man but the jury heard the evidence and acquitted him.

Ethel Wraithmell, the Leeds girl, whose body was found cut to pieces.

SHAPE OF HEAD CALLED KEY TO MENTAL TRAITS

AUSTIN, Tex. [U. P.].—Dr. Karl Buehler, former professor of phychology at the University of Vienna, believes there is a definite relation between the shape of a man's head and the working of his mind.

Dr. Buehler, a doctor of philosophy and medicine, has lectured at several American universities including the University of Texas. Certain mental traits have a definite relation to a person's physique, he said, and mentally diseased persons can be identified by their body structures.

DOLLY, I NEVER EXPECTED TO SHOW UP IN THE CLUBHOUSE IN THIS STREAKED SWEATER. IT LOOKS FIERCE!
DIZZY, YOU WOULD LET THE CLEANING WOMAN WASH IT. AND YOU KNOW HOW SHE SCRUBS AWAY WITH HER STRONG SOAP. I WASHED MINE THE RIGHT WAY—WITH IVORY FLAKES.
THERE YOU ARE. THE FLEET-FOOTED TWINS! WE WERE RIGHT BEHIND YOU.
S-A-A-Y, DOLLY! WHAT'S YOUR STRANGE POWER? YOUR SWEATER'S OKAY, BUT LOOK WHAT THE RAIN DID TO DIZZY'S.
HA-HA! THE RAIN DIDN'T DO IT. SHE JUST DOESN'T KNOW ENOUGH TO WASH IT PROPERLY WITH IVORY FLAKES.
BYE, TWINS! IT'S A DATE, NOW! FOURSOME NEXT SATURDAY.
ONLY ON ONE CONDITION! DIZZY CAN'T COME UNLESS SHE USES IVORY FLAKES. WE WANT TO BE PROUD OF OUR WIMMEN.
STOP MOPING, DIZZY! YOU DESERVED THAT CRACK!
I'M NOT MOPING. I'M JUST SITTING HERE SAYING OVER AND OVER, IVORY FLAKES... IVORY FLAKES...PURE IVORY FLAKES ... HELP PROTECT MATERIALS AND COLORS.
SPEAK UP DIZZY. I CAN'T TELL WHO'S MY PARTNER NOW, NOT A SHADE OF DIFFERENCE.
YOU SURE DON'T NEED RAIN FOR AN ALIBI TODAY, DIZ.

DICK TRACY
YES, MISS TRUEHEART, AS YOUR LAWYER — I HAVE VERY GOOD NEWS FOR YOU FROM THE COURTS.
SIT DOWN, MR. SMITH.
CHESTER GOULD
IN LIGHT OF RECENT EVENTS, IT WAS EASY FOR THE JUDGE TO SEE THINGS YOUR WAY. AS FAR AS THE LAW IS CONCERNED YOUR WEDDING TO THE LATE EDWARD NUREMOH NEVER TOOK PLACE.
ALL LEGAL RECORDS OF THE MARRIAGE HAVE BEEN EXPUNGED!
THANK YOU. I CAN'T TELL YOU HOW HAPPY I AM.
INCIDENTALLY, I STOPPED BY HEADQUARTERS TO TELL MR. TRACY THE GOOD NEWS AND THEY SAID HE HADN'T BEEN THERE ALL DAY.
MEANWHILE—
NOW LISTEN, SON, WHEN THE CAR YOU WERE IN SIDE-SWIPED OUR CAR, WHAT DID THE MAN SAY?
HE SAID: "OH, OH! THAT'S THE COPS. WE'VE GOT TO BEAT IT."
THEN WHEN WE TURNED AND STARTED TO CHASE YOU, THEY DROVE OUT TO THE EDGE OF TOWN AND TOSSED YOU AND YOUR DAD'S FURS OUT OF THE CAR AND SPED ON, EH?
THAT'S RIGHT.
WHEN THEY STOLE THE FURS FROM MY DADDY'S FARM, I YELLED SO MUCH THEY TOOK ME ALONG TO KEEP ME QUIET.
HM—YOUR NAME'S GIBBONS, EH? I KNOW WHERE THE GIBBONS FOX FARM IS.
WELL, ALL THE EVIDENCE WE HAVE IS THAT TIRE TRACK IN THE MUD, WHERE THEY PULLED OFF THE PAVEMENT TO DUMP THE BOY AND THE PACKAGE.
WE'D BETTER TAKE A CAST OF THAT TRACK, TRACY.
BUT YOU CAN'T MAKE A CAST OF A TIRE TRACK IN SOFT MUD, CAN YOU?
OH, YES, INDEED, JUNIOR!
YOU TAKE DRY PLASTER-PARIS AND SPRINKLE IT LIGHTLY ON THE MUD. IT BECOMES DAMP AND SOON SETS.
PL PA
AFTER THE FIRST LAYER OF PLASTER-PARIS GETS HARD ENOUGH TO WITHSTAND WEIGHT YOU ADD ENOUGH TO MAKE A SUBSTANTIAL MASS, THEN ADD WATER.
LATER
OKAY. WE'VE WAITED AN HOUR. NOW WE'LL PICK IT UP AND WASH OFF THE MUD IN THAT STREAM BELOW.
THERE YOU ARE! —A PERFECT REPRODUCTION OF THE FUR THIEVES' TIRE.

"JOLTING" JOE DiMAGGIO PUTS A '38 SERIES GAME ON ICE
-AS PRESENTED BY JACK ARMSTRONG, ALL-AMERICAN BOY
THIS IS JACK ARMSTRONG ON THE AIR FOR WHEATIES. TODAY WE BRING YOU HIGHLIGHTS IN THE CAREER OF JOE DiMAGGIO, HARD HITTING STAR FIELDER OF THE NEW YORK YANKEES...
HIS FIELDING IS SWELL, BUT IF DiMAGGIO'S GOING TO BE ANY USE TO THE YANKS HE'LL HAVE TO SHOW SOME POWER, TOO.
THAT'S DiMAGGIO AT BAT NOW. HE'S COME A LONG WAY IN THE FOUR YEARS SINCE THE SEALS PICKED HIM OFF THE SAND-LOTS.
SEALS
AND THAT DAY JOE DiMAGGIO WAS PURCHASED BY THE NEW YORK YANKEES... AFTER A RECORD BREAKING CAREER IN THE PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE...
HOMER!
3 YEARS LATER
OKAY, JOE... HERE'S THE 2ND GAME OF THE '38 SERIES, THE CUBS HAVE ONE OF THEIR TOUGHEST PITCHERS IN. HOW DO YOU FEEL?
I FEEL SWELL. I HAD MY USUAL DISH OF WHEATIES THIS MORNING.
WOW! WHAT A FIRST INNING... TWO CUBS ON BASE AND MARTY SLAMS ONE OUT. HERE'S WHERE THE CUBS GO OUT IN FRONT. THAT HIT LOOKS LIKE A HOMER!
THAT'S ONE HOMER THE CUBS DON'T GET
8 INNINGS LATER... THE CRUCIAL 9TH YANKS 4 — CUBS 3
THE WAY THE CUBS ARE FIGHTING, THAT ONE RUN LEAD THE YANKS HAVE ISN'T GOING TO BE ENOUGH.
WELL, THEY'VE GOT A MAN ON BASE AND DiMAGGIO IS AT BAT. IF THE CUBS' PITCHER CAN GET BY HIM, THEY'VE GOT A CHANCE TO TIE UP THE SERIES.
BOY! IF I LAY INTO THIS ONE IT'LL PUT THIS GAME ON ICE AND MAYBE WE CAN MAKE IT FOUR STRAIGHT WINS!
IT'S A HOMER!
HOME RUN!
THAT WAS PROBABLY THE FINEST GAME OF YOUR CAREER, JOE.
THANKS, JACK. NOW THAT YOU'RE BACK ON THE AIR WITH THOSE EXCITING ADVENTURES OF YOURS, TELL ALL YOUR FRIENDS THAT WHEATIES DO A WORLD'S CHAMPION JOB OF SATISFYING MY APPETITE!
IF YOU WANT TO SCORE AN EXTRA BASE HIT WITH YOUR APPETITE, TREAT YOURSELF TO A "BREAKFAST OF CHAMPIONS" TOMORROW MORNING.
WHEATIES, MILK AND YOUR CHOICE OF FRUIT GIVES YOU VITAMINS A, B, C, G... VALUABLE PROTEINS AND MINERALS... AND LOTS OF FOOD-ENERGY!

SCIENCE TESTS THE FACTS ABOUT COOLER SMOKING

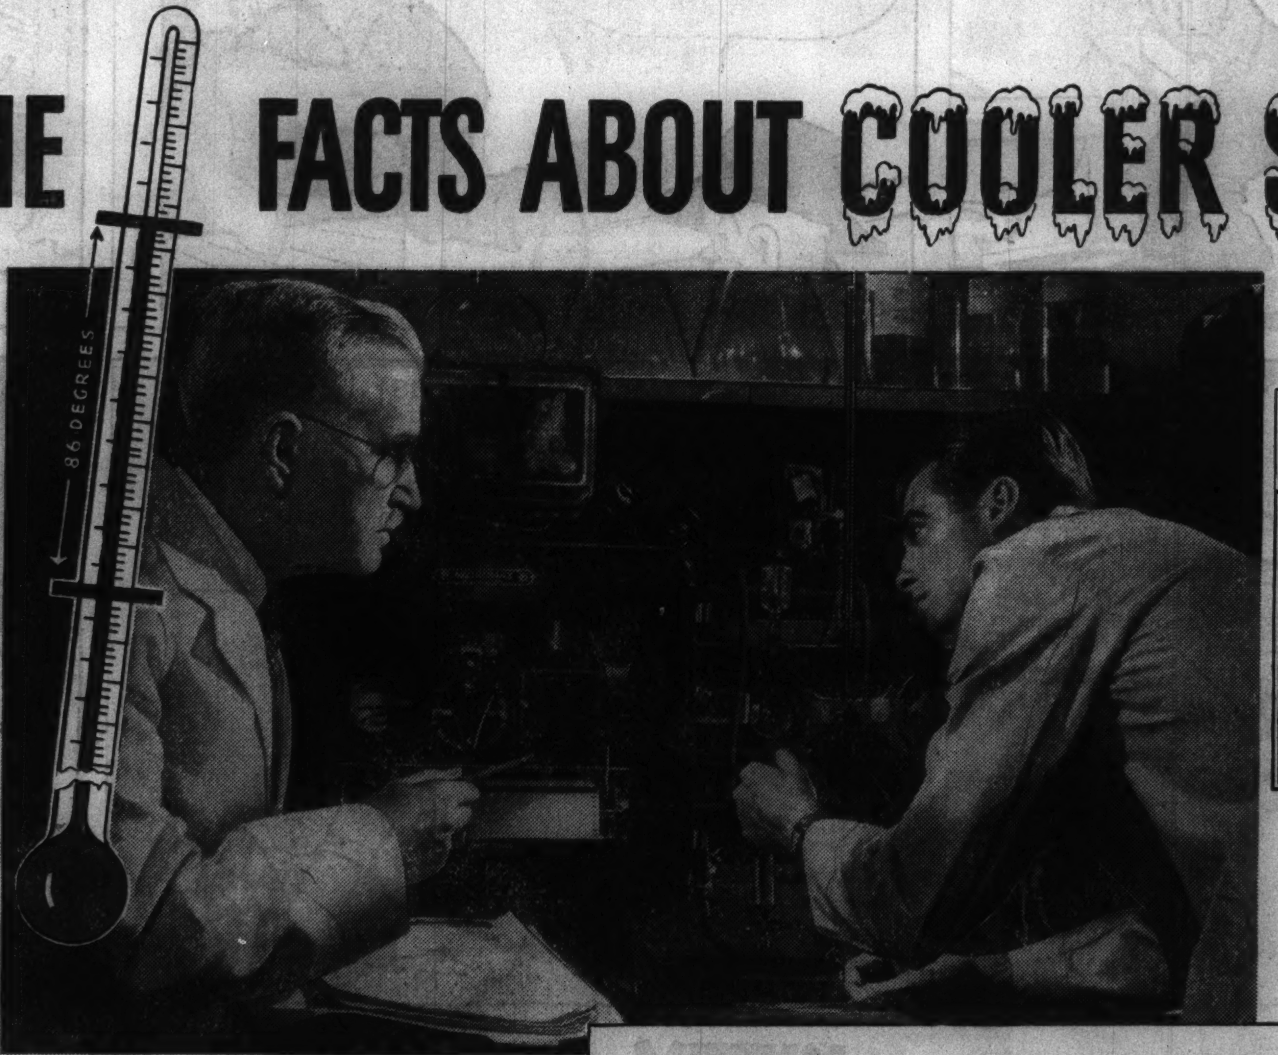
than the average of the 30 other of the largest-selling brands tested — coolest of all!



THANKS to the patience of a group of independent laboratory experts (who are pipe fans themselves), the facts are yours on COOL SMOKING! In tests, an automatic machine registered the exact temperatures at which tobaccos burn — 31 of the largest-selling brands. The printed record shows PRINCE ALBERT SMOKED 86 DEGREES COOLER than the average of the others tested . . . COOLEST OF ALL!

Protect your mouth from the bad beating, the irritating discomfort of excess smoking heat. COOL COMFORT in smoking is as close as your nearest tobacco shop. And every one of the 50 pipefuls in the big red Prince Albert tin is rich, tasty, yet mellow and MILD, thanks to P. A.'s choice tobaccos, famous "crimp cut," and "no-bite" process. P. A.'s full body and fragrance come through gently, because P. A. smokes SO COOL —free from the bitter, tongue-rasping effects of overheating. Know the SMOKE-JOY, COMFORT of the world's most popular tobacco...get Prince Albert today!

MICROMAX . . . THE AUTOMATIC HEAT-RECORDER

. . . the pipe-smokers' best friend! This scientific heat-recording instrument is one of the most accurate machines ever built. It's automatic . . . locked up in operation. Finds and prints the actual temperatures of tobacco smoke, confirming what millions know: Prince Albert is the COOL-SMOKING tobacco!

TINY TIM
By Stanley Link
CAUGHT IN A STRONG CURRENT, TIM AND JERRY ARE CARRIED THRU AN UNDER WATER OPENING INTO THE SIDE OF A MOUNTAIN—A SECOND LATER, THE LOG RISES TO THE SURFACE—
QUICK, JERRY, GIMME YOUR HAND!
WE'LL FOLLOW THE CURRENT— IT MUST LEAD TO ANOTHER OPENING OF SOME SORT—
WE CAN NEVER GET OUT THE WAY WE CAME IN— WE COULD NEVER SWIM AGAINST THAT CURRENT—GOSH— WE MUST BE INSIDE OF A BIG CAVERN—
YES— LOOK— 'WAY UP THERE THE SUN IS SHINING THROUGH THOSE CRACKS
LITTLE DO TIM AND JERRY REALIZE THAT THEY ARE WANDERING AROUND ON THE INSIDE OF A MOUNTAIN—
THIS LOOKS LIKE IT MAY LEAD TO SOME EXIT
CAREFUL, JERRY— THIS LEDGE IS VERY NARROW—LOOK OUT!
IF IT HADN'T BEEN FOR YOU, TIM, I'D HAVE BEEN CRUSHED TO POWDER BY THOSE BOULDERS—EASY NOW, JERRY!
GEE— THE STREAM ENDS HERE— I GUESS OUR ONLY CHANCE TO GET OUT IS TO KEEP ON CLIMBING—
TIM, COME HERE, QUICK!
FOOTPRINTS! AN' LOOK AT THE SIZE OF 'EM!
WHY— THEY MUST BE SOME MONSTER'S!

by MILTON CANIFF
I'M NOT HUNGRY, APRIL!
HUSH UP! YOU'RE TRYIN' T' SKIMP SO I'LL HAVE MORE TO EAT... BUT YOU'RE THE ONE WHO NEEDS NOURISHIN' MOST, MR. TERRY LEE!
IT'S DIFFICULT FOR LEE TO GAIN HIS STRENGTH BACK WITH SO LITTLE FOOD! ... HOW DO YOU FEEL, APRIL?
SORTA BOILED DOWN... IT'S THOSE AWFUL SHELLS BOOMIN' THAT FRETS ME MOST, THOUGH! I'M IN A KIND OF DAZE!
OH, DEETH, I HATE BEIN' A SISSY.... BUT I'M 'BOUT READY TO DROP! EVEN THOUGH PAT RYAN AN' TH' DRAGON LADY HAVE PATCHED UP THEIR FUSS I'VE 'BOUT GIVEN UP HOPE!
... I SAY, THAT WON'T DO, YOU KNOW! THEY'LL SEE US THROUGH, I'M SURE... I ONLY WISH THAT I MIGHT COME FORWARD WITH SOME MAGNIFICENT GESTURE, BUT I AM NOT THE... AH... HEROIC TYPE!
THEY PRESUME TO OUTWIT THE GREAT KLANG, BUT THEY KNOW NOT THE EXTENT OF MY CLEVERNESS!
AGAIN THE WIND BLOWS TOWARD YONDER SENTRY, MASTER!
.... NIGHT AFTER NIGHT AS THIS UNWORTHY ONE STANDS GUARD, SICK WITH HUNGER AND WORRY FOR MY WIFE AND CHILD, THE DEVILS BEYOND THE ROCKS PREPARE GREAT FEASTS OF FINE MEAT AND RICE!
THE PREVAILING WIND CARRIES THE MADDENING ODOR TO THESE NOSTRILS—SO LONG UNTOUCHED BY THE FRAGRANCE OF ANY COOKED FOOD! THE MIND REFLECTS THAT OUR CAUSE IS A RIGHTEOUS ONE... BUT THE REALISTIC STOMACH TAKES NOTE THAT THE FORCES OF EVIL DINE MOST WELL!
HALLOO, WATCHFUL ONE! WHY BE THE FOOLISH SLAVE OF INEVITABLE DESTRUCTION? ALLOW OUR COLUMNS TO PASS YOUR STAND WITHOUT GIVING THE ALARM AND THIS FINE FEAST IS THEN YOURS, ALL YOURS! ENOUGH FOR YOUR FAMILY AS WELL—IF SUCH YOU POSSESS!
MY WIFE AND INFANT SON SLEEP BENEATH YONDER CRAG! WE COULD TAKE THE FOOD AND ESCAPE TO THE HILLS! NONE WOULD KNOW OF MY TREACHERY IN THE CONFUSION THAT WILL FOLLOW! FORGIVE ME, MASTER DRAGON LADY, I DO THIS THAT MY SON MAY LIVE!
YES, YOU MAY PASS!
ON SILENT FEET THE MEN OF KLANG SLIP THROUGH THE NARROW OPENING ... A DARK SNAKE WITH FANGS OF STEEL ....
WHEN DO I RECEIVE THE REWARD? THE FOOD? WHERE IS THE FEAST?
AH, THE FOOD! ...THERE WAS NOT TIME TO BRING IT...
... BUT THAT SHOULD SATISFY A TRAITOR'S APPETITE .... HAHAHAHA!!

I TELL YOU, MOM—NOBODY WANTS A GUY AROUND WITH PIMPLES LIKE MINE

ADOLESCENT PIMPLES can make YOUR boy or girl feel unwanted and ill at ease

It's true, Mother—countless young people feel left out and shunned because of a pimply face. Here are two important reasons why pimples are so common in adolescence:

FIRST—The skin is oversensitive between the ages of 13 and 25. Then sluggish intestinal action may cause it to break out.

SECOND—Your boy or girl may need a better supply of Vitamin A—the important vitamin that helps in keeping the skin healthy looking and attractive.

Many are discovering the new Fleischmann's HIGH-VITAMIN Yeast gives help both these ways. The fresh yeast itself stimulates sluggish intestinal action. And 2 cakes daily will now give over 6000 units of Vitamin A.

Let your boy or girl with poor skin start eating Fleischmann's High-Vitamin Yeast—2 cakes regularly each day, one ½ hour before breakfast or lunch, one ½ hour before supper. Many wonderfully helped in 30 days or less!

THIS* BOY FOUND HELP—READ HOW

"No fellow wants to carry around a face full of hickies. I had them so bad I hated to go out. Then I ate Fleischmann's High-Vitamin Yeast. I'm sure glad to say how much it helped me."

"I had such a lot of pimples I couldn't blame the boys for not wanting to take me out. Then I ate Fleischmann's High-Vitamin Yeast. I think it's just splendid, the way it helped my skin."

has been duplicated in SCARSDALE and will be open for inspection TODAY. It is located at 523 Beverly-lane.

WHY SPEND TOMORROW WHAT YOU CAN SAVE TODAY?

LET'S BE FRANK WITH EACH OTHER.
Until Jan. 1, 1940, our contracts for building materials at 1939 prices hold good. YOU CAN STILL BUY ONE OF OUR FINE HOUSES IN SCARSDALE, OR HAVE ONE BUILT TO ORDER AT PRESENT DAY PRICES, prices which are considerably lower than will probably prevail in the near future.

Some prices for building materials have already advanced, but momentarily you are protected. How much you save by buying or building now is just as important as how much you spend. Common sense says ACT NOW while these remarkable values are still obtainable.

WE STILL HAVE SIX FINE HOMES AVAILABLE IN SCARSDALE. THEY ARE 6-7-8 ROOM HOUSES, WITH 1½-2-2½ and 3 BATHS.

If you are seriously interested in acquiring a fine house, in a desirable neighborhood, and want to effect a real saving, come out today—see how little it STILL costs to enjoy so much.

Day by Day on the Farm

By BOB BECKER

15 'Possums Captured.

Sept. 30, 1939.

THE men on the Du Page county farm are ready to admit that they are poor guessers on the opossum situation and the number of these animals that they may expect in the game bird yard this fall. Ever since the young quail, partridges, pheasants, and other game birds hatched out in the game bird yard one or more opossums have been trapped every week. The animals come into the wire enclosure where the young birds stay with the bantam hens, get the scent of a delious meal which has been placed in the live traps, and in they go before they have had a chance to kill any of the birds.

When the men ran the count of trapped opossums to 13 they felt that there just couldn't be any more of these visitors. But they gave up the 'possum guessing game this week when two more of the animals were found in the traps. All fifteen of the prisoners have come into the game bird yard during the last two months.

Hens Are Watchdogs.

The residents of the farm home near the game bird yard have a special alarm system which tells them when another 'possum has been trapped. When one of the animals walks into the live trap the bantam hens in the yard begin to squawk and cackle, and they don't stop their racket until morning. The hens, fearful for the safety of their game bird chicks, thus are acting as excellent guards which sound an alarm when a four footed visitor enters their home.

The men who take care of the game birds haven't had much success in luring many of the young chicks near the house to be fed. When we were on the farm the other morning we were able to get three pheasant chicks within 15 feet of us by tossing out some grain to them. But the quail and partridges refuse to come near the house for food. They still stay with their bantam hen mothers in the game bird yard every night, then fly over the fence into the fields and woods to feed during the day.

One tract of ground consisting of approximately three acres on the DuPage county farm has escaped the effects of the dry spell of the last two months. Today it's a sort of oasis that can be seen at once when you walk through the fields and woods.

Escapes Dry Winds.

This area which escaped the effects of hot dry winds in August and early September consists of a grassy meadow bordered by many young trees which are protected by oak woods on two sides. The center of the tract, which resembles an amphitheater, is rather low, so it absorbed more moisture during the summer rainy season than the woods and fields which are at a higher level. The trees in the other woodlots on the farm show dry dead leaves. But in the little oasis the leaves on the trees were in natural autumn condition, apparently unaffected by the dry weather.

Some of the ash trees have turned to a colorful purplish-bronze hue; sumac trees, nestled against the south bank of the protected amphitheater, are a brilliant scarlet; black walnut and wild black cherry trees are bright with splotches of yellow; shagbark hickories show their usual autumn brown tints; and dogwood leaves add their bit of color with a pleasing purple. But no other area on the farm promises the gay autumn coloration of other years because of the two-month dry spell.

IT PAYS YOU TO DO BUSINESS WITH US.

WE HAVE: Our Own Bank, Insurance, Private Building and Loan Funds. [2] A first rate organization, experienced in the Construction and Mortgage field.

WE DO: Lend up to 15 years on homes, 2 to 4 flats—frame, stucco, brick—up to 30 years old, on large apartment buildings, stores, factories, and garages. [2] Place 20 to 25 year 80% to 90% FHA loans at 4½% interest. [3] We advance funds to settle estates, heirs' interests, taxes, liens; redeem property under foreclosure. [4] If even our top loan won't do we will negotiate with Trustee, Mortgagee, Bondholders' Committees, Banks to cut down overly large debts to present day levels. We appraise property, advise and help to finance purchase, build and sell property.

OUR RECORD: We solved many knotty mortgage problems, helped many clients to own their homes worry free. We prevented or settled many liens or foreclosure suits—thus avoiding the loss of property and money. These savings to our clients run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. More important than mere money, however, is the relief and happiness brought by our work to the harassed and worrying people who had come to us for help and whom we had straightened out. Can You Set Aside $1.34 to $1.52 Per Week FOR A $100 LOAN?

That's actually all you need to pay off in full a $100 cash loan, including all charges on a 20 month loan at Personal Finance Company And we take no wage assignment.

$1.34 a week on the average is all you need to set aside for every $100 borrowed on Personal's new amazing "Special" loan plan of only 1½% per month on the actual balance owed. This plan is for persons with a steady income or salary sufficient to meet payments promptly without undue credit strain and a good credit record. You don't need co-makers, life insurance or bankable securities.

For persons without established credit and employment ratings and who wish to carry a loan larger than 8 to 12% of annual salary or income, Personal offers its "Regular" loan plan. On this plan an average of $1.52 set aside per week takes care of everything on a $100 loan—the charge is based on 3% monthly on unpaid balances of $100 and less, and 2% monthly on unpaid balances over $100.

Loans up to $300 on either plan on your personal note, or with furniture or auto. Co-maker loans are also available on "Regular" plan. Seize this opportunity to save on loan costs. Come in or telephone today.

SEEK LAW FOR SUPERROADS IN FOREST PRESERVE

Ask Increase in Acreage to 40,000.

BY HAL FOUST.

Gov. Horner is to be asked to include one phase of Chicago's superhighway planning in a call for a special session of the general assembly this fall. The Cook county board last week appealed to the governor to permit the session to authorize an expansion of the county forest preserves from its present statutory maximum of 35,000 to 40,000 acres.

A bill authorizing this expansion was passed at this year's regular session of the legislature, but in the opinion of attorneys was nullified by an inadvertence. In final days of the session a bill was rushed through both houses providing for a change in the forest preserve district's budget dates. An inconspicuous clause in this second bill mentioned the 35,000 acre limitation.

35,000 Limitation Prevails.

"Attorneys have advised me," Charles G. Sauers, superintendent of forest preserves, told the board last week, "that since this budget bill was passed after the expansion bill was passed, the 35,000 acre limitation prevails. According to the lawyers the expansion bill will have to be reenacted."

The county actually owns 34,000 acres, but has legal authority to acquire an additional 1,000 acres. The acquisition of 6,000 more acres, under a proposal receiving favorable consideration from the commissioners, would be used to connect the present property in such a way as to provide rights of way for rural continuations of Chicago's superhighway system.

Financed by Bond Issue.

The purchase of the additional acreage would be financed by a $4,000,000 forest preserve bond issue. The bill as passed, and as it is to be submitted to a special session for reënactment, provided for this bond issue without referendum. The bill also reduced the district's debt limitation from $23,000,000 to $14,500,000. The district's present bonded debt is $11,800,000, some of which would have to be retired before all of the $4,000,000 new issue could be sold.

No part of the rural continuations of the urban superhighways would be financed with any of the $60,000,000 in gas tax anticipation notes authorized by the last regular session for superroads. From these notes the city is to spend $30,000,000 and the county another $30,000,000 in building outward from the central business district.

The county will build northwest and the city will doubtless build west from downtown with their $60,000,000. It is unlikely that these funds will be sufficient to reach the city limits in either case if adequate connections with the central business district are constructed first as dictated by sound engineering.

Suburbs Are Fearful.

The rural continuations, although their construction may not be started for years, are of immediate concern to nearby suburbs. Suburbs near the outer terminals of the projected urban supers are fearful that additional through trafic is to be dumped onto their residential and business streets. Express trafic is just as anxious to bypass suburban congestion.

To solve this problem the county engineers contemplate locating express parkways with continuous grade separation on the margins of forest preserves as extensions of the urban supers. The expansion of the forest preserve acreage is sought in furtherance of this plan.

NEWS AND VIEWS

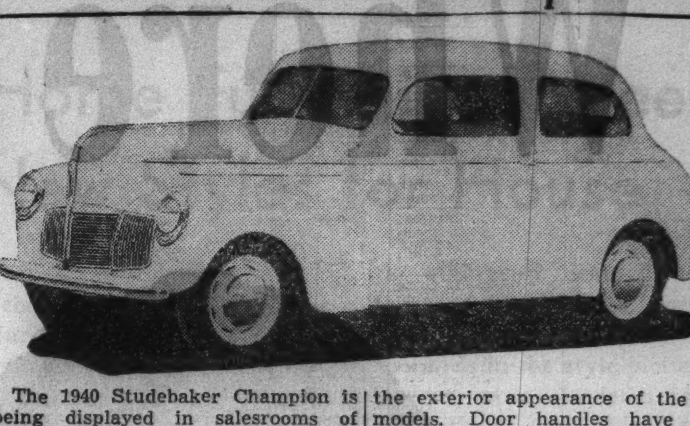
Numerous novelties will feature the annual Chicago Automobile show, which will be held at the International amphitheater, Nov. 4 to 12, M. J. Lanahan, chairman of the executive show committee, said yesterday. One will be a spectacular production titled "Dame Fashion," which will be presented each afternoon and evening in the central arena. The spectacle will include the presentation of the 1940 models in dramatic style with singing and music. This is the first time in history that the show will run for nine days.

Final assembly operations were started last week on Chevrolet's 1940 passenger cars in the company's ten assembly plants throughout the country, M. E. Coyle, general manager, said yesterday. He said production is expected to reach 5,000 units a day shortly in order to stock dealers with cars for the new model announcement on Oct. 14.

A number of promotions in the engineering department of the Buick division of General Motors were announced yesterday by Charles A. Chayne, chief engineer. John Dolza, formerly assistant chief engineer, becomes special project engineer assigned to advance development problems. Edward T. Ragsdale, for the last several years body engineer, is promoted to assistant chief engineer, retaining, however, direct supervision over body and sheet metal engineering activities.

The Socony-Vacuum Oil company, Inc., will hold a training clinic for service station attendants at the Knickerbocker hotel Oct. 5, and Oct. 12, W. J. Gerwe, manager of the automotive division at Chicago, announced yesterday. A feature will be the introduction of a new oil testing unit which will enable the attendant to take an oil sample from the crankcase of a motorist's car and give him, within three minutes, an analysis of the amount of dirt in the oil.

1940 Studebaker Champion



The 1940 Studebaker Champion is being displayed in salesrooms of Studebaker dealers in the Chicago area. The Champion is a new light weight low priced car brought out by Studebaker last spring after several years of development.

The car is powered by a six cylinder 78 horse power engine. Weighing about 600 pounds less than conventional cars in its price class, the Champion has an overall length of 188¾ inches.

Three body models are being offered: Coupes, two-door sedans, and four-door sedans, all of which are available in either de luxe or custom models. Interiors are roomy, there being plenty of space for five large persons.

Refinements in streamlining feature the exterior appearance of the 1940 models. Door handles have been merged with the body moldings and practically all protuberances have been removed, even the door hinges being concealed. The doors have nonslam rotary locks.

Studebaker reports that on a recent round trip across the continent the car at an average speed of 40 miles an hour delivered 27¼ miles per gallon of fuel. On a 15,000 mile run on the Indianapolis speedway at an average speed of 62 miles an hour it delivered 19.34 miles per gallon.

The engine includes a number of refinements and improvements. Features include "sealed beam" lights for safer night driving and a hood lock which is controled from the interior of the car.

Prepare Plans for Viaduct on Central Av.

The Cook county highway department is preparing plans for a $1,100,000 viaduct for Central avenue over the St. Paul railroad yards and also over Grand avenue. The concrete and reinforced steel span will have 48 feet of roadway with a center curb to divide two lanes in each direction. It will be 2,500 feet long, nearly a half mile.

The construction, to start this winter, will replace a narrow viaduct that was erected in its present location in 1905 after being moved there in sections from Savannah, Ill., where it was part of a Mississippi river bridge. Preliminary to construction of the new span, it will be moved easterly 50 feet to serve trafic temporarily while the new structure is being erected.

The present viaduct ends on the north with a grade crossing at Grand avenue that has been the scene of a great number of trafic accidents. This death crossing will be eliminated by the new improvement carrying Central avenue trafic overhead, the viaduct continuing north a block to Palmer street with ramps connecting Grand and Central.

At North avenue, on the south approach to the viaduct, Central avenue now has a bad jog. To eliminate this jog in North avenue, the county highway engineers are proposing an easy curve estimated to cost $250,000 for right of way and pavement.

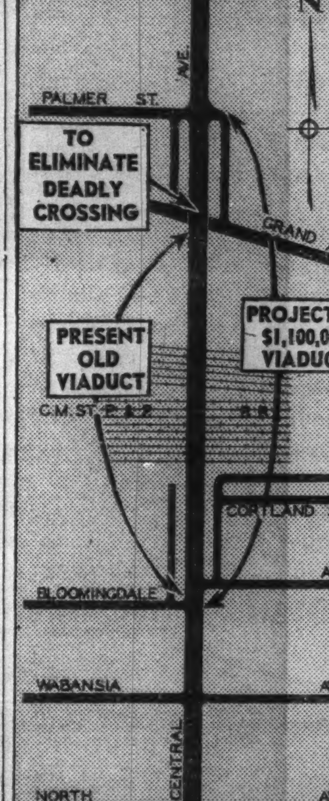
Springfield, Ill., Sept. 30 [Special].—Leading race drivers of the nation will clash Sunday, Oct. 15, here at the state fairgrounds. Plans for a 100 mile race have been completed. Fourteen drivers are guaranteed for the affair, which will consist of two events, the time trials and the 100 mile grind.

Central Ave. Viaduct



This map shows the location of $1,350,000 in street improvements projected by the Cook county highway department to replace narrow Central avenue viaduct over St. Paul railroad, to separate grades at dangerous intersection of Central and Grand avenues and to eliminate Central jog in North avenue.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

TAXICAB ROAD HOG.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—I want to report a road hog, a Checker cab with license 304-758. About 10:30 yesterday morning this taxi was loafing along the center of the pavement at Madison street and Harlem avenue when I overtook it. It was doing about 20 miles an hour, but it would not move over so I could pass it.

L. F.

VOICE OF A PEDESTRIAN.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—From the outbursts of motorists about pedestrians one would imagine that walkers are responsible for most accidents. It seems to be forgotten that a motorist has a huge machine at his command. A pedestrian can knock no one over. Responsibility for accidents is in the motorist's handling of his car—not in the solitary walker.

JOHN TORTORELLO.

MELROSE PARK "TRAP."

Chicago, Sept. 22.—For several years there has been a speed trap between 21st street and Mannheim road [La Grange road] on Lake street, U. S. 20, Melrose Park, operated by Melrose Park police. I have noticed from time to time motorists caught in this net, and many of the cars bore other than Illinois license plates. A warm welcome for tourists from the west on the last stretch of open highway just before entering the gateway to Chicago. I am very well acquainted with this stretch and have always kept my speed below the speed limit posted on state markers, knowing that "one of the boys" is lurking behind some shanty awaiting easy prey.

Last evening coming from the west on this highway, as I passed Mannheim road at 8:40 p. m., I knew I was entering the trap so proceeded with caution. As one would do fearing hold-up men on a dark street, and because the stretch of the road is unusually dark and smoky. I focussed my spotlight so as to see the state speed markers. These markers read 40 m. p. h. from Mannheim road east to the railroad underpass, where a sign suddenly appears—30 m. p. h. I traveled 38 m. p. h. until I came in view of the 30 m. p. h. sign and I immediately reduced the speed to 25 m. p. h., passing a driver of a new automobile who was caught and was being detained by a motorcycle patrolman.

I was just telling my wife what I thought of the situation and wondering why the state's attorney and the motor clubs allow it, when all of a sudden another motorcycle rider appeared from the shadows and ordered me to stop, which I did. The motorcycle patrolman said I was going too fast and wanted to know why I didn't watch the signs. I did not waste any time in telling him in plain language where the 40 m. p. h. signs started and where the 30 m. p. h. sign was—that I was well acquainted with conditions along this stretch of highway and had therefore kept my speed below the prescribed speed. This speech was so unexpected that all he could say was "All right go ahead, but slow down."

If the state's attorney and the motor clubs cannot break this racket up how about the civic organizations in Melrose Park doing something about it?

Please have your law department advise if the state of Illinois can grant a permit to allow suitable signs to be installed at convenient points warning motorists to beware of a speed trap. I know many would be glad to contribute to pay for the maintenance of such signs which can be illuminated at night.

SAFE DRIVER.

MORE ABOUT MELROSE PARK.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—After listening to several "speeding" cases and experiencing the result of my own in Melrose Park yesterday, I felt that the similarity of the cases suggested strongly that a speed trap has been created in that suburb.

In practically every case, the officer clocked the motorist in the evening in U. S. 20 between 31st and 27th streets. The officer apparently lies in wait at this point. The four lane highway at this point has no dangerous intersections and is sparsely populated. The last 40 mile zone sign occurs at 35th street. The first 30 mile zone sign may be found at 31st street. The clocking distance between 31st and 27th—where most of the arrests occurred—is in fact equivalent to less than two short city blocks.

The officer never gives the motorist a chance to pick up the second 30 mile zone sign before making an arrest. If a car should be parked by the first 30 mile zone sign or other cars passing in the outside lane, it would be very easy to miss the first sign especially in the evening and since the sign is partly obscured by weeds. And most of the arrests did occur when the motorist was passing in the inside lane—a perfectly safe maneuver since there is an inside passing lane. The officer follows one in this short clocking distance and gives one no chance to observe the second zoning sign before making the arrest. Neither the officer nor the judge gave any indication of considering the mitigating circumstances cited above. Fines were uncompromisingly given to every one.

A. M. BERTHELSEN.

Where you can tell your story to best advantage

Traditionally people turn to the newspaper for news and interpretation of the events of the day. From it they get their ideas regarding government and business . . . men and merchandise. Thus the newspaper provides the manufacturer with the most favorable setting in which to tell the story of his policies, services and products.

THROUGHOUT the world news breaks hourly! Good news or bad, the people demand it . . . fresh, accurate, illustrated . . . as furnished in the newspaper. And with the news they expect editorial comment . . . the voice of the people . . . fighting their battles . . . guarding their rights and liberties.

No other medium so consistently crusades against disease, racketeering and bad government as does the newspaper. It is without equal in the field of public service and, as a result, it has the greatest respect and confidence of the American people.

Obviously, a medium valued so highly delivers a ready-made, interested audience which an advertiser may address in the most favorable circumstances.

Founded on the basic interests of people in their own community, the newspaper is welcomed as a daily familiar into the homes of readers . . . concentrated in markets where prospects and pocketbooks are thickest. It reaches everybody reached by any other form of advertising. It is the basic medium in any program to create favorable public opinion and volume sales.

IN CHICAGO, the newspaper which has become an essential part of the daily lives of the majority of the families is the Chicago Tribune. It provides a great, constant audience attracted by the vital quality of Tribune news reporting, its staunch independence and its aggressive action in advancing the welfare of the readers.

Through the columns of the Tribune the advertiser can address the men and women in every walk of life in the Chicago territory. With over 725,000 circulation in Chicago and suburbs every day of the week, the Tribune reaches this market's largest and most responsive audience.

Chicago retailers, on the basis of results, depend chiefly on Tribune advertising to help them sell hundreds of millions of dollars of merchandise annually. They spend the greatest part of their advertising budgets in the Tribune.

The Tribune enables the manufacturer to describe his product in detail and to picture it . . . in black and white and in color . . . so as to take full advantage of selling features. He can start and stop his advertising in keeping with his needs.

He risks no loss of public favor through inexpert or garbled presentation of his message. He talks to a friendly audience accustomed to frank solicitations . . . and in the habit of looking to the Tribune to get buying ideas.

THE CHICAGO TERRITORY is celebrated as an active market in which many products were first advertised and from which they expanded to national prominence. Case histories setting out the successful use of Tribune advertising by large and small manufacturers will be supplied on request.

You can get at lower cost a greater share of the business out during the months ahead by making the newspaper the backbone of your advertising program. And in Chicago you can take maximum advantage of sales opportunities by building your plans around the Tribune. Rates per 100,000 circulation are among the lowest in America.

ALL this coming week you'll be seeing the newest styles in furniture, floor coverings, draperies, lamps, and accessories, for it is National Home Furnishings week, an annual event. The manufacturer and the retail dealer coöperate in staging a handsome show in this city and in towns all over the country. So if you're considering purchasing that comfortable lounge chair you've long been promising yourself for the living room, or that new dining table you've dreamed about, or a modern bedroom grouping to give a new touch to your home, now's the time to do it.

You'll see special room settings, large and small, costly and inexpensive, as well as individual pieces and groupings assembled to show just how they'll look in house or apartment. All the new drapery materials will be on view, as will the handsomest rugs and carpets and linoleum, lamps, pictures, and kitchen items.

The photographs in color, taken at the Merchandise Mart and the American Furniture Mart, illustrate a few of the most popular trends in furniture. They emphasize the importance of natural wood finishes. These finishes are beige and wheat tones rather than the former excessively bleached and blond colors. Mahogany in a lovely light natural finish is, for example, combined with the same wood in darker effect. The golden beige of knotty pine also is worked into a duet with deep browns of mahogany.

Conservative modern furniture and traditional styles head the fashion list of fall trends. By "traditional periods" are meant the suave and elegant Regency, the graceful and sophisticated French of the eighteenth century, and the perennial favorite, eighteenth century English.

Early American is in the style picture, too, in its newer, more slender forms that still copy antiques, but do it more accurately than before, especially as regards finishes, which closely imitate the mellow old honey color of New England maple. In fact, one of the most pleasing lines, which hails from the region about Boston, and which has a hundred years of manufacture to its credit, calls this lovely beige finish Salem.

The bedroom picture in color is of a modern maple ensemble as seen in the large mirror of the dressing table. Note the extreme simplicity of the forms of the various pieces and the absence of decorative ornament. Drawer pulls are curved slightly to fit the hand, and edges are rounded to break a too square effect so often found in modern furniture.

In the living room scene are early American maple pieces which have the Salem finish described above. With them is a copy of an old New England rocker available in black. The comfortable couch with its spring-filled cushions is covered in self-tone striped material that adds a cheerful note to the color scheme.

The third photograph in color is of eighteenth century pieces — a handsome break-front pine cabinet, its upper shelves filled with books; a light mahogany three-legged table that fits neatly into a corner, and a short-backed Chippendale open armchair of the same wood.

All of the pieces pictured are representative of the interesting new furniture you'll be seeing during National Home Furnishings week.

Lower left: Early American maple takes on a mellow cast instead of the reddish tone associated with it for many years, and thereby wins thousands of new friends. The couch is done in a self-tone striped fabric. The rocker in the foreground is a copy of an old New England one. Hitchcock chairs may also be had in this finish. Photographed at the American Furniture Mart.

School Days Should Find Child Ready

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A visit from an older relative of ours always leaves me with reminiscences flooding my memory. She tells us about happenings we never witnessed: Our parents' young years, their parties, the dresses our mother wore that she designed and often made herself, the uncle who was always saving stray animals and who brought a maltreated horse home one night and walked him out into the big backyard of our city house.

But also she reminds us of childhood events that I can recall: The day we thought my baby sister had been kidnaped, and the afternoon I didn't come home from school and my mother set out to search for me. That incident I remember well, only it wasn't just an incident at the time. And because I hear so often about small boys and girls who are not going smoothly through their first school days of their first year I'm going to go back and tell you about it.

My first year at school—none of our family went at 6, so I was not very little—was divided in my mind into two parts. The first part was presided over by a tall, soft-voiced, dark-eyed young woman who knew how to modify the severe routine of that school and its martinet of a principal to the minds and bodies of young, active, sensitive children. It was due to her that I loved school.

The second half began when she got married and a harsh-voiced termagant took her place. She still holds high place in the black book of my childhood because she made me "stay in," a disgrace in that school, and practice writing, the fetish of our principal.

The capital O's, especially, were my downfall. Stoically I wrote and wrote, each effort, I'm sure, worse than the preceding one because of the tears I would not shed. To this day I can remember how, holding them in till I reached my favorite store window under an awning, I stood there staring through my tears at the great porcelain swan and at the little figures on the top of the magnificent wedding cake, till my mother found me. But even the rest of the unhappy term couldn't erase the impression of the dark-haired teacher who presided over my first school days. She had made me like school.

Perhaps your little boy or girl is breaking the ice of this great experience, the first year at school. For it is a great experience, as anyone knows who knows children. It is important that this first year be a happy one, and whether it shall be lies largely in the teacher's hands. But some of it lies in yours, too.

Two factors for which you are responsible, provided the teacher is understanding, are your child's health and his general behavior, established in the years previous to his entering school. But putting these aside there are immediate things you can do.

Are you there, in the foreground or the background, either watching, helping, explaining—doing everything in your power to relate school and its ways to your child's life? Are you giving him a chance to talk things over with you as the spirit moves him?

These are things to keep in mind, because school is to him a different world from any he has known. Suddenly, instead of being one child about whom quite logically much revolves, he is one of many with a strange adult to guide him many hours of the day. Suddenly he is deprived of his freedom, mental and physical, because, even in a very progressive type of school he must subordinate himself somewhat to his environment.

While some children do adapt perfectly to school, others do not. The reasons for the latter state of affairs are not necessarily ones to make you feel you have failed. Children vary in their physical setup, in their sensitiveness, and in their reactions to other children and to an individual teacher. Children are not the parts of an assembly line, all made quite alike, to form a machine, fitting perfectly because of exact measurements.

We must expect great variation in them, and in their response to different situations in which they may be placed, not only in the first year of school but right on through life. Why, even the cars turned out in mass production are not perfectly uniform.

"I've had trouble with this car ever since I bought it," we hear; or, of another in the same price range, "I've had this car four years now and she's travelled 55,000 miles, and her engine purrs as sweetly as it did the first season I owned her. Every mechanic that's touched her says she's one of those especially fine ones that he comes across every so often."

There's an individual factor in everything. So, if your child doesn't adjust to school, do a little watching and managing. The reason may be a simple, physical one; it may be less tangible. But some observing on your part should disclose the trouble. Following are some suggestions which will help you, especially if this is a new experience for you as well as your little boy or girl.

Two results of the first year in school that are, perhaps, most commonly noticed are fatigue and digestive disturbances.

The former may be caused by the long school day and the physical confinement—for muscular restriction can be as tiring, in a different way, as muscular activity. The fatigue may also be caused by the confusion and demands of being constantly with a large group of human beings. Academic mental work may likewise result in fatigue.

The digestive disturbances of this period may show themselves in one of two ways: either loss of appetite or nausea, with actual vomiting. These conditions may be caused by psychological factors such as nervousness, which may be tension or fear, to which may or may not be added fatigue.

To deal with the fatigue angle you must plan your child's day with school hours and schoolroom demands as a new factor. That means a rest period somewhere in the daytime hours, besides a long night's rest. It also means an emphasis upon outdoors and free play.

To deal with the digestive disturbances mealtimes [even breakfast] must be encircled by an atmosphere of leisure and cheerful quiet. Also, a visit, or several, to the school may uncover reasons for nervousness or fearfulness not just associated with hurrying through meals to meet school hours; in addition, helpful advice may come from discussion with your child's teacher.

It is well to remember that hurry, fatigue and loss of appetite or nausea may be all intertwined, one causing the other, a vicious circle we must break.

One other cause of a child's being distressed or made less well and happy by school is often found in a physical defect. If your child doesn't see well or sees only with effort; if his hearing is not quite normal, or he is really hard of hearing; if his tonsils and adenoids are in bad shape; if in some other way he is not up to the mark, his response to school cannot be even average.

No child should enter school without a general physical examination. If yours has already started school without one, and is not eating or sleeping well, and is low spirited and nervous take your child to a good doctor who understands children, and have him or her gone over.

But with or without that the young child in his first year at school should have his rest and digestion safeguarded in the ways I have described, this past week, to prevent their being disturbed, or to cure them if they have been. These first few weeks of school will serve as a fair sample of how school is going to affect him.

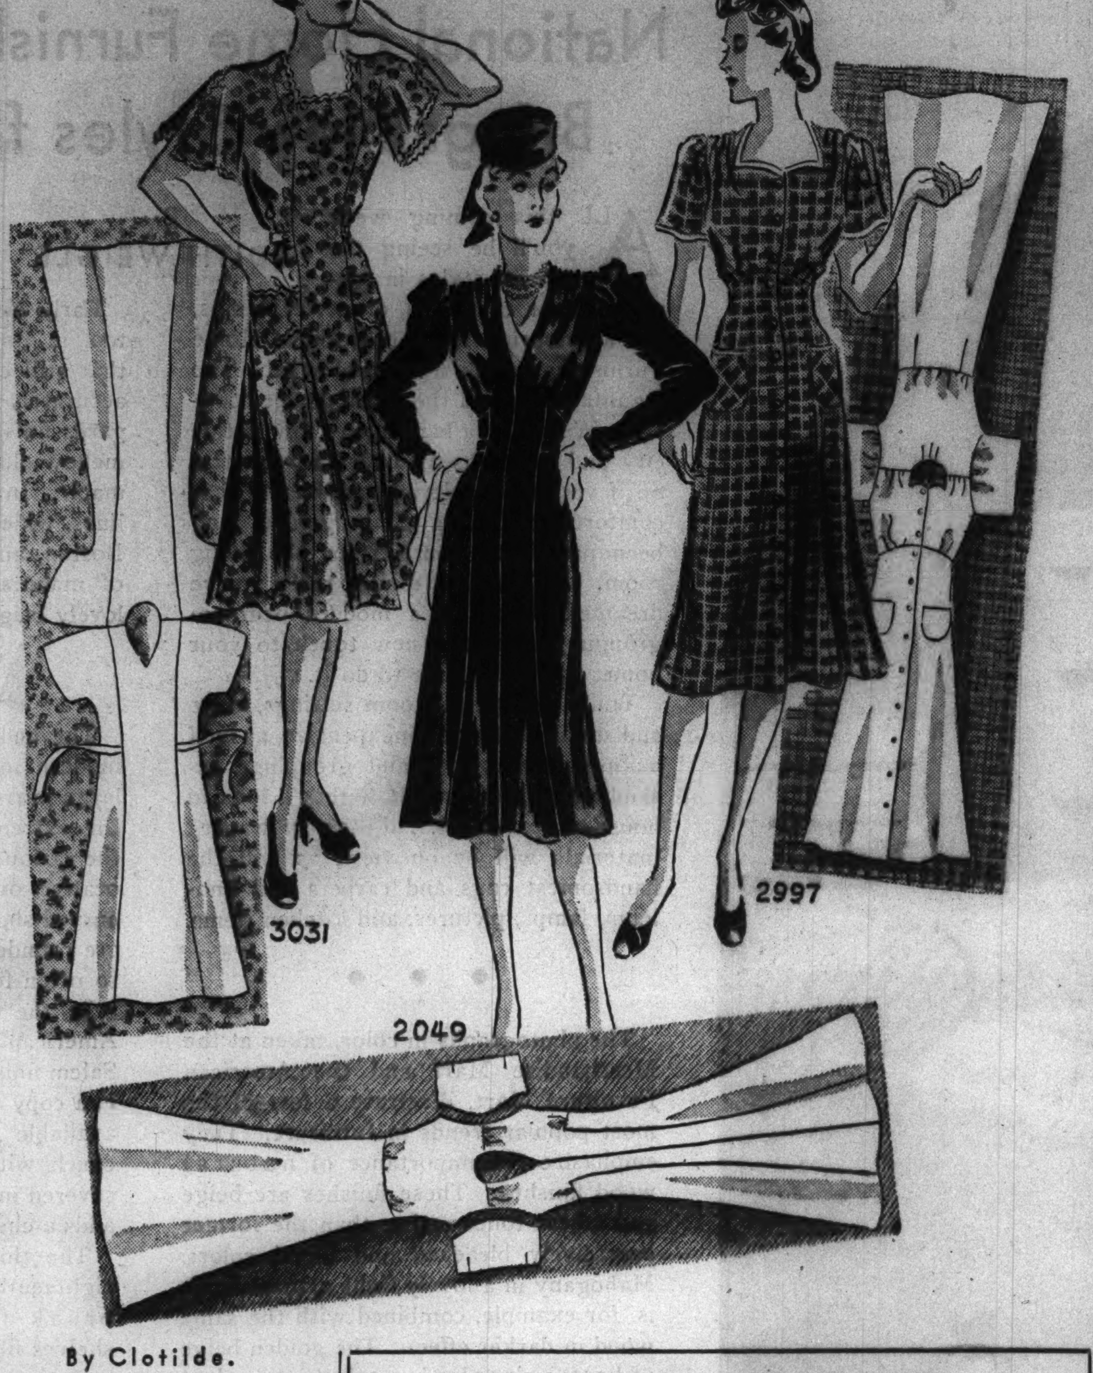
Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

These three dresses are especially designed for the large silhouette, and also carefully created to make sewing of them simple for even the tyro. All of you who have difficulty finding frocks to flatter you will find assistance in this trio of models.

Left, a princess line dress for informal hours at home. The square neckline, full short sleeves, and capacious patch pockets all are trimmed with simple and inexpensive rickrack braid. Patterned cottons of all kinds make up well.

Center, the princess lines again, this time glorified for afternoon and informal evening occasions. The V neckline has a contrasting vestee and the shoulders and sleeves are greatly shirred for softness. The waistline is high, lending an especially long skirt line. Lustrous materials are especially suitable for this model and the fabric chosen should be drapable.

Right, the spic-and-spanness of cotton plaid is favored in this unusually chic model for home wear. The heart shaped neckline is broader than usual and the short puffed sleeves are gracefully full. There is no belt and the waistline is high and snug. Buttons are used all the way down the front. There is no reason in the world why this model, in checked taffeta, shouldn't go to parties.

Style No. 3031 is designed for size 16 and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2049 is designed for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of 18 inch contrasting for vestee.

Style No. 2997 is designed for sizes 14 and 16 and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅜ yards of 39 inch material.

Here's Letter from a Foods Budget Wizard

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

For weeks letters from worried mothers who are struggling to feed their families on inadequate food budgets have been pouring in. The other day a letter came which was an inspiration to us, and which I am sure will hearten many of these discouraged homemakers. The writer, mother of five, has been feeding her brood, her husband, and herself on a budget of about $18.50 a month. And that, my friends, is an accomplishment!

Her youngsters are all healthy, too, she says. But let's allow her to tell her own story. Here's her letter, in part:

"My family consists of seven, two adults and children 15, 14, 13, 10, and 8½. The older two eat as much and more than adults. The three small girls have very good appetites. They are not finicky and will eat anything if it is attractively prepared and well cooked.

"It surely is a job to provide a large variety. You are right, one has to be a super bargain sleuth and buy at rock bottom prices, which I do from necessity. I have been feeding my seven for the last three months at $18.69, $18.59 and, last month, $18.51. That is every penny I spent, including milk, which is the most costly food in our house. My girls know prices as well as quality and can shop for me, which is a big help. I watch all papers and ads, buy when there are sales only, and can recognize if it's rock bottom price or not, even if they advertise a special sale. I know and can pick out the reduced items at a glance.

"Like yourself, I don't advocate this, nor do I think any one should try to buy like this except from sheer necessity, as it takes time and thought, also a lot of patience. I think you will agree with me that $18.50 for a family of seven for a whole month is going some. I think it's as inexpensive as any one can do and still be satisfied.

"My children all are healthy and it gives me great satisfaction to know that they are satisfied and that I can make ends meet. I list everything as I buy it and, at the end of the month, I add it all. I admit that it's a big job and I didn't ask for it, but it was the only way out."

When one realizes that this woman has been marketing for $2.67 or less per person per month, the magnificent job she has been doing is apparent. Truly, she deserves a medal of some sort. Her letter proves that she is a wise mother, too, for she has taught her youngsters to buy food economically and to eat without "finickiness."

In a few cases which come to our attention this business of a family's being finicky about eating makes the woman's problem hopeless from the start. One homemaker writes that her husband will not eat low cost nourishing foods such as cabbage, macaroni, beans, corn, peas, and won't eat puddings. He refuses any but the choicest cuts of meat, believing them "not as nourishing." This woman has a 23 month old child who "doesn't eat cereals or custards," too. So there's not much to be done for her unless she can get coöperation from her family.

The idea that less expensive cuts of meat are less nourishing than expensive ones is absolutely false, as any nutritionist will tell you. Price is not a measure of food value in meats. And cheap cuts may be just as flavorful, even more so, than expensive ones. Price is based upon demand, and there is greater demand for the so-called "tender" cuts than for those which require longer cooking in moist heat. But there is greater variety among cheaper cuts of meat and there are more ways to prepare them.

Smart Two-Piece Costume Is French "to the Seams"

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS [Special].—The suit idea, both dressy and tailored, is almost an axiom in French salons this year. All the leading designers have brought out at least one version of the suit. Some are two piece and others three piece, and they're all being worn by the top flight women. One of the smartest and most original two piece costumes on view this season is the model copied faithfully for this pattern, No. 5314. It's French to the seams, and has all the good American practicality you'd want.

The original is created of two fabrics, navy blue plain woolen for the top, with braid details of red and buttons of the blue and red, and skirt of lightweight woolen plaid uniting blue, red, gray, and a stripe of green here and there. The bars are fine, so that the plaid doesn't look "chunky." This is a colorful and dressily tailored outfit, streamlined enough for even the slightly plump figure. The college and business girls should go great guns for it.

Style No. 5314 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 1¾ yards of 39 inch material for the jacket, with 1⅞ yards of 39 inch for the skirt.

Sweater in Uneven Ribbing

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

If you are interested in keeping sounds from traveling around your home, there is a simple new method of construction which reduces the passage of noise. "Floating walls and ceilings" can now lessen spread of irritating noises and this construction does not cost much more than regular lath and plaster. Several barriers to sound waves are made possible by the insertion of S shaped metal clips between outside walls and inside ones. This resilient system absorbs sound vibrations and puts a cushioning barrier in the path of the noise. It also aids materially in prevention of plaster cracks.

There are a dozen possible ways of insulating your home for all year comfort. What type you will use depends on whether your house is already built or in process of construction, what type construction you have, your prevailing winds and temperatures, house site, and so on. For the months ahead, however, it will pay you in dollars and cents to give thought to your walls, your floors, the cracks around your doors and windows, your window glass, and roof. There are insulations available which are suitable to all types of already built homes; and good insulating materials, such as boards, foils, bulk insulations, and bats, can cut heating bills!

Fifteen minutes in a new model of clothes dryer and your clothes are damp-dry and ready for immediate ironing. A gentle, warm, clean breeze does the work for you and eliminates the need of hanging up clothes or taking them down, or of sprinkling. This type of effortless drying saves immeasurably on effort, besides protecting clothes from rains and snows and sleet and soot.

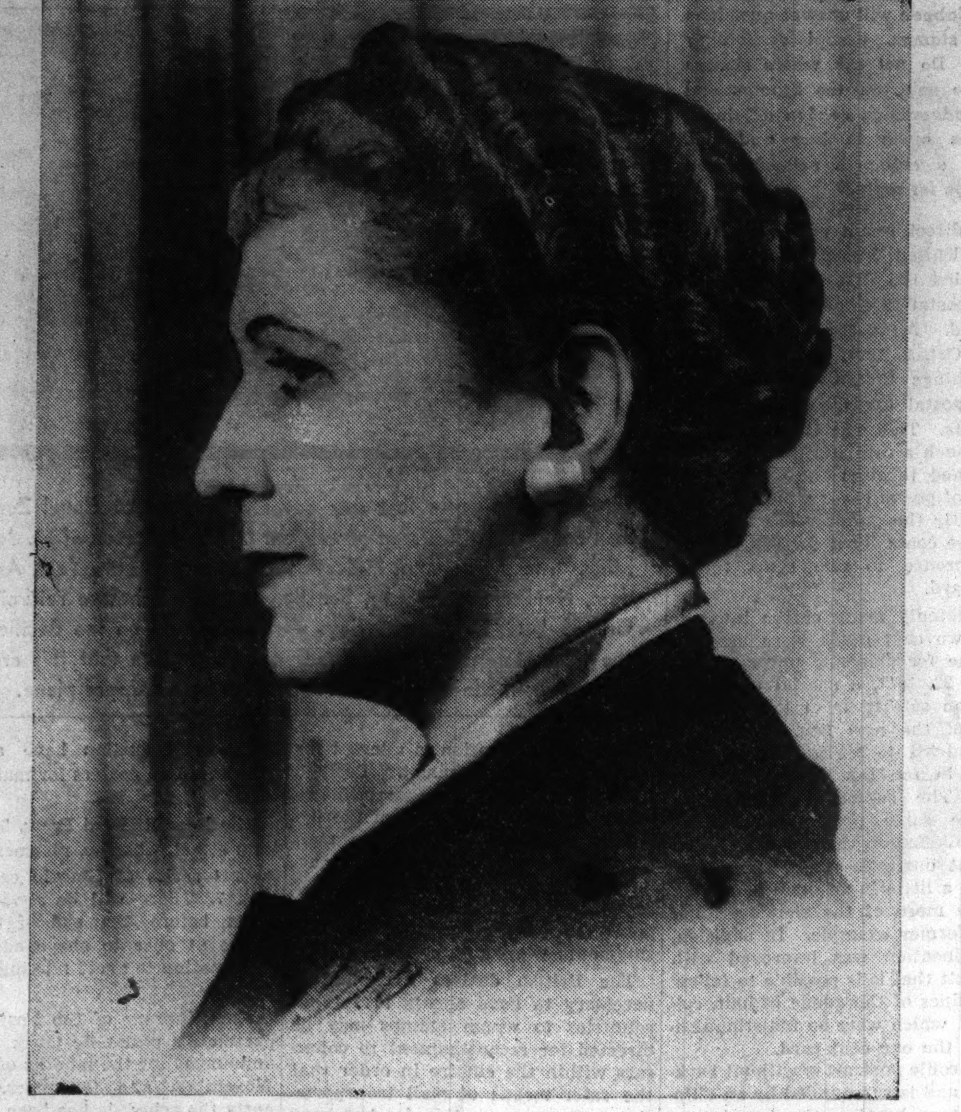
Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle



Gray hair is fashionable and flattering, but it must be impeccably groomed always. This hairdress for a gray haired matron has smooth, trim lines at sides and back, and a softening fringe over the forehead. And the hair is tinted a deep, lovely orchid, high style this year.

We, for one, are glad that more and more women are resisting the temptation to dye their hair and are frankly capitalizing on its grayness. Some of the most striking women we've seen lately are those who, ten or fifteen years ago, would have hated gray hair and hidden it, and who would not have been as stunning with dyed hair as they are with the snowy locks.

Today white hair, pepper and salt hair, or dark hair with definite streaks of white is extremely fashionable. And the women who have accepted nature's silvering of their hair are pretty delighted with results. Gray hair, undoubtedly, is flattering to nine women out of ten.

But gray hair brings with it the need to be exceedingly careful about its grooming. The only time white or whitening locks look drab is when they're not too clean and are sloppily arranged.

If you have gray hair, make it an asset. Have it dressed once a week, so that it never looks tousled. Brush it a lot so that its whiteness is further enhanced with a decided sheen. Above all, be fussy about the shampoo you use. If you can manage, have hand dryings or, at least, have your hair brushed nearly dry before waving lotion is used. Use blueing in the final rinsings. And, every once in a while, when you're feeling gay, try something a little daring in the way of colored rinses.

Personally, we think the blues, purples, and even the pink rinses are absolutely swell. A smart woman looks twice as smart if her hair is well colored with a rinse in a flattering shade. This year, a year of color in clothes, the purple and blue tones will be extremely fashionable.

Choose your hair style carefully. For some reason gray hair seems to us to look better when it is cut rather short. It never looks well if it's frowsy, and a long, much-too-casual bob is likely to look like that.

At a recent meeting of the style committee of the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association, two of the half dozen or so coiffures shown were for all gray or definitly graying hair. In both cases trimness and beauty of line were the outstanding characteristics.

If you're gray, be darned glad of it. You're very much in style.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. By Sally Joy Brown.

Without personal contact it is difficult for many persons to realize the extreme barrenness and discomfort existent in the homes of the poor. There are hundreds of families lacking the simplest items, such as beds or cooking utensils, and only through the help of readers can the majority of these unfortunates be supplied with necessities.

Mrs. O., on the south side, explains her needs:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am writing to ask if any of your readers have cots, rollaway beds, or dishes of any kind which we could have. Last year we lost most of our possessions in a fire, and since that time we have been using borrowed cots which we had to return several weeks ago. Since then we have been sleeping on the floor, and it is far from comfortable. There are five in the family and we are living in such limited quarters that we have room only for folding beds. We also are much in need of blankets, and certainly would appreciate your help."

Miss S., a case worker, is anxious to obtain a single bed for a client. This woman lives alone and, as she has no living relatives, is entirely dependent upon a relief agency. She now occupies an unfurnished apartment. The sofa which she has been sleeping on for the last two years now is worn beyond repair, and most uncomfortable for her. Some years ago she was an attendant in a hospital, but failing health made it impossible for her to continue. She is thin and frail and much in need of comfortable sleeping quarters. The worker will arrange transportation.

Miss R. has requested help for a large family living on the northwest side of the city. The oldest boy has been ill and under surgical care for several years, and recently was admitted to the hospital again for further care. He is at present unemployable. One of the older girls has part time employment. Since there is no other income in the family, the relief agency has been providing supplementation for food and rent. The family now is living in a seven room house which is barely furnished. They are in need of curtains, a large rug, a bed, and living room furniture of all kinds. The worker will arrange transportation of items offered.

A south side worker, Mrs. W., requests aid for a family which includes six children. Providing food and rent requires all the father's earnings, and he cannot supply furnishings for their home. Both parents are anxious to provide decent living quarters for their children. They need chairs, chests, tables, dishes, curtains, in fact, everything except beds. The worker will arrange to call for articles offered.

"Dear Miss Brown: I am very much in need of bedding and have been patching blankets in order to make some sort of covering for the beds for my sons. We now have only one sheet. My rugs are threadbare and torn. I am so anxious to make our home a little more livable, but my husband's salary is very small and I cannot get work. If any reader is discarding such items, I would be very happy to have them.—MRS. D."

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

College girls always have favored the blouse and skirt idea, and for that reason there are some new angles on the fashion this year. This pattern provides for the traditional sort for classroom and spectator sports wear, and for a two-piece item that smart co-eds will be donning for active sports, especially the snowy kind.

My original of the classroom outfit is all in woolen, the blouse of lightweight plain woolen in a "coffee black" shade, which is Paris' most fascinating new brown. The skirt, of tweed, is of a variety of browns, all in harmony with the top. I think you'll like the tried-and-true lines of the blouse, and the freedom the simple flared skirt gives. This is a costume I predict you'll hate to send to the cleaners, because it's so comfortable you won't want to be without it.

For skating and snow-shoeing you'll like the other costume, with the above-the-knees skirt that leaves an expanse of wind-tingled pink leg above the new long knitted socks that are in every collegian's wardrobe this season. I've created this short skirt of a bold, large plaid in bright red and black. The casual "fireman's" shirt is of bright red flannel. It may be worn over the skirt or tucked into it.

Style No. T-8642 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 1¾ yards of 54 inch material for the street-length skirt, and 1¾ yards of 39 inch material for the shirt.

It's Just Simple Arithmetic
To find out how little it costs —

READ NOW ABOUT OUR "PAYMENT PLAN" for the Purchase of Home Furnishings

For the first twelve months you pay no service, interest or carrying charge! This is most important to keep in mind. If you pay your account in twelve months no additional charge of any kind—thus you have paid the total amount of goods purchased and NO MORE. If your balance runs longer than 12 months simply add one-half of 1 per cent for each additional month.

Read Now Our Plan for Thirteen Months

As an example: If you have a balance of $100 (after the down payment) that you wish to pay over a period of 13 months, you would simply divide the $100 by 13 to determine the amount of money you would pay each month for 13 months. To the last payment you would add 4c—which is all that you would be assessed for a period of 13 months . . . thus, you see, you would pay a grand total of only $100.04.

If Instead of Thirteen Months You Wished to Pay in Fifteen Months:

You would pay a total of $100.30; the thirty cents extra being a charge for the 3 months extra over the twelve-month period. Keep in mind always that for twelve months there is NO-CARRYING CHARGE!

For a Twenty-four-Month Period

On this same $100.00 balance owed, dividing the payments into 24 equal parts at the end of the twelfth month, there would be a balance owed of $50 . . . and for this last 12 months our carrying charge is only $3.00, so for the entire period of 24 months the grand total paid by you would be $103.00.

In general, you can apply this method or plan to any balance or period you elect by simply adding ½ of 1 per cent for each additional month over 12 months . . .any of our salesmen can give you information, if you wish to ask—OR TELEPHONE MONROE 7480.

Our convenient and economic payment plan, together with our reasonable prices for quality home furnishings, combines a money-saving opportunity and it is worth your time and a matter of simple arithmetic to investigate. Shop and compare with any other payment plan.

The Untortured Silhouette Is Also in Style

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS [Special].—To masses of women the news of Paris fashions must have sounded pretty ominous, with their message of impending bustles, hobble skirts, fuss-budget drapery, and such torturing of the untrammeled silhouette lines of nature. There's another side to this alarmist message, and that is the sleek, modern clothes which all dressmakers show alongside their more flibber-tigibbet, headline-mongering models.

When the Paris collections are finally put to the test of the cash customers, I'm willing to stake my reputation that it is these unpretentious duds that will keep the cash registers busy. Already, "big time" importers from America have, in their cagey way, bought plenty of these numbers, while loading up on more sensational items that make the talking points of the fashions. So, there's not a reason in the world why you shouldn't steer clear of dresses that do violence to your body and still be right up in the front row of the fashions.

Schiaparelli, whose wilder novelties make a big stir, has in her collection an impressive number of slender, sleek suits and dresses, both for daytime and evening, which are made to be worn by the wary of wild novelty. And they are flanked by hats and other details that give them all the news excitement any one needs. Taken complete, these clothes, without losing their wearability, make you feel chic and worldly. They're likely to put more flagrant bustle dresses and panniered models and such into the Astor's horse class by comparison.

Capt. Molyneux, besides his double-swing dresses for youth consumption, makes slim, floaty, chiffon evening frocks that are every woman's meat, and admits privately to me that they're the ones he really would like to see worn.

Balenciaga's easy black day dresses and flattering full skirted evening frocks, which slide around among his striking Goya panniered and bustled novelties, are the choice numbers in his show.

Mainbocher's huge show is at least half given over to clothes that don't need his wasp-waisted corset under them, and that are addicted to easy skirts, flattering waists, and fetching lace, embroidery, or velvet trimmings.

Chanel, the old master, gives out a collection that is a boon to women who simply can't face the world in skin tight bodices because, after all, they have flesh along and below their ribs. She gives easy lines to her daytime waists that gloss over the matter of flesh and make a becoming drapery where it's needed.

Take the case of the Schiaparelli suit that has a rather long molded jacket and a straight skirt of dark red, smooth wool, the latter with a wide band of the material suggesting the bustle skirt without getting down to cases. The suit is highly wearable, and Schiaparelli cites it as her chief silhouette in her blurb on the collection. The dark red muff, banded with ermine, dyed pink, can be carried over the abdomen, giving you a floating front fullness if it suits you. A red cloth tippet, striped with more pink ermine, gives the neckline an atmosphere of newness that is increased by the very narrow line dark red felt hat with its shirred ribbon chin strap. High, strapped, dark red shoes complete the details.

The sleek, slim silhouette applied to informal evening wear, as Schiaparelli makes it, employs a long jacket of black velvet skeleton-plaided with pastel blue, and with folds below the waistline carrying the barest suggestion of pannier drapery without disturbing reedlike modernity. The dress has a high topped black wool skirt, draped in flat folds across the hipline in front, adding no bulk, and going into a flat back-skirt. A toque of black ostrich has pastel blue ruched tulle ties, enlarging into a big jabot-like ruffle below the chin, harboring more ostrich.

A Schiaparelli ensemble for formal evening is a black, low cut dress trimmed with black velvet flowers near the knees, and a green velvet brocade jacket edged with the flowers having spangled centers.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Scene: A drawing room, with two bridge tables set up.

Time: Name your own.

Mr. and Mrs. North [hosts]; Mr. and Mrs. East, South, and West; also, Mr. North-East [kibitzer].

Mrs. North: Now folks, tonight we're going to have a grand time. We're going to try a team of four match. Moreover, since in the past there's been considerable bickering between husbands and wives, and since the men, in their brutal way, have always complained about playing with their wives or, for that matter, with any female partner, we'll line up girls against boys.

Mr. North: Suits me! But how about a little bet? One that will be paid by you gals!

Mrs. East [belligerently]: Are you insinuating that we're welchers?

Mr. North [hastily]: O no! Far from it! But the last time I made a wager with my dear wife and won, I had to accept a settlement that she wouldn't buy what she had been intending to buy.

Mrs. West: Well, what's wrong about that? You came out even, didn't you?

Mr. North: Well, maybe, but it makes things a bit complicated. I'd rather get cash, even if I have to give it back.

Mrs. North [frigidly]: You'll get cash—if you win.

Mr. South: There, there! Now we're all set. One-half cent a point—all right? Neither team can win by more than two thousand points, so nobody can lose or win more than ten bucks.

It is so agreed, and the players take their places. At table 1, Mr. North and Mr. South are opposed to Mrs. East and Mrs. West; at table 2, vice versa. It is further agreed that the match is to consist of eight hands—each table shuffling and playing four original boards, then exchanging with the other table. Seven of the hands turn out to be uninteresting and unimportant: both teams bid and make the same games, so the score, except for board 8, is practically a tie. But now let us follow that fatal board 8, from table to table:

Mr. North

Mr. South

♣ A 5

The bidding [both sides vulnerable]:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	3 hearts	3 spades	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Double
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

Mr. South, licking his chops, waits for the heart lead that will give him nine sure tricks, even if he never gets a trick from dummy. To his horror, however, Mrs. West daintily opens the spade seven. Mrs. East takes dummy's jack with the queen, returns a heart, and Mrs. West coyly runs off eight heart tricks, after which she leads the spade deuce, and her practically hysterical partner takes two more spade tricks. There is an unearthly silence, then . . .

Mrs. West [whispering, but still managing to put an unmistakable gloat in her voice—a remarkable feat . . . try it yourself]: O, dear! What is down seven doubled and redoubled, vulnerable? I'm so bad at arithmetic!

Mr. North [grinding his teeth so loudly that the kibitzer at the other table, Mr. North-East, who is a dentist, looks up, hoping for immediate business]: O, it's a mere nothing, no more than a mink coat apiece. Lemme see—why, it's only 4,000 points!

Mrs. East [disappointed]: Is that all? I think we'd better check up on that, partner.

Mr. South [gasping for air]: You do, and I'll break your arm!

Mr. North: Air! I gotta have air!

When board 8 reaches table 2, an amazing coincidence occurs—bid for bid, the same sequence takes place, even down to Mrs. South's final redouble of the dynamite three no trump contract. But here the coincidence ends, for Mr. West does not hit upon the spade opening, preferring to lead his heart queen—thereby earning the undying hatred and enmity of his teammates, Messrs. East, North, and South. When the smoke dies away, Mrs. South, having taken the first trick with the heart king, has run seven diamonds and five clubs—for her contract with four overtricks! The silence here is two degrees thicker than it was at table 1. Then:

Mrs. North: O, dear, how much is three no trump, doubled and redoubled, vulnerable, with four overtricks. I'm so bad at arithmetic!

Mr. East [whose color is that of an overripe codfish]: O, it's a mere nothing, probably only the equivalent of a small string of pearls for each of you. Lemme see—why it's only 2,500 points!

Mrs. South: Is that all? I think we'd better add it up ourselves, partner.

Mrs. North: O, we can afford to be generous.

Mr. East [shouting]: Generous! I tell you it's 2,500 points! Do you think we're crooks?

Mrs. South [neatly evading the question]: Come on, the game's over. Let's see what happened at the other table.

The four players and kibitzer at table 2 get up and walk over to table 1, the women almost dancing, on wings of song, while Messrs. East and West drag themselves along as though inexpressibly weary. Mr. East takes one look at his teammates' faces and fears the worst.

Mr. East: What happened on board 8?

Messrs. North and South [speaking and groaning simultaneously]: Don't ask us!

Mrs. West [sweetly helpful]: We beat three no trump 4,000 points.

Mr. West [scowling at his teammates]: Holy smoke! Were you trying to bankrupt us? That's terrible!

Mr. South [suspiciously]: What happened at your table on board 8?

Mr. East [bitterly]: O, nothing much. This fathead [looking at West] opened a heart, and the girls made three no trump, doubled and redoubled, with four overtricks! If he'd only had the brains to open a spade——.

Mr. South [wearily]: Yeah, I know all about a spade opening!

Mrs. East [briskly]: Come, come, gentlemen—there's the small matter of settling up to attend to. Let's see now. The 4,000 points at table 1 and the 2,500 at table 2 put us 6,500 points plus.

Mrs. South [demurely]: Yes, but the boys were ahead 130 points up to that point; you'll have to give them credit for that.

Messrs. North, East, South, and West turn as one man and direct glares of pure hatred at the last speaker.

Mr. East: Very decent—even handsome—of you, I'm sure. So we owe you only $31.85 apiece.

Mrs. East: Is that all? I think we'd better check up on that. I'm so bad at arithmetic!

The bidding [neither side vulnerable]:

East	South	West	North
4 hearts	4 spades	Pass	Pass
5 hearts	Pass	Pass	5 spades
Double	Pass	Pass	Redouble
Pass	Pass	Pass

West opens the ten of hearts, dummy's jack covers, and East wins with the queen. A low heart is returned. Can declarer fulfill his contract against the best defense? If so, how?

Answer: Declarer can fulfill his contract if he plays as follows: He must ruff heart return with an honor. He then cashes diamond ace and ruffs a diamond in dummy. He returns to the spade queen and ruffs a second diamond. He then cashes spade ace and leads dummy's remaining spade to the king, drawing West's last trump. Now a club is led to the jack. East wins [it would do him no good to hold off] and returns the heart ace. Declarer ruffs and on this trick West is squeezed. If he lets go the blank diamond king, declarer's jack becomes high; if he discards a club, dummy's Q J 2 will all be good.

Gay "Miss from Mississippi"

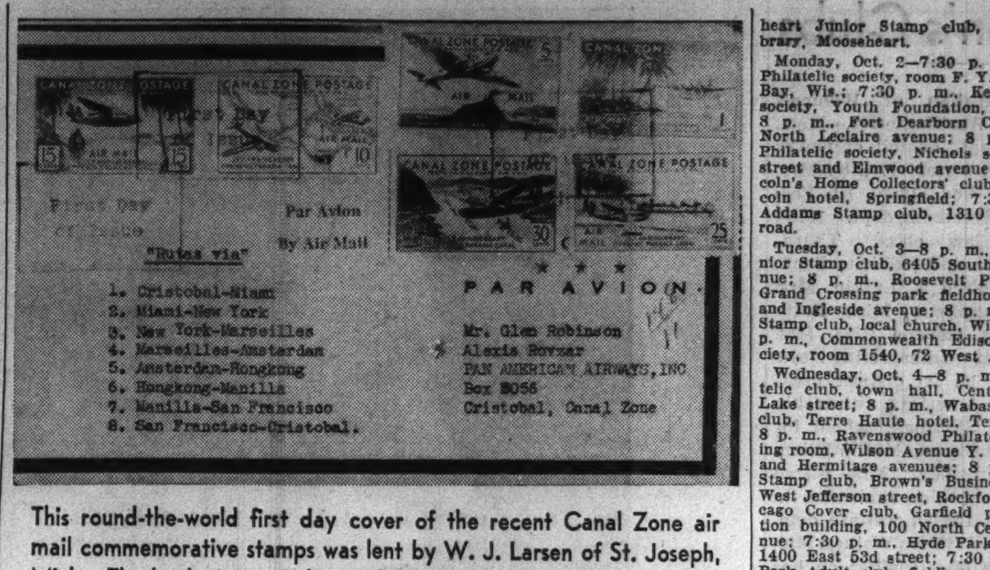
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



This round-the-world first day cover of the recent Canal Zone air mail commemorative stamps was lent by W. J. Larsen of St. Joseph, Mich. The back stamps indicate that it touched New York, Amsterdam, Nankock, Hongkong, Seattle, and Miami before returning to Cristobal, C. Z. Twenty days were consumed on the Pacific, and the back stamp at Seattle leads one to believe that this crossing was made by steamer rather than by a Clipper plane.

As a direct result of the entrance of the United States into what is now called the first world war, domestic postal rates of all kinds were increased. An act of congress approved Oct. 2, 1917, provided among other things that the rate on domestic postal cards be increased to two cents. This was the first occasion for such a rate and little revenue was gained through the change, for the use of postal cards almost ceased. Apparently the public was willing to pay three cents for a domestic letter in preference to two cents for a postal card.

Undoubtedly many of the international two cent cards were used at this time for domestic purposes but on Oct. 22, 1917, a special card was placed on sale to meet the requirements of the new law. This card measured 3¼ to 5½ inches and was printed in red ink on cream cardboard. The subject of the stamp was the same profile portrait of Thomas Jefferson then in use on the one cent domestic cards. This was reduced a little in size and elongated to show more of the shoulder than in the former example. In addition, the delineation was improved with the result that it is possible to follow the outlines of the queue of hair, collar, etc., which were so indistinguishable on the one cent card.

The profile portrait is without background and is surrounded by an elliptical frame bearing the inscription, "U. S. Postal Card," in modified Roman capital letters. At the base of the portrait, the ellipse is interrupted by an arched label bearing the caption "Jefferson," in small Gothic capitals, and merges into a decorative base containing the value inscription, "2 Cents 2." In general the design is an elongated version of the design used for the one cent Jefferson card, as described in a recent issue. The panel at the left side of the card bearing the admonition, "This Side of Card is for Address," is identical with that used on the one cent card.

Two dies are recognized for this design. Die I. gives a rough, coarse impression, and the downward stroke of each numeral meets the curved base of the numeral in a sharp point. Die II., the more common variety shows clear fine lines and there is a small ball in each numeral where the downward and bottom strokes join. In addition, Die I. cards may be found in a dark red color known as lake.

The rates which made this two cent domestic card necessary were reduced to normal on July 1, 1919, and the one cent green Jefferson card again came into use. Post offices had large supplies of the two cent cards on hand and a future article in this department will explain how the postoffice department was able to use up these cards and thus save the cost of their manufacture.

Now and then a cover turns up with an unusual use of ordinary stamps. Such an envelope has been sent in by Robert W. Holderness of Chicago. This foreign cover bears a three cent Inauguration of Washington, United States commemorative stamp, and was mailed as the postmark indicates at Lagos, Nigeria.

There was no indication on the cover that unpaid postage should be collected from the addressee. When such things are passed at Lagos they must be charged to negligence on the part of the postal clerk, in Chicago it would be blamed on the volume of mail.

A revised edition of the booklet "A Description of United States Postage Stamps," will be issued shortly. This is a publication of the United States Postoffice department, and may be obtained from that department or from the superintendent of documents, Washington, D. C. The revised edition will contain information on all stamps down to and including the baseball commemorative stamp of 1939. Unless there is a change in price the booklet may be obtained in paper binding for 25 cents and in cloth for 75 cents.

The "All Up" air mail service of the British Empire, while highly praised in some quarters, works a great hardship on many users, particularly stamp dealers, according to an editorial in Gibbon's Stamp Monthly. The air service is compulsory and although the unit rate is double that of the preceding surface rates no compensation is allowed for mail damaged in transit. Postage stamps are particularly susceptible to water damage and several of the flying boats of the British air mail service have met with accidents during the past year and ended their flights under water. When this happened to be sea water the stamp shipments were a total loss.

The British dealers may find it necessary to have agents in foreign countries to whom stamps may be directed for reconsignment to collectors within the empire in order that the safer means of mail transportation with compensation for loss may be employed.

The third edition of the KenMore Katalog, net price list of the KenMore Stamp company, Kenmore, N. Y., is now available to collectors of British Colonial stamps. The prices in this list are not subject to discount, as is the case with many catalogs, but are those at which the KenMore company will sell the stamps. This edition contains 384 pages, an increase over the 1939 edition of 96 pages, and includes 3,000 added illustrations. There are more than 5,000 price changes and additions, including 1,764 items advanced, and only 91 lowered.

Great Britain is placed first in this catalog and other members of the British Commonwealth of Nations are in alphabetical order. A description and history of each colony is given and the monetary units of each are evaluated in United States currency. The KenMore Katalog is available in two types of binding, paper covers with plastic binder, 50 cents and cloth bound, $1.

The fourth annual Stampede of the Chicago Precancel club will be held at the Hotel La Salle on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 14 and 15. This year's event will be in connection with the annual show and Rajpeepla of the Chicago Philatelic society, where the most extensive exhibition of the middle west is scheduled for the opening of the fall season. The bourse and auction have attracted collectors and dealers for many years.

The itinerary of the Postoffice department's philatelic truck has been announced for the months of October, November, and December. Apparently the schedule has been arranged so that the truck will follow the birds south and escape the cold northern states during the winter. Today the truck is stationed in Schenectady, N. Y., and tomorrow it will proceed by easy stages toward Buffalo where it will be stationed on Oct. 13 to 16. It will then start east and south, entering Pennsylvania at Scranton on Oct. 21, and leaving that state for Hagerstown, Md., on Nov. 6. It will enter Virginia at Alexandria on November 9, and be at Norfolk on the new style Thanksgiving day. The old style Thanksgiving holiday will be spent at Portsmouth, Va., and on the following day the truck will enter North Carolina at Elizabeth City. On Dec. 12 it will make its first stop in South Carolina, at Conway, and its last demonstrations before the Christmas holidays will be at Charleston, on December 15 and 16.

Wedding Gift Demands Note from the Bride

Who pays for the wedding reception? For answers to this and many other questions about wedding customs, read "The Home Wedding," a valuable booklet by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn Street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents; by postpaid mail, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

Not so long ago we took a stand in this column that it was impossible to phrase personal letters for other persons and have them sound sincere and embody the personality of the individual whose name was signed to the note. And we tried to uphold the stand with a few persuasive remarks. Acknowledgments and thank-you letters for wedding presents come in this same group. We cannot phrase the letters and I'm sure no young woman would want anything that smacked of a form letter. But we can suggest some of the things that such a letter should include.

Even before the wedding presents begin to arrive the thoughtful bride will have some organizd plan in mind for taking care of them as they are delivered, and for keeping a record of them to avoid the confusion and embarrassment of not knowing who sent what. It would be an unforgivable error to thank Mrs. Smith for a silver tray when what she actually sent was a lamp. The thank-you letters, too, should be written just as promptly as possible, although no one would criticize if the bride did not find time until after the ceremony.

Here's a good plan. Let the prospective bride keep a little notebook. Then, when the wedding presents arrive, and she opens them, she may record such information as she needs to know in a systematic fashion. For instance, she should record the article itself, the name and address of the sender, so it won't have to be looked up later, the date received, the date the thank-you note was written and, perhaps, the name of the store in which the article was purchased, in case it should be necessary to exchange it.

Remember this! All the gifts should be acknowledged by a personal note. Telephoning the message will not suffice, nor will a verbal "thank you." And sending a printed card is a very thoughtless way of treating a friend who has gone to great time, trouble, thought and expense to remember the bride. Personal notes on plain, simple stationery, written by the bride personally, are the only answer.

They need not be long letters, but just a simple, sincere expression of appreciation. That and a little complimentary remark about the present as to where it is to be placed, how well it fits in with the scheme of decoration of the new home, how much they have already used it, etc. The bride also should mention the gift specifically in the letter, not just refer to it by the general term "your wedding present."

While the bride herself composes and writes the messages, in each letter she mentions the name of her new husband, or, if the ceremony has not yet been performed, of her fiancé, and expresses his appreciation together with hers. If the present was sent by a married couple the acknowledgment is sent to the wife, but it is an added courtesy to mention her husband as well, even though the plural "you" is supposed to imply both the husband and wife.

Letters to intimate friends and relatives are signed by the bride with only her given name. Or, if they are written after the wedding ceremony, she signs them with her first name, maiden name or initial and husband's last name, such as Mary Smith Brown.

Princess lines with bolero effect top. ● D—Popular three-piece classic, a two-piece suit with a fitted jacket and matching topcoat that may be worn with other suits or dresses. ● E—The ever-popular polo type of coat in caramel beige camel's hair. Cut with plenty of swank, satisfying number of deep pockets. Hats sketched also available in same shop featuring sizes 11 to 15.

Coats for the Small Shopper Have New Lines

By Rhea Seeger.

Flourishing as it deserves, the smart shop dedicated to small shoppers with equally small clothes allowances goes along merrily. After years of neglect, fashion-wise sizes eleven to fifteen finally get a buying break. Coats, ensembles, suits and fur coats, designed with all the snap and imagination formerly found only in larger sizes, are abundant in all the newest colors, color combinations and fabrics. All have distinction, detail and a certain sophistication. . . simple smartness without infantile dullness.

Career girls, college clothes collectors, and every other appreciative petite shopper will find unusually large assortments of street and daytime suits in tweeds, monotones, smart dull blacks, high colors, untrimmed or lavishly fur trimmed models, all with the new streamlining. Three-piece ensembles of trim tailored two-piece suits and the companion top coat are extremely high fashion with amazingly low price marks. Practical finds, these trios, because each piece is easily worn with other items in a wardrobe.

Some of the best buys are the unfurred models designed to wear with extra fur pieces, with muffs, fur hats, and with high-colored accessories of velvet or velveteen. Some of the simpler coats are ideal for wear with short fur capes, and all of them are as smart without fur as they are with fur contrasts. Smooth suedelike textures, the stunning rough effect, some diagonals and nubby weaves assure a wide assortment from which to choose. The coats are all young and crisp in outline. . . very full skirts achieved with artful designing, many insets to a skirt, flare that is under smooth control over the hip-line and swirling wide at the hemline, cleverly designed plaits that are flat and smooth yet sufficiently deep to swing with rhythm.

Reefer or Chesterfield coats are extraordinarily good buys. They've a youthful snap hard to equal with any other silhouette. They are very practical in all colors and materials as the foundation or all-purpose coat for any well planned wardrobe. High collarlines, well fitted across the shoulders, sleek fitted body lines all achieve that greatly desired youthful chic. Some of the more dress parade models are trimmed with fur.

Fur trimmed coats in this collection are unusually well designed. Fur is applied with admirable restraint. Big fluffy hunks, overwhelming festoons, anything excessive is banned. Narrow bands, plastrons, smart small collars, narrow tuxedo collarlines, and small flat cuffs of fur provide the soft flattering contrast without the effect of too much trim.

Half-and-half combines are high fashion this season . . . skirts of one color and material, tops of another, skirts of fur, tops of wool, sleeves of fur, and a matching band around the hemline of the skirt, plaid and plain wool combined in the unfurred models, and so on. Dressmaker details of folds, intricate fullness with soft plaits, tucks, godets, shaped insets, and similar ideas make outstanding and unusual coats. Very modest price marks make such a collection especially noteworthy. Five typical coats have been sketched, all brand new arrivals with every high fashion detail, fur, and color accent.

October 1, 1939

Not a day to go against the best interests of the family. Internal adjustments to be expected. October promises some quick action and ushers in highly speculative vibrations. Aviation and the stock market news to predominate. Lack of poise among the people now will only add to the general confusion of fast moving events. The electric atmosphere is intensified by nature's unexpectedness in this universal gamble with death and destruction.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. Fall Butterflies

By Eleanor Jewett

The summer leaves come lightly down
And run on rustling feet through town;
The great trees stand aloof and bare,
But glad at heart to see them there—
Those happy leaves! So mad their dance,

So swift their turn, a hasty glance
Makes out their flight and knows no way
To win the autumn leaves to stay.

But O! You gypsies of the wind!
You butterflies of elfish mind!
I wish that I a leaf might be
To run and dance as aimlessly!

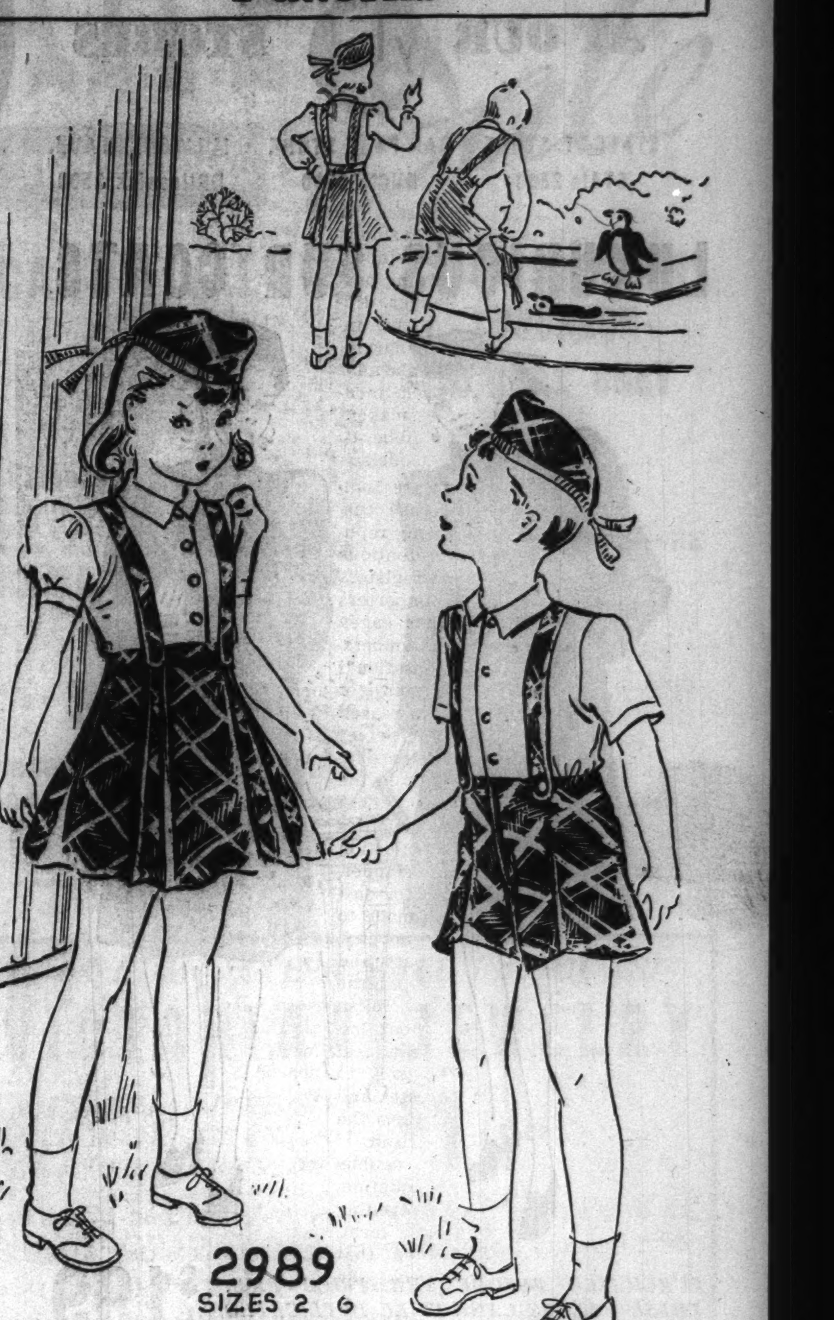
Clotilde Children's Patterns



There's more Scotch in this pattern than is apparent in the plaid. It's an economical one to use, since you can clothe Sonny and Sister in one order. All of the youngest generation loves plaid, and in woolen with washable blouses these models are as practical as the little money it costs to make them. They're grand for just-going-to schoolers.

The blouses, of washable silk or sheer woolen, or of cotton, if you like, have a narrow little shirtwaist collar and short sleeves. The little girl's are puffed, while the small youth's are plain, as befits a young man. The skirt is cut with plenty of width, and the shoulder straps are the secure sort. The trousers are splendidly tailored and have similar straps over the shoulders.

Both Sonny and Sister will want hats to match. The ensemble idea has caught on exceptionally well with the small fry. The hat pattern, No. 2812, available for ten cents extra, makes four different styles, the most Scotch of which is illustrated.

Style No. 2989 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 1⅛ yards of 39 inch material for the girl's skirt, and 1 yard for blouse. The boy's suit requires ⅞ yard of 39 inch material for the trousers, and 1⅛ yards for the blouse.

Style No. 2812 is designed for head-sizes 2 to 10, and 19, 20, 20½, 21, 21¼, and 21½.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing ten cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

HUNDREDS OF HALF-HEAD SHAMPOOS GIVEN
Each woman had half her hair washed with Special Drene—the other half with a fine soap . . . (So nothing affected results except shampoos themselves.)

WHY HAIR GLISTENS AFTER THIS NEW SHAMPOO

HELPS PERMANENTS "TAKE" FASTER
In every case Special Drene-washed hair required less steaming time (often as much as 16% less) under the permanent wave machine to take a lovely, long-lasting wave. So when having a permanent, insist on a test curl to determine the correct steaming time for your hair. Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

SAFEGUARDS HAIR'S ELASTICITY

No other shampoo tested beautified hair so thrillingly—yet left it so easy to handle. Proved safe for hair and scalp

DID you ever hear of anyone daring to make such a conclusive test on a shampoo? A show-down test that proved this revolutionary new shampoo discovery gives almost unbelievable results. Many scientists and leading hairstylists, women throughout America marvel at its safe, gentle, glorifying action . . . And the glamorous way it helps leave hair manageable right after washing. After a single shampoo, you'll see your hair lovely beyond your dreams!

In unique half-head tests, carefully supervised in our experimental beauty shop—women had one side of their hair washed with this sensational new Special Drene Shampoo, the other side with a fine soap. And in every case: (1) The new Special Drene-washed hair was far more lustrous and shining. (2) Felt smoother and silkier. (3) Hair retained far more elasticity—so important for a more natural-looking curl. (4) Took successful permanent waves faster. (With new Special Drene-washed hair, the operator could use a weaker waving solution—or less steaming time under the permanent wave machine.) New Special Drene's safety was conclusively proved. The hair and scalp of every woman remained in excellent condition.

Special Drene's revolutionary new detergent is not a soap, not an oil. Yet changes in a flash to rich, mild lather. Washes away grease, dirt and loose dandruff with thrilling speed—without any scalp irritation. Most amazing, does not leave drab, dulling film (bathtub ring) on hair as soaps do, nor the greasy, dust-catching film that oils do. Lemon or vinegar rinses are unnecessary. New Special Drene is used and endorsed by leading beauty shops.

Double Your Money Back

We are so confident you'll be thrilled with this new special shampoo for dull, dry-looking hair, we make this positive guarantee. If not more than satisfied with the new glory your hair reveals after a single shampoo—return the bottle to Drene, Box 687, Cincinnati, Ohio—and we will send you double your money back. Procter & Gamble.

Mamba's Daughters, with Ethel Waters as the Star, Opens Theatrical Season

By Cecil Smith

"HAGAR is a huge, inarticulate, and somewhat stupid Negress whose love for her child develops her from a blind force into a thinking entity," writes Dorothy Heyward of the central character of "Mamba's Daughters." "Until faced by the major crisis of her existence she is not able to think for herself, but when her daughter's happiness is at stake she comes through with a philosophy of life that, paradoxically enough, leads to her destruction."

The second of the Heywards' dramas of the Gullah Negroes of Charleston, S. C., is drawn, like the immensely successful "Porgy," from a best-selling novel. In "Mamba's Daughters," however, the authors have set their story against a wider social horizon. Instead of an all-Negro cast of characters, they show the Negroes living in a world dominated by white men—by Saint Wentworth, who owns the plantation on which Hagar lives; by the white judge who struggles valiantly to understand Hagar's mental processes when she is brought before him on repeated occasions.

Yet it is Hagar, as Mrs. Heyward has described her, who always occupies the center of attention. Utterly beyond her grasp are (Continued on Page 2.)

Below: If you've never seen a bookie weeping, the experience will be yours when you observe the new movie featuring Betty Grable and Joe Penner. It's called "The Day the Bookies Wept."

San Carlo Opera Opens Thirteen Day Stand at Auditorium Next Week

By Edward Barry

ON the tenth day of this month Fortune Gallo's famous San Carlo Opera company moves into the Auditorium theater for a 13 day, 16 performance engagement. The répertoire comprises 12 operas. Eight will be sung in Italian ("Aïda," "Rigoletto," "Il Trovatore," "La Traviata," "Madame Butterfly," "La Bohême," "Cavalleria Rusticana," and "Pagliacci"), two in French ("Faust" and "Carmen"), one in German ("Tannhäuser"), and one in English ("Martha"). A short ballet program will be combined with "Martha."

The répertoire, as may be seen at a glance, consists entirely of works whose box office appeal was established decades ago. There is little room in the Gallo theory of opera-giving (low admission prices and sure-fire répertoire) for expensive and time-consuming novelties.

The roster of artists reveals as few surprises as the list of operas. A newcomer, one Richard Holtzclaw, will, it is true, sing the part of the king in "Aïda," but no other major rôle is found in the hands of any but familiar singers.

The San Carlo company's brilliant soprano section still consists of Bianca Saroya, Leola Turner, Hizi Koyke, Lucille Meusel, and Norina Greco, as finely balanced a quintet as even the meticulous Mr. Gallo could demand. Each of these names arouses vivid memories of one sort or another in the minds of the country's opera addicts. There is Saroya's Mimi, Turner's Marguerite, (Continued on Page 3.)

Below: Doesn't Fred MacMurray look frightened! The lady who has him in her toils is Osa Massen, and the scene's from "Honeymoon in Bali." Madeleine Carroll plays the feminine lead.

Above: John Garfield and Priscilla Lane must be pretty well acquainted by this time. They played together in "Four Daughters" and "Daughters Courageous," and now they're being co-featured in "Dust Be My Destiny," at the Roosevelt.

Stage Season to Open with Ethel Waters

the legal and social codes of white folk. She lives in a world of untutored, primitive feeling. Even Mamba, her old mother, cannot cope with her daughter's simple, unguided behavior, for, as she says, "I ain't neber easy in my mind when I don' know what dat daughter of mine is up to."

Mamba's daughters are actually her daughter Hagar and her granddaughter Lissa. Because Hagar's propensities toward drunkenness and assault and battery have caused her to be removed to Ediwander Island as a public charge under the supervision of Mr. Wentworth, the task of bringing Lissa up falls to old Mamba. Hagar and Lissa live in such complete separation that they scarcely know each other.

Yet throughout the years Hagar's loyalty and affection for her absent daughter are never shaken. Lissa becomes a prominent concert singer, important enough to broadcast over a national network. When the history of an evening out of Lissa's adolescent past threatens the young singer's reputation and future, Hagar is roused out of her dim world. With a degree of concentration such as an intelligent mind would never have to require of itself, she studies out the method by which she will save Lissa. This is the triumphant moment of her life, even though her action creates inevitable and final tragedy for Hagar herself.

Like its predecessor, "Porgy," "Mamba's Daughters" makes use of music for the sake of local color and heightened mood. In addition to several spirituals sung chorally by the Negro members of the cast, the musical score includes "Lonesome Walls," a song written especially for the play and Miss Waters by Jerome Kern.

The novels and plays of Dorothy and Du Bose Heyward result from an especially happy pooling of talents. Mr. Heyward, a native of Charleston and a penetrating observer of the Negro life there, has contributed his knowledge of the speech, living habits, and psychological idiosyncrasies of the Gullah Negroes. Mrs. Heyward, an Ohioan trained in George Pierce Baker's famous English 47 drama workshop course at Harvard, has brought skilful literary craft to bear upon her husband's valuable first hand material. Of her writing Mrs. Heyward says, "I have to have my husband's characters to start with." To which Mr. Heyward gallantly counters, "The only play I ever wrote without her was 'Brass Ankle,' and it lasted a crisp five weeks."

The stage production of "Mamba's Daughters" is unusually elaborate. Already the show is in process of being hung, for there are five separate layouts of scenery. The cast includes more than 30 colored performers, including Georgette Harvey [Mamba], Fredi Washington [Lissa] and Willie Bryant [Gilly Bluton, the bad man of the story]. In addition there are several white actors.

Four talented women collaborate in "Tonight We Dance," which opens the Harris theater's season Oct. 9. Ruth Chatterton, who for too long has restricted her activity to the movies, is the star. Gladys Unger and Marcella Burke wrote the play, and originally titled it "You Can't Eat Goldfish." Auriol Lee, long a featured player with Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson and Sir Henry Beerbohm Tree, served as director.

Before "The Changelings," in which Miss Chatterton last appeared on the Chicago stage in 1924, a considerable series of successful comedies had already fallen her way. During most of her pre-Hollywood career she was closely associated with the late Henry Miller. Her first important rôle was as Miller's leading woman in "The Rainbow." For a dozen years she either appeared with the noted actor-producer or was starred in his productions. Among her best remembered plays are "Daddy Long Legs," "Come Out of the Kitchen," "Moonlight and Honeysuckle," "Mary Rose," and the Maude Adams rôle in a revival of "The Little Minister."

Her most recent moving picture, completed in England before the war began, is entitled "A Royal Divorce." It is currently on the screen of the World Playhouse. So far as other Chatterton pictures are concerned, faithful devotees of the celluloid will scarcely need to be reminded of "Madame X," "Sarah and Son" and "Tomorrow and Tomorrow."

A second luminary of the films—the silent films this time—returns to public notice along with Miss Chatterton. This is Lila Lee, whose youthful beginnings on the screen go back to the era of Wallace Reid and Rudolph Valentino. Among her 15 associates in the supporting cast may be mentioned Barry Thompson, a member of the Alfred Lunt-Lynn Fontanne acting company last year; Peter Holden, the boy star of "On Borrowed Time" in New York, who had grown a year too old for his part by the time the play reached Chicago; Marcel Journet, and Boyd Davis. The sets are by Stewart Chaney.

Dorothy McGuire departed from the cast of "My Dear Children" at the Selwyn theater last night. The part of Portia Trent will be taken over tomorrow night by Patricia Waters, who until now has served as understudy for all four of the play's feminine rôles. Miss Waters' father, Capt. Pierce Powers-Waters, is John Barrymore's company manager. Miss McGuire has gone to New York to begin rehearsals for a swing version of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," to be produced by Erik Charrell, with orchestral arrangements by Benny Goodman.

During Maurice Evans' engagement in "Hamlet" at the Grand Opera house beginning Nov. 6, the evening curtain will rise at 7:30 and the matinées will commence at 1 o'clock. The playing time of Mr. Evans' uncut performance runs just under four hours. Despite the unusual strain of so heroic an undertaking, the ordinary schedule of two matinées each week will be maintained during the fortnight's engagement. In New York last season only one matinée a week was given, on Saturday, and that was abridged.

For the fifth and last play of the Pabst theater drama festival in Milwaukee a last minute change has been made. "The Sun Sets in the East," a new play by Myron C. Fagan, will replace William I. Sirovich's "Thieves' Paradise." For the première tomorrow night of "The Sun Sets in the East" Blanche Sweet and Raymond Hackett, both former movie favorites, have been lured back to the speaking stage.

The fourth play of the Milwaukee series, "To the End of Time," also by Mr. Fagan, receives its final performance in the Pabst theater tonight. James Kirkwood and Vaughan Glaser are featured. The plot deals preachily with the desirability of performing good deeds on earth. Mr. Kirkwood is confronted with the thankless task of impersonating a hard-hearted labor leader who cannot get to heaven after his death because he overlooked the necessity of recording at least one kind act to his earthly credit. In an epilog Mr. Kirkwood's character is surprisingly revealed as a sort of chameleon Flying Dutchman, living through one terrestrial incarnation after another, from Nero and Cæsar on down to the blood-loving labor leader, and finding himself rejected at the portal of heaven at the finish of each period on earth. The play abounds in stock characters and stock speeches, at the same time that it contains unmistakable plot elements from "Outward Bound," "Our Town" and "Il Trovatore." I did not believe a word if it, and I did not like a word of it.

The cast for "The White Steed," a drama in prospect for Chicago in the late fall or winter, will include Whitford Kane, well remembered for his work in the old Goodman theater company, William Cragin, Gertrude Flynn, and Tom Bate.

Paul Muni starts his tour in "Key Largo," Maxwell Anderson's new play, at the English theater in Indianapolis Oct. 30. He will play Columbus Nov. 2-4, Cleveland Nov. 6-8, Buffalo Nov. 9-11, and Boston for two weeks beginning Nov. 13. The New York première will follow. The Chicago booking depends upon the length of the New York run, which may be extensive, considering Mr. Muni's long absence from the legitimate stage.

The fall issue of the Handy Green Book, an invaluable pocket reference book for those interested in the commercial aspects of the theater, has just been published at 250 West 57th street, New York City. The little compendium lists the names and addresses of producers, managers, press representatives, newspaper critics, and other key people in the theatrical industry. It is published twice a year.

NO LONGER SILENT

Lila Lee, popular star of the silent films, will appear in the new comedy, "Tonight We Dance," which opens at the Harris theater on Oct. 9. Ruth Chatterton heads the cast.

Vaudeville

A trio of first line personalities grace the stage show at the Chicago theater this week. Eddie Anderson, the "Rochester" of Jack Benny's radio programs and of "Man About Town," will dance; Betty Grable, young screen beauty, will sing, and Art Jarrett will direct his orchestra. The dance team of Holland and Hart will also function in the show. On the screen is a holdover, "The Old Maid," starring Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins.

Betty Grable.

Entertainers on the State Lake theater's stage are the Radio Ramblers, the Embassy Boys, Renée de Jarnette, the Three Sparks, Betty Lee, Bill Baird, and Bento Brothers and Rio. The current motion picture is "The Man They Could Not Hang," with Boris Karloff.

"Father" Earl Hines, pianist and orchestra leader, has brought a large all colored musical revue to the Oriental theater. "Runnin' Wild" it's called, and among those concerned are Reds and Curley, the Beach Combers, the Nortons, Bebbe Stone and Lucille Williams, Albert Tobin, and the Three Night Steppers. "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," the distinguished film starring Robert Donat, is to be seen on the screen.

An elaborate entertainment, known as "The Merry Whirl," holds forth at the Rialto theater. Charmaine is the special star of the show, aided and abetted by such personages as Mary Murray, Mary Marva, and Verelle. "I Stole a Million," starring George Raft and Claire Trevor, is the current film.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Like so many other musical organizations, the Chicago Bach chorus is getting under way these days. Its regular rehearsals in the Kimball building on Thursday evenings already have been started under its director, Theodore Lams. The group is preparing several Bach compositions, including two new cantatas, for performance at the annual spring concert, to be given around Eastertime next year.

An outline of the plans for the season of the Saidenberg Symphonietta has been sent out, promising some choice concerts by this eminent group. At the first concert on Oct. 29, Daniel Saidenberg, the director, will introduce several unusual compositions as he has in the past. The Italian composer-pianist, Castelnuovo-Tedesco, will make his bow to Chicago audiences at the second concert, Nov. 28. One of the composer's works to appear on the program will be written especially for the symphonietta. Joseph Szigeti, the Hungarian violinist, will be the soloist on the third program, Jan. 9. At the concluding concert, Feb. 18, a combination of chamber, opera, and modern dancing will be offered, accompanied by the ensemble. "La Serva Padrona," Pergolesi's famous one-act work, will be sung in English by Giacomo Rimini and Virginia Haskins, who presented the same opera in Italian at the Civic theater last spring.

The dance numbers will be arranged by four dancers "in a coöperative choreography designed to translate three major musical works in modern style and to incorporate an interplay of motion comparable to that of a string quartet or ensemble." These dancers are Eleanore Block, Ana Kurgans, Pearl Lack and Leyah Lucatsky, and they will be assisted by a dance group. As before, all the concerts will be held in the Goodman theater.

From Wednesday through Saturday of this week, the annual meeting of the board of directors of the National Federation of Music Clubs will be held in Salt Lake City, Utah. The state and district presidents and national committee chairmen will also take part in the proceedings, over which Mrs. Vincent Hilles Ober of New York City will preside. During the conference an eighteen months' program will be mapped out in an attempt "to insure greater recognition of music as a moral force during the current world conflict." There will be a discussion of attempts to continue exchange broadcasts with Europe of musical programs. It will be decided whether the federation should press for the enactment of one of the various bills for the creation of a federal bureau of music now before congress, or introduce one of its own.

On Wednesday and Thursday of this week and on Monday of next week tryouts and examinations will be held for applicants for membership in the Civic orchestra. This is the training body for future members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, operated by the Orchestral association. Later on in the season the group will present five Sunday afternoon concerts in Orchestra hall under the direction of Hans Lange. No soloists have yet been engaged for them, but the dates will be as follows: Jan. 7, Feb. 4, March 3 and 31, and April 14.

A series of six recitals will be given by members of the organ faculty of the De Paul university's school of music in its Little theater during the coming year. They will be played at noon on the first Friday of each month, beginning Nov. 3. Arthur C. Becker, William Lester, and Gregory Konold will be the first three recitalists.

At the end of this month, a new ballet company will embark on a tour of the United States. This one is headed by Yurek Shabelevsky, whose appearances with the old Ballet Russe are vividly remembered. Two of his co-stars will be Sonia Woicikowsky of the Polish National ballet, and Anna Ricarda, an American girl, who has done most of her dancing abroad. With the company will go an orchestral unit under the direction of Eugene Fuerst. Scenery and costumes will be designed by Michel Baronoff. While no one has been definitly named as a choreographer, it may be assumed that Shabelevsky will stage some of the new productions himself.

Following September's musical lull, the new season may be said to begin today when Alfred Lustgarten gives his recital in Orchestra hall. This young violinist is a Chicagoan. His talent is partly inherited from his father, who at one time played a violin with the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra and gave his son his first musical instruction. The latter's debut was made in Kimball hall when he was 6. He continued his studies locally with Ludwig Becker and Leon Sametini, later going to Juilliard. In 1935 he studied abroad with Nathan Milstein. Last year he toured the capitals of Europe with apparent success, returning later to join the NBC Symphony orchestra. Leopold Mittmann will accompany Mr. Lustgarten today in the following program:

Alfred Lustgarten.

Chaconne	Vitali
Concerto, G major	Mozart
Sonata	Franck
Vidui	Bloch
Tarantella	Szymanowski
"Rève d'Enfant"	Ysaye
Tzigane	Ravel

Two Lithuanian musicians are announced as coming to Chicago this year. Kipras Petrauskas, leading tenor at the State Opera in Kaunas, Lithuania's capital, will sing twice with the Chicago City Opera company, according to one report. Vytautas Bacevicius, pianist-composer and professor of music at the Kaunas State conservatory, will also visit this city, perhaps to present some of his own works in concert.

The Chicago Sunday Evening club opens its thirty-third season tonight. A choir of 125 will again participate in these services regularly, directed by Edgar Nelson. Stanley Martin and Robert Yale Smith will furnish the organ and piano music respectively. Soloists who will appear from time to time are Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano; Virginia Auyer, contralto; Charles Sears, tenor, and Mark Love, bass. At the preceding 7 o'clock service, the Marshall Field & Co. chorus will supply the music. Mr. Nelson also conducts this ensemble.

An interesting program has been devised for the founder's day concert on Tuesday in Thorne hall of the Sinfonia fraternity of Rho of Phi Mu Alpha. All composers represented are Americans and the performers include some distinguished recitalists. B. Fred Wise, tenor, will sing a group of songs by Herbert Hyde, Fay Foster, Charles Griffes, Tom Dobson, Rudolph Ganz and Maurice Besleay. A Sonatina for two violins by Leon Stein will be played by Irving Ilmer and Theodore Silavin. Cello solos by Clarence Loomis and Rossetter Cole will be performed by Hans Hess. Cecil Burleigh, violinist, and Rudolph Ganz, pianist, will each offer a group of their own compositions. To accompany these various artists Gregory Konold, Rossetter Cole and Leo Heim will supply their services.

To celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers is offering a week's festival of American music in New York's Carnegie hall. Concerts will be given every night of this week, from Sunday through Saturday, with an extra concert on Saturday afternoon. All sorts of music will be played, from folk songs and jazz to compositions by Roy Harris and William Schuman. Popular ensembles, such as the Edwin Franko Goldman band, Frank Black and his orchestra, Paul Whiteman and his band, will do the playing, assisted by numerous vocal and instrumental soloists.

As it has in the past, the opera company will coöperate with the local board of education in presenting a series of popular priced performances during the season. These are designed to give teachers and their pupils an opportunity to hear grand opera at low rates and are given each Thursday night during the seven weeks of the season. At present these special performances will be as follows: Nov. 2, "Aïda," with Rose Bampton, Eleanor La Mance, and Kurt Baum, new Viennese tenor; Nov. 9, "Cavalleria Rusticana," with Dusolina Giannini and Galliano Masini, and "Pagliacci," with Vivian della Chiesa, John Pane-Gasser, and Carlo Morelli; Nov. 16, "The Bartered Bride" [in English], with Hilda Burke and Armand Tokatyan; Nov. 23, "The Barber of Seville," with Hilde Reggiani, Tito Schipa, Morelli, and Virgilio Lazzari; Nov. 30, "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Miss Reggiani, Tokatyan, and Morelli; Dec. 7, "Falstaff" [in English], with John Charles Thomas in the title rôle, Miss Burke, Miss Giannini, Sonia Sharnova, Tokatyan, and Robert Weede; Dec. 14, "Lakmé," with Miss Reggiani, André Burdino, and Mark Love.

A special matinée performance will be added for the school children on Friday, Dec. 8, of "Hansel and Gretel." It will be sung in English by Louisa Hoe, Elizabeth Brown, Sonia Sharnova, May Barron, Mark Love, and others. A ballet, staged by the Littlefield company, will follow the opera.

Edwin Strawbridge and his company will present a ballet version of "Pinocchio" next Friday in the Highland Park High school auditorium. There will be two performances, the first at 4, the second at 7:30. This is a presentation of Junior Programs, Inc., a non-profit organization designed to bring high grade plays, operas, and ballets to the school children of the country. The Highland Park performances are sponsored by the Deerfield Township Parent-Teacher associations.

Novel Dramatized.

About four years ago Horace McCoy turned out a grim short novel, "They Shoot Horses, Don't They" dealing with a dance marathon, a murder, and a sentence of death. Now it appears that it has been dramatized by Michael Cunanara, who is none other than Dudley Murphy, the film director. In its present form the work is known as "Give Us a Break." Wallace Ford, busy in Hollywood, is anxious to act in it. George Jessel, busy in New York, claims that he will produce it during the present season.

1st Symphony Rehearsal Will Be Held Oct. 9

By Cecil Smith.

Another October has rolled around, as Octobers have an inevitable habit of doing, and Orchestra hall is full of preparations for the Chicago Symphony orchestra season. A week from tomorrow morning, the hall will reverberate with the sound of the first rehearsal, and on Thursday evening and Friday afternoon, Oct. 12 and 13, the orchestra will play its first pair of concerts in its forty-ninth season. Dr. Frederick Stock, whose term of service is already longer than that of any other major American orchestral conductor, will remain in charge of the orchestra's artistic destinies.

Any institution, no matter how important, always falls into the danger of being taken too casually when it has functioned for as long as forty-eight years without a serious hitch. By now the Chicago Symphony orchestra seems like a fixed object in the community, like the Michigan avenue bridge or the Union station.

But there was a time when the orchestra was brand new. Its addition to the city's cultural life was fully as momentous a change as the change effected in our material life by the destruction of the little old Rush street bridge and the transformation of placid Pine street into broad Michigan avenue. Until the orchestra was formed as a permanent Chicago institution, the city had depended upon outside forces for its principal music. Symphonic music had alternately flourished and languished, with summer concerts in the old exposition building on the lake front, and with occasional short-lived winter ventures doomed to quick death for want of substantial support.

In 1891 the city became big and proud enough to want an orchestra of its own, maintained on a dependable perennial basis like the already venerable New York Philharmonic [founded in 1844] and Col. Higginson's upstart Boston Symphony orchestra. Even St. Louis already had an orchestra of sorts; this year the St. Louisans celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the beginning of their orchestra.

By fortunate chance Theodore Thomas, one of the best conductors America had yet heard, was out of a job in 1891. Tired of competing year after year in New York with the energetic Leopold Damrosch, who conducted an orchestra formed with the hope of taking precedence over Theodore Thomas' Philharmonic, Thomas had left New York in the late eighties, in order to establish a music conservatory in Cincinnati. Because of internal dissension, Thomas' career in Cincinnati was short-lived. Soon he found himself back in New York sans orchestra, sans salary, sans everything.

This was a dark moment in the life of a tireless enthusiast and competent workman. At 55, at the peak of his capacity, he had no opportunity to put his powers to work. At precisely this point the offer came to move out to Chicago and start a permanent orchestra there.

Thomas was quick to accept. He would rather have stayed in New York, an older and more self-assured community. But the situation there was complicated by the arrival of Anton Seidl, an imposing musician and one of the most admired of all German conductors. Between Damrosch and Seidl, the New York market was thoroughly taken care of.

Thomas already knew Chicago, having conducted many summer concerts here. He knew it to be a raw town, distinguished more by its eagerness for culture than by its possession of any significant quantity of that intangible commodity. Out of his knowledge of Chicago came one of the most unflattering remarks in the city's history, as he averred that he "would go to hell for an orchestra."

Whether or not it was justified, this was a dirty crack. Fortunately it was born of the discouraged mood under which Thomas had been laboring, and it did not represent the true quality of the man. Once he cast his lot with Chicago and began the first season of the Theodore Thomas orchestra [as it was then called] in 1891, he devoted himself to the task of building up Chicago's music with almost fanatic zeal. In many ways the last fifteen years of his life, spent in Chicago, were the most fruitful, and they brought him the loudest international accolades of his entire long career.

In 1895 a young violinist came to Chicago from Cologne, where he had been playing in the city orchestra and studying at the conservatory. Thomas had no opening for an additional violinist. He did, however, let the newcomer join the viola section of the orchestra.

This young man, whose name was Frederick Stock, proved immediately to be no ordinary orchestral wood-sawer. He had played under Tschaikowsky and Richard Strauss, and he had become acquainted with difficult new scores like "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks" before Thomas had ever seen the music. He knew how to rescore for modern performance the archaic trumpet parts of Bach's Mass in B minor, and he knew how to conduct the opening bar of Beethoven's Fifth symphony without catapulting an orchestra into the abyss of indecision.

So well grounded a musician was foreordained to play in increasing rôle as time went on. In 1900, Thomas asked Stock to become his assistant. In 1903, Mr. Stock took over the arduous duties of the eight week post-season tour. Late in the fall of 1905 Thomas fell ill, after he had conducted only a few programs in Orchestra hall, the new structure the trustees had erected as a permanent home for the orchestra. During Thomas' illness, and after his death, Mr. Stock carried through brilliantly the program promised for the 1905-'06 season.

Before the beginning of the sixteenth season the orchestra board voted to award the conductor's post to Mr. Stock. Since then he has unremittingly lavished his great gifts upon the orchestra. Unique among American orchestras, the Chicago Symphony orchestra has been guided by one musical policy and by one educational objective for the last thirty-three years. This policy and this objective are worth thinking about, lest we forget or underestimate their value to the community. But that is quite another story.

IN MUSIC FESTIVAL

Three evenings, Oct. 17 and 24 and Nov. 1, will be devoted to an Ancient Music festival in the Goodman theater, under the direction of Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson. One of the performers will be Dorothy Lane, harpsichordist.

CURRENT MUSIC NEWS

The American Opera company, having been active during the summer months, is on hand at the very beginning of the new season with a production of Gounod's "Faust," which it will offer at the Woman's Club theater tonight. It will be sung in English. Herman Struble has been cast as Faust, Iris Stodhart as Margarita, Irene Brill as Siebel, Alma Bedrit as Martha, Charles Hax as Mephistopheles, Walter Blickle as Valentine, and Martin Boughan as Wagner. Leo Heim will conduct.

Faculty members and students of the Lee Sims School of Modern Piano will join in presenting a recital of popular music at the Blackstone hotel this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mr. Sims, the director, is a well known figure on both British and American radio programs, and he has written original music for films made in London.

As the deadline approaches, pianists are urged to enter the contest sponsored by the Society of American Musicians in coöperation with the Adult Education council. They have until Oct. 15 in which to file their applications with Edwin J. Gemmer, 1625 Kimball building.

Vera Gillette and Vincent Micari, an excellent Chicago two piano team, will open the season for the Chicago Woman's Aid on Tuesday at 2 o'clock with a program at the club's headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue. Mozart's sonata in D major and Milhaud's "Scaramouche" suite will be the two principal items of the concert, and there will be shorter numbers by Bach, Saint-Saëns, Grieg, Strauss, and Rachmaninoff.

A 6 per cent increase over last year's subscription sales has been reported by the Chicago Symphony orchestra offices. This is cheering news for the orchestral season, opening on Thursday, Oct. 12. Moreover, a check-up has been made on the 29 soloists who are scheduled to appear with the ensemble during the year and no cancelations have yet been caused by the European war.

Mathilde Ernestine, former director of the Beaux Arts salon, will open a similar series at the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles, where she has taken up residence. As to the Chicago concerts, Miss Ernestine's brother, Arthur, affiliated with the series in the past, may continue them on his own.

At the first concert of the Woman's Symphony orchestra on Oct. 16, Peter Warlock's "Capriol" suite for string orchestra will be given its Chicago première. Other orchestral items, to be conducted by Izler Solomon, will include Mendelssohn's "Italian" symphony and works by Sowerby, Salta, and Smetna. Edith Mason, soprano, and Mario Chamlee, tenor, have chosen their solo and duet selections from operas by Gounod, Massenet, and Puccini. Orchestra hall will house the concert.

Daniel Protheroe and Handel have written the anthems that will be sung by the Central Church chorus in Orchestra hall at the service today. As usual, William Hughes will direct and the incidental solos will be supplied by Kathleen R. Lane, contralto, and Evan Evans, bass. Archer Lambuth, organist, will play compositions by Kinder, Swinnen, MacDowell, and Merkel.

From the Chicago City Opera company come a few news items to be added to our knowledge of the coming season. Frank Chapman, American concert and radio baritone, husband of Gladys Swarthout, will make his debut in the rôle of Silvio in "Pagliacci."

The revival of Charpentier's "Louise," appearing at the first Saturday matinée, Nov. 4, will bring back two familiar and beloved artists in the parts of Louise's father and mother—Leon Rothier and Maria Clæssens. Neither has been heard here in opera since they appeared in the same rôles at the last revival three years ago. In the new production Grace Moore will have the title rôle and André Burdino will sing Julien.

San Carlans Coming Here for 13 Days

Koyke's Butterfly, Meusel's Violetta, Greco's Aïda.

The mezzos and contraltos are headed by Lyuba Senderowna, Charlotte Bruno, and Coe Glade. The last named singer, familiar to Chicagoans for her work with the resident company, has made many appearances with the San Carlo troupe both in this and in other cities. Her principal rôle is Carmen. Senderowna and Bruno are best known, probably, for their Amneris and Suzuki, respectively.

Aroldo Lindi, Dimitri Onofrei, and Rolf Gerard make up the tenor section—a section which will, we fervently hope, have a little better success in dodging colds than it did on the company's last Chicago appearance. Lindi's Rhadames, Onofrei's Rudolfo, Gerard's Pinkerton—these are enactments well and favorably known to Chicagoans.

Among the baritones and basses are found the familiar names of Mostyn Thomas, Harold Kravitt, Natale Cervi, Mario Valle, Stefan Kozakevich, and Ivan Petroff. The last is the Bulgarian baritone who made his Chicago debut season before last and who was prevented by illness from appearing last year.

Carlo Peroni, the tireless conductor who thinks nothing of directing a matinée and an evening performance on the same day, will be in charge of all the San Carlo presentations.

On account of its small répertoire and its almost unchanging corps of singers, the San Carlo company is able to give nearly all of its performances a remarkable smoothness and sureness. The Micaela who seeks her José in a San Carlo "Carmen" has probably sought the very same José some hundreds of times on scores of stages. There is complete mutual understanding not only as to musical detail, but also such matters as stage business and timing.

Because S[illegible] prices are low, do not leap to the conclusion that the singers are invariably inf[illegible] to those whom one would encounter a Metropolitan or Chicago City Opera company performance. Several of the San Carlans are artists who could easily get a hearing on prouder stages, but who find the fairly steady employment they receive from Mr. Gallo more attractive than the ups and downs which most members of the Metropolitan and the Chicago companies must expect.

Following are operas and casts for the engagement.

Tuesday, Oct. 10: Verdi's "Aïda," with Greco, Glade, Lindi, Thomas, Kravitt, Holtzclaw, and Bruno.

Presbyterians Prepared for Fund Raising

How are universities rated for excellence? If you need help in selecting the right school for your children read the book, "Higher Education," by Dr. John Evans of the Tribune staff. On sale at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and at Tribune Tower, 435 North Michigan avenue. Price, 10 cents. By postpaid mail, 13 cents.

By the Rev. John Evans.

With more than 100,000 Presbyterian young people resuming their academic studies, September marks the beginning of the final year of action in the sesquicentennial program. The goal is ten million dollars, and Presbyterian colleges, Westminster foundations, theological seminaries and the Board of Christian Education are all set for their fund raising campaigns.

Dr. Lewis S. Mudge announces that the total amount collected, as of Aug. 31, is $4,842,141 and adds that the interest among Presbyterian laymen in their young people's educational needs "has risen to unprecedented heights."

During the past summer, many institutions have been planning their intensive drives, others have had their surveys conducted and will be ready for action in October, but the fact of having had a survey does not necessarily mean having a campaign for funds.

The survey occasionally indicates that a college is not in a position to raise money and any attempt to carry on a campaign would meet with failure. The fund-raising survey is intended to discover the needs of an institution and to determine whether or not the constituency of the school can fill these needs.

Among those Presbyterian colleges that have undergone these surveys is Carroll college, Waukesha, Wis. Approval of the survey plan was given by the Carroll board of trustees last July and the sesquicentennial office in Philadelphia, Pa., immediately dispensed a man to the campus to carry out the field work.

Planning participation in the sesquicentennial is Johnson C. Smith university, Charlotte, N. C., whose total needs amount to $1,475,000. It intends immediately to initiate efforts toward raising $100,000. Also officials of the University of Dubuque [Ia.] are continuing their activity to raise $200,271 as a "freedom from debt fund." This effort, according to Dr. Mudge, will terminate on Jan. 30, 1940, and will enable the university to realize a challenge gift of $25,000.

Dr. William Lindsay Young, president of Park college, Parkville, Mo., announces that plans are ready to raise $100,000 as a "stabilization fund" for the college during the next two months. While the drive will be conducted principally within the Kansas City area, alumni chapters throughout the country will coöperate.

Sponsored by the sesquicentennial fund in an attempt to dramatize further the need for Christian education, thousands of alumni and friends of the 52 Presbyterian colleges assembled yesterday afternoon in the Court of Peace at the New York World's Fair to observe a celebration of "Presbyterian College day." The meeting was presided over by Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, president of the board of Christian Education for the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

Kenyon college, Gambier, O., has been selected to participate in the civilian pilot training program by the Civil Aeronautics authority for the current academic year.

"The normal flight program and classroom instruction in use at Kenyon college exceeds the minimum requirements set forth by the C. A. A.," said President Gordon K. Chalmers, "and for the last five years the college has adopted a controlled flight program, assuming operation and ownership of all equipment. This part of our educational program is due to the foresight of Wilbur L. Cummings, a trustee of the college.

Through Mr. Cummings' generosity, Dr. Chalmers explained, Kenyon college, a liberal arts institution, became the first institution of higher education to own and operate equipment enabling its undergraduates to learn flying.

Dean William H. Taliaferro of the University of Chicago announces that the new background course on human evolution in the division of biological sciences will be presented by Prof. William M. Krogman, who was recently named to the council on human relations of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Among the appointments of 38 new members to the faculty of Oberlin college, Oberlin, O., recently announced are the names of Dr. Kozak and Dr. Schaeffer whose refuge in this country may considerably enrich American letters.

Jan Blahoslave Kozak was formerly professor of philosophy at Charles IV. university at Prague, and from 1935 until the dissolution of his country a member of the Czecho-Slovakian parliament. Two years ago Dr. Kozak was chairman of the "Rassemblement Univer[illegible] pour la Paix"—Congress for World Peace—and until he came to America chirman of the Thomas Mann association for the aid of German writers.

Albrecht Schaeffer, German poet and novelist, was a member of that literary circle in Berlin which included Hofmannsthal. His best work is entitled "Helianth," written in 1920, and his short stories, of the genre macabre, are remarkable for their poignancy.

Musicians Honored.

Five musicians will be included on a special series of stamps recently authorized by Postmaster General James A. Farley. Edward MacDowell, Victor Herbert, Ethelbert Nevin, Stephen Foster, and John Philip Sousa are the honored American composers whose photographs will appear on the stamps. Some thirty American native authors, poets, scientists and inventors will complete the series.

Hellzstillpoppin

"Hellzapoppin," the violent and unruly theatrical hit in New York, began its second year on Sept. 22. After doing bad business in its tryouts and getting panned by the Manhattan reviewers, the revue turned into a freak success, within the year playing to same 700,000 people and grossing a cool million and a half dollars. Olsen and Johnson, manufacturers and principal comedians of the show, are not planning to take it on tour, but will prepare a second edition, destined to open this month. In the new version the cast will include Emmett Kelly, formerly chief clown of the Cole Brothers circus; Charles Withers and his vaudeville act, "The Opery House," and Marguerite Meadows, comedienne. Screen rights to the first edition have not yet been sold; if and when they are Olsen and Johnson will be in the picture.

Good Morning!

Last month was hectic, wasn't it, what with war news, Legionnaires conventioning, etc.? And all of our "best" movies were pretty hectic too. Lots doing in every last one of them.

"Golden Boy"—This picture, adapted from the play of the same name, follows the career of a highly strung youth, born with the soul and fingers of a musician, who essays to find fame and fortune in the prize fight arena . . . swift moving, colorfully characterized and packs quite a few punches. . . . William Holden, whose screen debut it is, submerges his identity in a rôle that demands plenty, and gets a lot out of it. . . . Barbara Stanwyck, Adolph Menjou, and Joseph Calleia, excellently cast. . . . Lee J. Cobb turns out one beautiful performance as the hero's gentle, idealistic, bewildered old father. . . ."

"Hell's Kitchen"—"Perhaps I was just in the mood or something, but 'Hell's Kitchen' certainly did go over great with me. . . . One of those unexpectedly good movies that appears unheralded and unsung. A movie with a 'different' story, with walloping fine situations and dialog . . . a picture that boasts ace acting from a to izzard. . . ." Features Stanley Fields and the "Dead End" kids.

"The Ware Case"—"A little gem of a murder mystery. . . ." Features Clive Brook, Jane Baxter, and Barry K. Barnes.

"Beau Geste"—"I rise to advise you that the talkie version of 'Beau Geste'—first shown in 1927—is all that the heart of a 'Beau Geste' devotee could desire. Thrilling to the core, and, besides that, deeply moving. . . . Gestes are brilliantly impersonated by Gary Cooper, Ray Milland, and Robert Preston . . . salaams to Mr. Wellman's direction—and the photography's immense!"

"The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes"—"Few mystery stories there are that will hold their own through the years as have Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's grand old Sherlock Holmes thrillers . . . originals, and plays from them delighted a past generation. Now come the screen versions to intrigue the present one . . . have been various impersonators of Holmes and the faithful Dr. Watson. . . . The best pair, to my way of thinking, are Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce . . . now on the fighting front of 'The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes' . . . story of Holmes' momentous battle of wits with the wicked Prof. Moriarty is alive with thrills . . . the picture is brief—not TOO brief—atmospheric, patly dialoged, staged and photographed. . . . It's a pleasure."

"The Women"—Adapted from the naughty stage play . . . objectionalities have been deleted without inducing anemia. The production snaps and sparkles, and maintains remarkable coherency, considering the mass of incoördinate material introduced. . . . As one woman to another—DON'T miss 'The Women,' girls—but better leave papa at home. . . ." Features Rosalind Russell, Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford.

"In Name Only"—"Kay Francis comes forth as a new sort of villainess—Miss Lombard, technically the backstreet wife, embodies all the virtues the wife should have, but hasn't . . . nothing at all new about the subject matter, but the interesting manner in which it's juggled about and the odd slant on Miss Francis' rôle make the piece seem 'different' . . . film is smartly turned out. . . ."

In your lap, Fans.

See you tomorrow.

Booth Plays

As it often happens, more than one play on the same subject has been announced for production this season. This time it turns out to be John Wilkes Booth, Lincoln's assasin, who has developed a popularity with dramatic biographers. The first of the pair of plays about him is "The Audacious Mr. Booth" by George Ford. What makes this work distinctive is the fact that the author is the son of the manager of the Washington theater [known as Ford's] in which the assassination took place. Accordingly, the author claims he has had access to unpublished material which he used in the drama. The play has had one tryout—last August in Woodstock, N. Y., under the direction of Anatole Winogradoff. He will direct the Broadway production, sponsored by L. Lawrence Weber; Cirker and Robbins will do the settings. The alternate work about Booth is "The Man Who Killed Lincoln," a dramatization by Elmer Harris of Philip Van Doren Stern's book. Lee Shubert and Joseph M. Gaites will be the producers of this one. They want a first class actor for the title rôle, and the latest possibility is Henry Hull.

RECKLESS ANGEL

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

CONCLUSION

(Copyright: 1939: Marie Belloc Lowndes.)

MARKING time! What a world of suspense, of anxiety, and of asking oneself what is going to happen does that expression, "marking time," mean to many a man and girl!

The hours spent by Angel in composing and writing out the statement which was also a confession, filled though they were with shame and with remorse, went by quickly. But after she knew her signed account of what had taken place the night of Mrs. Woolryche's murder in the Cardinal's room to be in possession of Major Waite began her terrible ordeal.

It was an ordeal which, instead of being made easier by the passionate devotion to another which animated her whole being, became the more unendurable. It was not of herself, of the certain public disgrace, and of the possible danger about to befall her which haunted every waking moment of the hours and days which dragged so slowly by. It was of the humiliation and, she suspected, unforgettable sense of shame and misery her past reckless folly was about to inflict on a proud and reserved man that she thought of unceasingly.

The tenderer, the more ardently devoted he showed himself, the more she suffered. Always he spoke of and made plans for their joint future. The dark present might not have been there, and the criminal whose only chance of escape from the gallows would be to accuse her of the cold-blooded murder he himself had committed might not have existed.

Only long afterward did Angel learn the fact that Lord Bridlington and Tom Crofton had been told of the discovery of the Woolryche emeralds immediately after it had taken place, and that both had thought it best to keep the story from her.

And then one morning, after Angel had lost count of the time, and when she was beginning to feel as if her courage was coming to an end, something happened.

Even before she took up the receiver she sensed that Brid had news for her and felt a lightening of the spirit. Sure enough: "Major Waite wants to have a short talk with you today, dearest. He said at ten o'clock, if that is not too early for you. Of course, I shall go with you to Scotland Yard, though he may wish to see you alone. However, we shall know that when we get there."

But there was in his voice the touch of false cheerfulness she had come to dread. He was a poor actor, and it was a relief when he stayed silent, finding, as she knew, comfort in their simply being together.

THE two hours went by very slowly, for she did not feel she could tell even Lucy that the end of part of her ordeal was in sight. But at last she and Brid were on their way to Scotland Yard, and he told her that the case was now complete and that the arrest or arrests would probably take place the day after tomorrow from now.

And then it was as if he saw straight into her troubled heart, for he said: "There come bad patches in every life. This may be going to be a bad patch for you and for me, but nothing in the world matters to me but you, and I can't help being glad that we shall be facing it together." Then he added: "Major Waite has thought out a plan which I do beg you to consider carefully, Angel."

"Of course I will." She reddened. "I wish I liked Major Waite better than I do. He rather frightens me."

"I don't see there is anything to like or to dislike in the man. But I'm sure he wishes to do the best he can for us."

She made no answer to that. It was true — truer than Brid would ever know — that Major Waite would do the best he could for her. But she thought she also knew that not even Major Waite could silence the man who would be fighting for his life. Still, as she shot up in the lift at Scotland Yard and was shown into the room where she had gone through that strange, humiliating interview with the man she was now going to see again, she felt a slight stir of hope.

As Major Waite came in he exclaimed: "I suppose you have to a certain extent prepared the way with Miss Tindall, Lord Bridlington?"

"I have said nothing to Miss Tindall. As I told you last evening, I am entirely in her hands."

"I think I had better see her alone, so may I ask you to come next door? You will find today's papers, and plenty to read of another kind, there. I shall not detain Miss Tindall very long."

Angel longed to call out, "Don't leave me, Brid!" But, of course, she did nothing of the kind, and when left alone she walked about the room restlessly.

What kind of plan was she going to be asked to consider, and why hadn't Brid told her about it himself? Then all at once she saw that on the writing table behind which Major Waite had first sat when he had questioned her before lay her statement.

At last he came back. Slowly he closed the door, and as he walked toward her she sensed with a feeling of foreboding fear that he felt very sorry for her.

"I think you know, Miss Tindall, that the case against the two men we almost at once suspected of having been concerned in the murder of Mrs. Woolryche has been completed. They are to be arrested the day after tomorrow."

He took her statement off the table and then said: "Kindly sit down. I ask you to listen carefully to what I am about to say."

She obeyed and gazed at him anxiously.

He was shocked at the change in her appearance since they had last been together in this room. She looked now like the victim of some form of medieval torture.

"I believe every word of what is written here," and he stressed the word "I." "But what I believe or don't believe will go for nothing once those men have been arrested and committed for trial. On the other hand, before any arrest has been made, my advice, I venture to assure you, is of considerable value. I hope sincerely that you will follow it."

"What is your advice, Major Waite?"

"My advice, Miss Tindall, is that you marry Lord Bridlington either this afternoon or early tomorrow morning. He has obtained a special license, so there is no necessity for delay."

He added hesitatingly: "I think tomorrow would be best, as the longer the news can be kept out of the papers before the men in question are arrested, the better it will be."

He had expected to see a great change for the better come over the pale young face before him, but no change came. Neither did she speak.

"I understand that Lord Bridlington pressed an immediate marriage on you a little while ago, and that you not only refused to entertain the idea but begged him not even to make public your engagement till what you described as 'all the trouble' was over. Am I right?"

Again she remained silent, and he went on: "Now, that was very quixotic, my dear young lady. But it was not at all wise under the circumstances."

There was again in his voice that jeering note which had made her feel perhaps unreasonably angry and humiliated during the interview when she had known this curious man had felt violently attracted to her.

"If you become Lady Bridlington tomorrow morning, as I strongly beg you to do, no one can prevent your husband taking you out of the country, say tomorrow night, though you would be well advised to return were you subpenaed to appear at the trial for murder of these two men. That you will be so subpenaed is, I fear, a certainty."

He got up, and she got up, too. "Now may I fetch Lord Bridlington and give myself the pleasure of congratulating him?"

"If I was the sort of girl you believe me to be, Major Waite, I suppose I should jump at your advice."

"You do not know what sort of girl I believe you to be, Miss Tindall," he said sternly. "But I hope you will agree as to one thing I do think about you."

"What is that, Major Waite?"

"I regard you as a most fortunate girl in having won the love and esteem of such a man as Lord Bridlington."

"And if you are honest you will also feel that he is indeed to be congratulated on my now refusing to follow your advice."

"You refuse?"

"Yes, I refuse. Come, Major Waite! Admit you still believe that I acted as a kind of catspaw for that French burglar, and I suppose his English accomplice; that I supplied him with lists of my friends' jewels, and had a share of the swag. Why, the very last words you said to me during our first interview in this room were that you knew I had handed or conveyed to Mrs. Woolryche's murderer the automatic with which she was shot."

"What I think or don't think about you is of no consequence," he said roughly.

"I agree!" she cried.

"But I entreat you to believe that I am most anxious to help you in the dangerous pass in which you now find yourself. I feel sure you don't realize the serious danger in which you will be placed the day after tomorrow. Have you any knowledge of what happens after an arrest?"

Angel shook her head.

"I will tell you what will happen in this case. The two men will be duly cautioned that anything they may say can be used as evidence against them. But if, as is to my mind certain, the man who actually shot Mrs. Woolryche says he is prepared to make a statement, that statement will be accepted as the foundation of his defense.

"He will swear that you shot that unfortunate woman, and you will be called on to give evidence before the magistrates who will decide whether your accuser and his accomplice are to be committed for trial. It is even possible, though I admit not probable, that you may be joined with them and have to stand your trial for murder."

"And you consider it would be better for Lord Bridlington's bride to be so called, and possibly tried, than for the girl who is still, thank God, Angela Tindall?"

"I don't think Lady Bridlington would run any risk of facing either of those degrading ordeals."

Angel flung back her head. "You don't think much of British justice, Major Waite."

He said sincerely: "I regard British justice as the nearest thing to real justice in this imperfect world. But by the time you have reached my age you will realize, even if you do so reluctantly, that justice has a strange way of being tempered with mercy under certain circumstances, and these circumstances would almost certainly arise if you decide to follow my advice. I still can't help hoping most earnestly that you will do so, and I implore you to think carefully over everything I have said to you."

Angel laughed. It was the first time she had really laughed since she had been last in this room. There was something in the man who was looking at her with an expression where warred together surprise and unwilling admiration which roused in the girl the old reckless, teasing spirit.

"I'm sure your advice is almost always taken, Major Waite. Why, you've done something today I thought no man living could achieve."

He smiled a thin smile. Should he help her climb down gracefully, as he had felt quite certain she really meant to do? No. He would not.

"You've made Lord Bridlington break his word! He promised he would not think of our marriage till — till all the trouble which we knew was coming to me was over." Her voice changed. It became imperious. "Now go and inform Lord Bridlington that you have failed to convince me that I should be well advised to drag his name through the mud!"

After leaving Scotland Yard the two changed into old country clothes and Brid motored her to a beautiful sandy beach on the Sussex coast, far from any human habitation. There they discussed at length every possibility. And she listened with indulgent tenderness to his dogged assertion that there could be no real danger of that false story being ultimately believed, as British justice could be relied on always to disintegrate the truth from a lie.

All at once he observed: "I've got my mother off on one of those cruises that sail on and on into the blue. And I sent two of her old beaux with her so that she shouldn't feel lonely."

O, the relief those words brought his listener! Often Angel had though with a painful sense of shame and discomfort of old Lady Bridlington.

"O, Brid, what a good idea!" she exclaimed.

"That's just what I thought. She only likes smart weddings, and as ours will be a quiet affair, she won't mind not having been there. But mind you, darling" — he stopped to kiss her before he went on — "we won't hide ourselves away if things go a bit wrong. We'll face up to everything, won't we?"

"We'll do whatever you like, Brid."

"I've got to be out of town for most of tomorrow, sweetheart. But I'll make an early start, so as to be back in good time to take you out to dinner and a spin after it."

Tomorrow? She felt a sudden throb of pain at the thought he would be away for many of what might be their last — yes, she would call them to herself their last cloudless hours together.

But she gave no hint of what she was feeling, though a word from her would have stopped his going, however urgent the business which awaited him in the country home where, till he had met Angel, he had for many years spent his only happy hours.

Angel awoke late after the best and longest night she had had for weeks. The sea air — those delicious hours on a beach where the gulls were the only company she and her lover could have endured — had calmed her nerves.

Only one more day and one more night of suspense to go through. What a blessed thought, and how dear of Brid to have got his mother out of the way!

Lucy had had to go out early, so she was all alone in the tiny apartment. Lucy? Dear, dear Lucy! It warmed her anxious heart to know that it was she who had brought Tom Crofton and Lucy together.

She put on some of her new pretty undies, but hesitated as to what frock to wear — it was fearfully hot today — when the telephone bell rang. She toyed with the thought of letting it ring on and on. Then she suddenly bethought herself that it might be Brid stepping on his way to the country just to say he loved her.

She rushed across the room. Then felt absurdly disappointed, for it was only Ned Carvill. No doubt he had felt ashamed of the crazy way he had behaved during the short time they had had together on Hampstead Heath, for he hadn't rung up since.

"Look here, Angel, if I came round now would you go for a little walk with me? I'm leaving England tonight."

"D'you mean for the summer?"

"I suppose so."

She would have been very sorry for him to know the great relief she felt on hearing that news. Yet after all Ned had really loved her. She remembered a walk they had taken together when she had been terribly hungry as well as miserable. And he had given her a delicious meal at Claridge's. Then her face clouded. She hated to remember the shooting gallery where he had taught her how to hold a gun.

"I say, do come."

"All right, I will."

She put on her thinnest frock. It was a shabby frock, but quite good enough for a walk in fast-emptying London on a broiling July day.

After a while she heard footsteps outside and looked out of the window. Yes, there was Ned, looking, as usual, very smart.

As they met she thought his face looked strained and thin. "What have you been doing with yourself?" she exclaimed.

"All sorts of things, my dear. Foolish for the most part."

"O, but you're never foolish, really. But you work too hard. Are you going to Le Touquet?"

"I don't know where I'm going."

She felt a slight sensation of surprise, for Ned Carvill generally had very definite plans. "How is George?" she asked.

"Just as usual; as a matter of fact, he's waiting for me. So I can't stay long with you, worse luck."

They were in Hyde park now. Everything about them was beginning to have a late summer look; the leaves on the trees were turning yellow and the grass was sunburnt.

"D'you remember the last time we were here together, Angel? A few weeks can make a lot of difference to a man's life, can't they?"

"Indeed they can."

There crept a thread of sadness in her tones. Everything had come back to her with a rush.

"D'you remember what we talked about the last time we were here?"

She shook her head, but she remembered that he had said something to her about marriage, and how uncomfortable it had made her. She hoped he was not going to begin again now.

"You said it must be fun to be a burglar, and you also said that a British burglar never carries a gun."

She winced at that. But even Ned coudln't be expected to remember now how she must hate those two words — burglar and gun.

"The chap who broke into Mrs. Woolryche's room and got hold of those emeralds would have done better if he had remembered that fact."

Angel remained silent. She longed to say, "Don't let's talk about that horrible business."

"Yes," he said musingly, "what you said then was true, Angel. The life of a burglar can be awfully exciting. Too exciting sometimes. Have you ever thought of what that chap must be feeling. You do owe him something after all, Angel."

She stopped walking and faced him. "What d'you mean?"

"It's true, isn't it, that Lord Bridlington was Mrs. Woolryche's bond slave? And it's true, too, isn't it, that you and he are going to be married? If yes, you owe your happiness to the man who shot that woman."

Angel turned so white that he felt alarmed. Rushing across to a spot where stood two iron chairs, he brought one of them to her.

"Sit down," he cried. And as she did so, for she felt as if everything was spinning round her, he went on: "I oughtn't to have said that, though it's true. But you are to marry Bridlington, aren't you?"

AND then in a different tone from any she had ever heard from him he said gently, "You do love him, don't you, Angel?"

Again she looked up at him dumbly, and that look was the answer to his question.

Then she stood up. "I'm afraid I'd better go home now, Ned, for I feel rather queer. It's fearfuly hot this morning."

Ned Carvill was gazing at her with the absorbed, intent look he kept only for her.

"Of course you'll marry Brid, and you'll have some jolly kids and be as happy as the day is long. All the happier, maybe, for having known what it is not to be happy."

Poor Angel! She burst into tears, and then looked around in affright. No, there was no one there except this singular young man who was this morning so startlingly unlike his usual cynical self.

"Let's go on to the bridge. It's rather nice there."

There was no one on the bridge, and they stood there for a while looking down into the cool water.

Ned said half to himself: "I always used to back the French police when it came to a bit of difficult work, but now — well, I take my hat off to the C. I. D. They have run down the man who did in that stupid woman. But they've been overcareful in their determination to have it all okeh. They won't catch him alive, for he's killed himself."

"Killed himself?" she gasped.

"Are you sure he is dead?" she cried.

"Quite sure. And I've another surprise for you."

He jerked the words out, and she saw that his face was twitching. Again she felt afraid of him.

"Was it your French friend?" she said in a low voice.

"Yes — or maybe his double. In any case he gave me this — for you."

Suddenly his hand shot out, and she saw it held the automatic she had thought never to see again.

"Ned! O, Ned!"

From her elbow his free hand traveled up and he put his arm round her shoulders. Then he felt her shrink and cursed himself for a fool.

Then he held it out over the water. "May I do what I like with it, darling?"

She nodded, and they heard the stuffless sound of the splash as the automatic touched the water.

"The other one, the one which did the deed, found a watery grave long ago."

He saw the look of horror on her face and felt ashamed.

"I oughtn't to have said that. Come along, for now I'm going to take you home."

He took her hand and gripped it so hard she could have called out in pain. They walked down the curious little cobbled thoroughfare, she with her head bent and tears rolling down her pale cheeks. They were tears of joy, though even now she could hardly believe that what she and Brid had braced themselves to go through tomorrow would never happen. It seemed far too good to be true.

Ned said no further words of farewell. He turned on his heel and sprinted up the quaint little thoroughfare where there had been winter nights when he had spent an hour looking up at Angel's window, though that neither she nor George had ever known.

For the first time in her life the girl was glad that Lucy was not at home. But she had been there in the last few minutes, for there was a note on the floor of the lobby:

I'm going out to lunch, and for a bit longer. I don't quite know when I'll be back, so I've brought in a little lunch for you. Now, mind you eat it all up to please

LOVING LUCY.

She threw her hat on a chair, and, lying down, she closed her eyes. She felt all at once so queerly, so unnaturally, so desperately tired.

And then there came a distressing hallucination. It was so intensely real that she gave an involuntary cry of amazement. She saw again the man's arm and hand stretched out in the beam of light cast by the electric torch, and suddenly into her mind there forced itself a hideous suspicion.

Suspicion! Nay, a certainty. It was Ned Carvill who had killed that woman — to save himself; maybe partly to save her, too, when frightened Toria Woolryche had called out, "Help, help!" For had that cry been heard they would both have been found there, and nothing she or Ned could have said would have saved her from horrible exposure and disgrace.

Angel faced another and, to her, a frightful truth.

The Frenchman in whom she had believed so firmly that she even had a kind of image of him stamped on her brain had never existed, and Major Waite had been right when he had accused her of having acted as a catspaw to two dangerous criminals. She had been just that — their unwitting, foolish accomplice — to Ned Carvill and George Adair.

She remembered now how she had taken Ned to see her friend's wedding gifts. They had only been there a few minutes, but that had been enough. It was true, too, that it was to please her the valuable engagement ring had been mysteriously returned. She recalled the young man's smile as he had observed, "Perhaps the burglar is a sentimentalist and will do the chivalrous thing," when she had been expressing her own keen distress at the loss of that particular ring.

Thank God she had had nothing to do with Ned's knowledge of poor Toria's jewels. Yet stop! It was owing to her that George Adair and Ned Carvill had been invited to that coming-of-age party. Then suddenly she remembered that Tom Crofton had always liked Ned. It was only for George that she had been really responsible.

Then all at once she remembered something else. This was that Ned had told her that the man who had been about to be arrested had killed himself. Could she be wrong? Perhaps the brothers had had an accomplice, and it was a Frenchman who had killed Mrs. Woolryche after all.

Spent with excitement, she fell asleep, and awoke many hours later to hear the familiar little click which told that Lucy was home again. Strange that so slight a noise should awaken her.

She was still drowsy, unwilling to make even the small effort of sitting up, and vaguely afraid that after all what seemed to be true might only have been a confused dream.

The door opened, and it was Lucy, with Tom Crofton.

"I must come in," he cried breathlessly. Then: "O, Angel" — he rushed forward — "I'm the happiest chap alive! Lucy says she will marry me. I had a bit of a job bringing her to the post, but it's all right — now."

Angel jumped up and threw her arms around Lucy. "Darling, darling girl! How glad I am! I had a sort of idea this might happen."

But Lucy looked very, very serious, and a tremor of dismay ran through Angel's still burdened heart. Surely Lucy liked Tom? But Angel felt her doubts deepen when she heard Lucy say quietly, "Now, Tom, dear, you've got to go away."

Lucy went with him as far as the door of the room, and after he had pulled her into the lobby there came the sound of a boyish, smacking kiss, followed by a joyful, "Dearest, darling love and beauty, I'll be standing in the close, even if you keep me waiting for hours!"

Angel began to laugh. She felt suddenly light-hearted again.

Lucy stayed in the lobby while Tom went slowly, very, very slowly, down the steep stairs. Then she came back to Angel's room, a shadow on her exquisite face.

"Something's happened that will make you feel unhappy, dear."

Angel looked at her friend, and she shook her head. Nothing, surely, could ever make her feel unhappy again.

"It's something printed in the last edition of the Echo."

Over the other girl there did come a touch of apprehension.

"What's happened, Lucy?"

"George Adair and Ned Carvill killed themselves late this morning. Just before they did it George telephoned a message to Scotland Yard asking them to come to his apartment at once."

She stopped and sighed, then went on: "George shot Ned first with an automatic the police had apparently known he had in his possession, and then he killed himself. Wasn't that horrible?

"Yet something so queer has come out! The two were half-brothers. Tom says he had thought something had gone wrong with Ned lately — he was so odd and jumpy. But George was always the same. Only last night he won quite a big sum at bridge in that new cards club."

ANGEL did take Major Waite's advice, for early the next morning she and Brid were married by special license.

They went straight off from the door of the old city church to Bridlington castle.

Now they had been man and wife for three days, and Angel declared she already felt like a lady who has been married for a long time. But though she did not say so aloud, she did tell herself, as she lay curled up in her husband's arms in the smoking room after their third tête-à-tête dinner together, that she was not behaving as staidly as do most ladies who had been married for a long time.

Every now and then Brid would say, "I love you." And then at last he observed by way of change: "It's funny — I didn't think the day before yesterday that I could love you more than I did then. But I do."

Finally he asked her a question: "How about that yacht?"

She answered at once: "I'd rather stay here. I love this place. I never want to leave it."

He gave a sigh of pure joy. He hadn't expected she would ever love his home as he loved it.

"Look here — Angelica."

"Yes?"

"When the time comes that we've got to have a big week-end party, even if it's only to please my mother, I think we'll ask——"

"Not Joan and her horrid 'tec?" she cried in pretended affright.

"Heavens, no! We'll never ask them. I was going to say we'd ask that nice chap, Major Waite."

Angel waited for what seemed to her husband a long time before she said: "That's a good idea. It will do that man good to meet some nice girls, Brid. He doesn't think well of women."

"He thought awfully well of one young woman, darling."

"What young woman was that?"

"You, of course."

"I should like to think that was true," she said pensively.

"Of course it's true! When did I ever tell you a lie?"

"Never," she said sincerely, and held up her face to be kissed again.

'Regina' Hayes Deserts Dignity in Newest Play

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special]. — I have been following the stars around, spying discreetly on their play preparations for the season. A recent Monday night I was in Philadelphia, where Helen Hayes offered a jury room drama, written for her by her husband, Charles MacArthur, and his Hollywood side-kick, Ben Hecht, called "Ladies and Gentlemen." The following Saturday I was in Hartford for the first performance of George Kaufman and Moss Hart's "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Interesting adventures. Not altogether fair, they tell me, to the authors and actors to catch them at their dress rehearsing. But just as fair, I say, as it is for them to offer their dress rehearsals, if that is the way they feel about them, to paying audiences. Especially as I had come to observe and not to criticize.

Miss Hayes' play is going to set her friends talking. She has completely deserted the courts of Europe and the dignity of queens. She is now a smart secretary to a producer of pictures in Hollywood who finds herself on a jury trying a writing man for murder. [He had tossed his wife off a cliff half way up Mount Wilson, the prosecuting attorney claims, so he could marry his more attractive secretary.]

Miss Hayes, being one of three ladies on the jury, is inclined to doubt the story. She has read some of the defendant's books and they were fine books. No man who could write like that, reasons Helen, could deliberately take life, however wrought up he might be. But most of the other jury members are set to electrocute the fellow on general principles. There has been too much murder, they say. Especially too much wife murder. No woman is safe, no home is sacred, any more. Let this verdict be a lesson to these fellows who would be off with the old love definitly and on with the new temporarily.

Helen fights them down, one by one, convincing some, influencing others. Her last two conquests are a married man who has fallen in love with her and is anxious to divorce his own wife that he may return to Helen. And another man who, having watched this affair, is ready to hang the jury rather than let the lovers [that would be Helen and Philip Merivale] proceed with the breaking up of Merivale's home. He is willing to vote for an acquittal, but only on terms that will bring an end to the juryroom romance.

So Helen promises him she will send Philip back to his wife and the obdurate juror is content. The curtain falls and the applause is showered pretty evenly on the several actors who have the best parts. These include Evelyn Vardon and Edna West, the one a catty, the other a mother-to-be lady juror; George Watts, Robert Keith, and William Lynn.

There are such lines in the dialog, and in Miss Hayes' part as she has not spoken before. This talk is not going to please the mothers' clubs that dote on Helen. But it may be attended to before the piece reaches its more difficult audience tests.

Seeing "The Man Who Came to Dinner," in Hartford, was interesting. The gentleman who is said by the authors to have inspired the comedy was sitting across the aisle. He is Alexander Woollcott, the fair, round celebrity, who is popular on the lecture platform, on the stage and as a radio raconteur.

Mr. Woollcott may have flinched occasionally, and I could understand it if he also blushed. His portrait as the authors, Moss Hart and George Kaufman, have sketched it [they wrote "You Can't Take It with You," it will be long remembered] is pretty cruelly etched in some scenes.

So far as I observed, however, Mr. Woollcott took the friendly pummelling in good spirit. His head was up and his chin was out. He was laughing when he left at the final curtain and seemed pleased that I was there as a fellow observer, though he did accuse me of having sneaked up on him.

The comedy is an hilarious affair so far as its dialog is concerned. The Woollcott rôle is that of Sheridan Whiteside, famed as lecturer and radio personality. He is difficult to get along with, a bitingly sarcastic, bitterly cynical, hopelessly egotistical person, patronizing the few and contemptuous of the adulation of the many.

He is lecturing in a small Ohio town and goes to dinner with one of his sponsors, I suspect the president of the woman's club. Leaving his hosts' home he slips on a bit of ice on the top step and throws a hip out of joint. They carry him to the guest room and begin to flutter about him.

The corner druggist, who is also the community doctor, is called. He has written his memoirs, and would like advice. The local newspaper sends an interviewer. He has written a play, which he would like to have read. Fans crowd in with flowers, sweet words, and jam. All of which drives Mr. Whiteside into an explosive state of nerves.

For ten days he roars insults at anybody and everybody, threatens a damage suit of many thousands of dollars and acts the part of a soar-toed bear in a cage. Only his secretary talks up to him, and she tries to get away to marry the local newspaper boy. Whiteside's determination to break up this match furnishes what story plot there is. It will be better later, when the Messrs. Kaufman and Hart get through with it. "The Man Who Came to Dinner," goes to Boston for two weeks and then comes to Broadway.

R. C. Sherriff's tragic war item, "Journey's End," has been revived by Leonard Sillman at the Empire. It is Mr. Sillman's idea that there is still a dependable public for those favorites of other days that have not been recently seen on Broadway. Starting with the war play, he plans to offer the late Sidney Howard's Pulitzer prize winner, "They Knew What They Wanted," as his second selection next week.

"Journey's End," as it turned out, was not a particularly happy choice for the opening. It is still one of the most vital and best written of the trench and dugout dramas. It still relates with simple earnestness the story of an eager young lieutenant who is assigned to the company of his sister's fiancé at the front, and finds the fiancé, who had been his hero, gone over to drink and hysterics as a result of three years of shell shock and war tensions.

But we are no longer looking back at a war and thanking our lucky stars that it is over, as we were when "Journey's End" was first played in 1929. We are face to face with another such horror on the first page of every newspaper. Business has been fairly ragged and uncertain as a result.

The cast is headed by the Colin Keith-Johnson who first played the rôle of young Stanhope, the shell-shaken captain, but the rest of the cast is new. Reginald Mason has the part of the sentimental school teacher who keeps his mind off a raiding assignment by quoting "Alice in Wonderland." Philip Merivale's son, Jack, plays the youthful recruit, and with good result. Glenn Hunter is the coward chap who breaks under the strain, and A. P. Kaye a chatty batman. A competent cast, a bit sluggish in performance.

Bloch Concerto

In the recurrent dispute over whether modern works get a fair number of hearings, the new Bloch violin concerto has been submitted as evidence that they are. It received its first performance at the hands of the Cleveland orchestra on Dec. 15, 1938, with Joseph Szigeti as soloist—he holds the sole performing rights for a year. During the rest of the season it was done in London, where it was also recorded, Paris, and Lisbon. The line-up for the new season is as follows: Amsterdam, Nov. 9; Geneva, Nov. 13; Lausanne, Nov. 15; Birmingham, Eng., Nov. 16; Copenhagen, Nov. 30, and Brussels, Dec. 21. When he comes to the United States early in January, 1940, Mr. Szigeti will perform the work in both Boston and New York with the Boston Symphony orchestra, and in Los Angeles. [The Chicago Symphony orchestra, unfortunately, has decided against doing it here this year.] This is an impressive record for the first year's existence of a new musical composition, although Mr. Szigeti's desire to promote the work has undoubtedly helped it. As for the recording, the eminent Hungarian violinist—and he should know—says that it has received one of the largest sales among modern recorded works.

Lillie Again

Beatrice Lillie and Ray Bolger will be costarred in a new revue by Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, it has been announced by the Shubert offices. This is probably good news to New Yorkers, but to theatergoers in other towns, such as Chicago, it seems a bit unfair that the eastern metropolis should have a monopoly on the talents of the British comedienne. For Miss Lillie has appeared and been much admired in two productions, "The Show Is On" and "Set to Music," in neither of which was this city privileged to see her. However, perhaps the new work by the authors of the fabulous "Band Wagon" will provide a successful enough show to make it worth while for the Shuberts to tour the show with and not without Miss Lillie.

DANCE MIMICS

Back at Chez Paree for the balance of the current show, Harris and Shore are continuing the good-natured dance caricatures that won them so much popularity there last winter.

Beauties, New Davis Band on Blackhawk Bill

A new band [well, almost new], a new singer, and a new dancer will be on hand today in the mirrored show arena of the Blackhawk restaurant.

Johnnie Davis is still scatting with voice and baton, but he has built himself a new aggregation around five of the boys who have been with him since his debut at the Blackhawk weeks ago. The new combination puts more sugar in its musical recipes, without losing entirely the essence of jumping beans that has been Scat's trade-mark. With the band now is Julie Sherwin, who recently has been singing in the Pump room.

The new dancer is an exotic young lady named Talia, a specialist in bubble and veil routines. Talia's dance creations are in langorous contrast to the energetic exhibition of Jitterbugs Orrin and Betty Lou. Bill Owen's somnolent baritone goes its soothing way as successfully as when it first was heard during Jack Teagarden's stay at the Blackhawk.

Morton Downey, whose fame as an entertainer dates back to the postwar twenties when he was making "Wonderful One" such a hit, is adding a pleasant punch to the Empire room floor show in the Palmer House this week. Playing, at times, his own accompaniment, he offers a répertoire of songs that range from the slightly Benny Field-ish "Yankee Doodle's Going to Town Again," to almost any old Irish ballad you can think of.

Joe Reichman and his puzzled look back Downey up with sweet music, and the Abbott girls continue their fast paced routines. Cardini, the magician, Minor and Root, and Peter Higgins, another popular tenor, are still doing yeoman service.

Dance is the word for the current floor show in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. From the elastic grace of Bernice Stone's acrobatics to the intricate routines of Harriet Smith's Lovely Ladies, the show's motif is terpsichorean — the first all dancing show ever offered in the suave north shore room.

Diminutive Bernice, who was seen in Chicago several years ago, returns with a répertoire that engagingly indicates this rolling Stone has gathered no moss. Teamwork in a brotherly and sisterly way is the offering of Hayes and Ginger Herbert, youthful dance team that refutes, by its cheerful manner, Ogden Nash's lament that earning a living is something of a nuisance.

Fast becoming an Edgewater tradition is the slide music of Will Osborne, whose band has two more weeks in the Marine room. The reception that has been accorded Osborne's unique style indicates that he will be on the hotel's list of regulars in the future.

A new name among Chicago bands was heard for the first time last night at the Trianon ballroom when Jack McClean, popular for years on the west coast, opened a four week engagement. Clyde McCoy will bring his Sugar Blues band into the Trianon for a one night duet with McClean, Oct. 14, and with the eternal Dick Jurgens at the Aragon Oct. 15. Ina Ray Hutton's orchestra will do singles at the Trianon Oct. 21 and the Aragon Oct. 22. On Oct. 28 Anson Weeks replaces McClean at the south side room.

Harris and Shore, the engaging young dance mimics at Chez Paree, set their caricatures apart from the mine run by emphasizing idiosyncrasies of famous dance teams, but AFTER they have first done a very praiseworthy job of impersonating in serious and artistic vein, the beauties of their victims' technique.

A fall revue, a birthday cake and all the trimmings await Art Kassel when he returns Tuesday to the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel where he got his first big break ten years ago.

Home from War Zone, Traveler Goes Shopping

By Cousin Eve.

New York turned on some excellent weather on our arrival from Europe, and we shopped intensively. There were French presents to buy for the dear ones at home. Fifth avenue was a riot of flags, probably because of the Flushing world's fair. But lovelier and more eye-filling was the green of beautiful trees above the surging crowds at Rockefeller Center.

Here again John D. Rockefeller Jr. has reminded Americans of the supreme beauty of nature's green as grown on maples, elms and sycamores. It was a crowning old-fashioned touch to the magnificent modernity of the towering group of Rockefeller buildings, black and highlighted in gilded bronze. The center, with its plaza, its statues, fountains, and houses of the European countries, still keeps an early American air.

It seemed to me that the whole plant was as overwhelming in its glory as any great building projects of ancient Egypt and Babylon.

A former Chicago lad, Fenton B. Turck Jr., now a young capitalist of Gotham, has recently become head of the new Dutch unit of Rockefeller City. And Dolly Corbin, elder daughter of Col. and Mrs. Clifford Corbin who effectively combines high society and a career, has become secretary to Mr. Turck.

There was one sight in Greater New York that I was determined to see [even if it took a whole day] and that was another monument to the Rockefeller conservation of the world's beauty, The Cloisters. This historical museum housing half a dozen French and Spanish Gothic cloisters, is set high on the banks of the Hudson river in Fort Tryon park. Well-wishers told me to take bus 5 to 185th street and save beaucoup took eons of time. Crossing Central park my heart ached to see how lovely they have made this ancient plaisance. It ached when I thought of Lincoln park and how it has changed lately into a series of speedways and granite curbs.

There are still sheep grazing in Central park, and small formal gardens with a tapis vert, and hedges of old box. There are many varieties of trees; trees of unique leafage, copper beeches and the sweeping skirts of willows and larches. And here and there arbors covered with purple wisteria. There are miniature rocky mountains in Central park, and several lakes, with swans swimming upon them.

In the golden September day there was a dreaminess about the park that made one wish for a book and a spare hour to sit upon a park bench in the warm sun and absorb the indefinable charm of it.

The Cloisters are imbedded, six of them, in a magnificent stone setting dominating the Hudson river. And beside the beautifully carved cloisters, where generations of monks have walked with and without their breviaries, there are long, high roofed halls. On the walls of these noble chambers are Gothic stone and wood carvings, primitive paintings from France and Spain, and strange old pieces of needlework. The famous tapestries, which are alone worth the trip, are early Flemish. Among the rarest and most sumptuous in color and design known to collectors, the series covers three walls and is called "The Chase of the Unicorn."

The final tapestry showing the unicorn, so white and glossy, prettily caged in a garden which is a mass of flowers, is a marvelous creation of an ancient art. There are pieces of Romanesque furniture, and stately old tombs of counts and their ladies of the 12th century. Taken from crumbling churches to preserve them, this final resting place after 700 years would certainly amaze their owners.

This is a remarkable museum, a dignified and thrilling collection of religious art covering 400 years. I felt like seeing it again before we were halfway to the Plaza. But some of the charm for me was the serene view from narrow stone windows out over the Hudson. Across its wide sweep of seraphic blue, rose the rich green wall of the Palisades, cutting sharply away to the north and fading off into blue distances behind the superb arches of the George Washington bridge on the south. The Hudson is to me the world's most glorious river, majestic and beautiful beyond compare.

There are moments of frivolity in New York. Mrs. Paul Healy had at the Plaza a "war refugee" tea, in honor of her sister, Mrs. John Baker of Lake Forest. It was an amusing idea, and all but two of the party had escaped from the war zone on various liners, with jitters galore. The hostess herself had gone to Paris in August and joyfully dropped into the agreeable life of late summer at Deauville and around. Then an English friend much in the know warned her to go home. And she went. Mrs. John Henry Clews, who was present, had been traveling on a Dutch boat which picked up two lifeboats filled with survivors of a German torpedo. Mrs. John T. H. Mitchell of Greenwich and her handsome young daughter Anne had flown up from Cannes and switched their passage from the Westernland to the Manhattan. The latter boat carried opera singers, movie stars, including Norma Shearer and Grace Moore, and the redoubtable Elsa Maxwell, whose amusing picture "Hotel for Women" was shown during the trip.

But the Westernland gave its passengers a bigger treat than that, and Anne Mitchell was depressed at missing such a grand piece of dinner table talk. First a German U-boat stopped the Westernland, a good looking captain came aboard with his staff, making his manners to the captain and speaking perfect English. After he had examined the passenger list and the ship's papers, the German captain saluted and left with his aids, and the U-boat popped out of sight. An hour later another submarine stopped the ship, and this time a hale young English skipper came up the side with his aids. The Englishmen went through the same formula, examining all papers and the roster of passengers with great particularity, then he too saluted and scrambled back on the sub, which ducked quickly and was gone.

Anne Mitchell had a luncheon on the roof of the St. Regis, which is a place to go these days, very crowded and cheerful, with plenty of noisy music, so you can't hear too much war talk. My next neighbor was the remarkably beautiful Mrs. Eunice Howard, who has taken back her maiden name after exchanging it for a ducal Italian title.

She is a sister of the late Howell Howard of Dayton, who married Loretta Hines of Chicago at a cathedral wedding that was one of the most fabulous in our social history. Howell was killed in a polo match two years ago. He was wearing a new British helmet, trying it out, and the fatality was laid to this unaccustomed headgear. Mrs. Howard has an apartment in New York and goes to Miami winters to watch the performance of "Stagehand" and other gee gees from her father's racing stable.

Anne Mitchell had a theater party that night and took her guests to see a funny play, "Leave It to Me," with music by Cole Porter. It seems to be a satire on certain of our American ambassadors and dresses. Sophie Tucker was Mrs. Goodhue, who gets her husband appointed to Moscow and takes along crates of caviar and carloads of other foodstuffs. She also has a large family of children, and works hard for a transfer to London. The drollest songs are "Most Gentlemen Don't Like Love, They Only Like to Kick It Around" and "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." Scenes laid in Moscow were most amusing and Victor Moore was an excellent ambassador à la New Deal.

After this play, we went night prowling to the "Stork Club," which, with El Morocco, seems to hold the attention of the younger set. Here all the ushers and owners wore white flannels and blue coats, and had the grandest manners! One of them handed us a ringside table after we had scurried past the long bar where sat enthroned on high stools a score of young girls with long wild tresses and wilder hats. They had escorts in business suits, and wore for the most part plaid flannels or short black silk frocks. The orchestra at the "Stork Club" is from Cuba and does the best rhumbas in town. It was really very good dance music and not too excruciatingly loud. They say Billingsley, who is the head stork, has made a fortune and is starting a similar dance house in another part of town. The dance floor, was, like all these boites de nuit, quite small and surrounded by the usual flock of little tables and chairs. The women dancing wore short skirts, high heels, and hair curled and lying on their shoulders. In photographs taken 80 years ago of Parisian women in court dress, the highest style was a mane of curling hair, "a waterfall" tumbling over the décolleté back.

The only person I recognized hotfooting at the Stork Club was Orson Munn, up from Southampton with Mrs. Munn, his second and quite young wife.

Just as one was deciding to make a break for Chicago, several dear friends hove into view, and also two invitations to New England, and one to do "high spots" at the Flushing fair. Who should be lodged in the Waldorf Tower but Vivianne Woolley-Hart, who had flown over with her husband on the Clipper. When I left France they were still at St. Jacques, back of Grasse on the Riviera. She was so taken up by the extraordinarily lovely view from her tower windows, and so was I, for you look down practically on everybody and everything like a seraph, that we could hardly get down to hard facts. The Woolley-Harts had been staying in an English country house, for nobody remained in London. Several cabinet members had dined with them and been extra uncommunicative, and owing to British censorship, they heard more here than at home.

Mrs. Woolley-Hart was looking marvelous that day, really dazzling in radiant blondeness, full of life and zest for things. They were on the eve of flying to Bermuda where three years ago they bought Cornelius Crane's island and the nice house upon it.

That same day I lunched with Mrs. Walter Templin, who has hosts of Chicago friends, and has fully regained her health. That day she was looking more than ever Spanish in dull black throughout, contrasting with white skin and auburn hair. The Templins have an apartment at the Park Lane. Right across Park avenue, Col. and Mrs. Clifford Corbin have an apartment at 320, and there after several beatific years in Honolulu, they have settled all their belongings collected the world over.

Their two daughters, Dolly and Edith Ann, are young, beautiful and already belles in New York's great gold fish bowl. Mrs. Corbin asked me to lunch and I met there her sister-in-law, Mrs. Langdon Edison, who lives up the Hudson at Spuyten Duyvil.

Mrs. Edison was a war refugee like me, but her story was far more hectic than mine. She had been traveling in Scandinavia with her five children and was in Copenhagen, when the Polish ship Batory, on her way to New York, stopped for passengers. Mrs. Edison liked the look of the Batory and took passage for the family. All went well until the declaration of war on Sept. 3. After hearing this by radio, the Polish captain scurried his ship along to St. John's, Newfoundland. And from this port, another quick dash to Halifax. After some delay here they sailed safely under convoy to New York, thanks to the gallant Polish commander.

The Polish news became ever more appalling last week, as details of the escape of one's friends came in. Victor Podoski, who was my sponsor in the Polish foreign office some years ago in Warsaw, is now in Rumania on his way to Montreal. Prince Andrew Lubomirski and Prince and Princess Paul Sapieha, who had enormous estates in Poland, were safe in Rumania. Prince Andre, who gave a dinner for me in Warsaw, is a graduate of Cambridge, and the second son of the former Polish ambassador at Washington, Prince Henri Lubomirski. His sister is the wife of one of the royal princes of Bourbon-Sicily, and lives in Poland. Mrs. Thaddeus Zazulinsky left Warsaw in July, having a hunch that things were getting desperate. She is the elder daughter of the late George Lytton, a handsome brunette, popular in Warsaw.

Of Countesse Helene Potocka, leader of Polish society, one hears nothing. Related by birth to Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs, one hopes that German bombers spared "Natolin," her historic country place. And that by reason of her charming personality she will suffer no humiliation or heartbreak.

Alexian Monks' Benefit Will Aid Hospital

For the first time since they organized in Chicago in 1866, the Alexian monks, who number 500 members in 21 hospitals over the world, have decided to give a benefit party for their hospital on Belden avenue. But planning a party is in no way comparable to caring for the sick, and the brothers have wisely decided to solicit the aid of experienced women.

Mrs. Frederick A. Rettig.

In 73 years the Alexian monks have developed their hospital, which is devoted solely to the treatment of men, into the largest privately owned institution in the country. The spirit of charity which prompted them to take in any man, rich or poor, black or white, has facilitated their great undertaking. However, the number of charity cases has increased to such an extent that funds must be raised for supplies and equipment. To meet this emergency a group of women, doctors' wives, wives of former patients, and friends, have volunteered their services.

Mrs. Frederick A. Rettig has been chosen general chairman of the advisory board, with Mrs. Conrad E. Miehoff as co-chairman.

The committee is composed of Mrs. Fidelius Knoepfler, Mrs. William J. Noonan, Mrs. Edward W. White, Mrs. Reuben B. Gaines, Mrs. Herman J. Gaul, Miss Josephine Sauter, Mrs. A. J. Wochinski, Mrs. Leo J. Latz, and Mrs. Edward F. Hess of Wilmette.

The benefit will be held on Oct. 14 at the Stevens hotel.

Governors Are to Speak at Voters' Dinner

By Betty Browning.

Mrs. Walter T. Fisher.
[Toloff Photo.]

The League of Women Voters will give a dinner Wednesday evening at the Blackstone hotel. Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri and Gov. William H. Vanderbilt of Rhode Island will speak.

This event signals the opening of an intensive three week expansion campaign in and about Chicago, one of fifteen to be conducted by the league in the country's largest metropolitan areas.

The campaign, in turn, signals the 20 year old league's preparation for its coming of age and correspondingly increased responsibilities. The figure is Mrs. Walter T. Fisher's. This witty, electric mother of six, the league's national treasurer, is directing the expansion campaign in the Chicago area.

The campaign is made inevitable just at this time through pressure of both inward and outward circumstances, Mrs. Fisher believes.

"Our board saw the Munich crisis as a threat to democracy. Everywhere our American way of life was under fire, its weaknesses were held up to scorn, other systems were praised at its expense.

"We saw organizations to save democracy, to educate for democracy, to make democracy work spring up like mushrooms in response to the terrific pressure.

"Then we saw that the league was doing just these things, had been doing them for twenty years. Only we had been doing them on too small a scale. And now we were ready to do them on a big scale. We had started out like a hot house plant, supported largely by those workers for women suffrage who felt that women should be educated for the vote after the right had been won. Then we had been pruned back by the depression, and had developed strong roots. So now we were strong enough really to grow.

"Or," Mrs. Fisher added, "perhaps you would rather compare us with a business. We have gone through our period of cautious development. We are on a sound basis. We have developed a product for which there is widespread demand. Now we are ready to expand, to reach a large market."

The league's product, for which Mrs. Fisher contends there is unlimited demand, is "quality" citizens, not in the southern sense but in the sense that they are intelligent citizens. A citizen to be truly intelligent must be informed, and once informed, he must act in accordance with his information. All this, Mrs. Fisher, asserts, the league accomplishes in its members.

"You can't become a citizen through sitting in a chair and listening and passing resolutions," commented Mrs. Fisher. "If you go out and get your alderman to clean up the alleys, then that's being a citizen."

Far from the casual passing of resolutions is the league procedure. First, a proposed project is studied from all points of view, in classes, in meetings. Adopted after the most careful weighing, the project next is made the subject of letters and personal visits to legislators or administrators. Forums and public meetings call general attention to its value.

When the project finally is carried through to victory, even then the league's work is not over. Members are alert to see how it works out. For instance, the league always has kept a watchful eye on the juvenile court and its administration. Regular calls are paid to the election commissioners to check on the operation of permanent registration.

"Only through doing can people learn, you know," Mrs. Fisher summarized. "You can't learn to make jelly by reading about it in the cookbook. You have to go out in the kitchen and work over the stuff until it gets sticky. It's the same way with becoming a citizen."

The expansion campaign has two objectives: more money, more members. Mrs. Fisher's most cogent argument for additional public support of the league is the educational one. Like other educational institutions, the league should be helped to do its task through endowments rather than to expect those who benefit directly to bear the full cost of their education.

The financial campaign is to be concentrated within three weeks. One hundred picked workers met Friday at Mrs. Frank Hixon's home in Lake Forest to prepare for the drive that will begin immediately after the dinner Wednesday. The quota for the Chicago area is $25,000. Each worker will call upon five prospective donors.

The steering committee for the drive includes, besides Mrs. Fisher, Mrs. Hixon, who is chairman of the dinner; Mrs. William G. Hibbard, finance chairman of the National League of Women Voters; Mrs. Raymond S. Simons, Mrs. Robert C. McNamara and Mrs. George C. Bogert, president of the Illinois League of Women Voters.

ATTRACTIVE SISTERS-IN-LAW AID CRECHE

A pair of attractive sisters-in-law who take an active interest in the Margaret Etter Creche are Mrs. Donald F. Bowey, left, and Mrs. Charles F. Bowey. Although the latter and her husband are living in California until Nov. 1, she has been assisting with preparations for a dinner-dance on Nov. 11 at the Drake to benefit the Creche. The Charles Boweys will be in Chicago for the party, as they will be moving to New York at that time. The Donald Boweys took a house in Lake Forest for the summer, but moved back to their city apartment on Oct. 1. The benefit is to be called a "Captain's Dinner."

Invited as special guests are Governor Henry Horner, Mayor Edward J. Kelly, legislators and representatives of women's organizations which coöperated to obtain passage of the bill.

Elinor Chapman Is Engaged to Francis Beidler

By Judith Cass.

Heading today's society news is the announcement being made by Mr. and Mrs. John Adams Chapman of Lake Forest of the engagement of their oldest daughter, Elinor, to Francis Beidler, son of Mrs. Francis Beidler and the late Mr. Beidler, also of Lake Forest. Miss Chapman is a graduate of St. Timothy's school at Catonsville, Md., and of Bryn Mawr college. She has studied one year at the Sorbonne in Paris. Mr. Beidler prepared for Harvard at the Hill school. He was graduated from college in 1921.

Miss Chapman has three sisters: Carolyn, who is a student at Vassar; Mrs. Eugene du Pont III. [Margaret Chapman], of Lake Forest, and Mrs. J. Brooks Fenno Jr. [Virginia Chapman], of Boston. Mr. Beidler's only sister is Mrs. Robert Carton [Elizabeth Beidler] of Lake Forest. Neither Miss Chapman nor her fiancé are members of the hunting set of Lake Forest, but it is possible they will attend the Mill Creek Hunter trials in Millburn today. If they are among the spectators, they undoubtedly will hold a sort of reception, for all their friends will be anxious to extend good wishes to this popular couple. No plans for the wedding are made.

The Hunter trials, an annual event, will attract a large crowd if the day is pleasant. The trials themselves start at 2:15 o'clock, although there will be eliminations this morning, starting at 11. Luncheon will be served between 12:30 and 2. The owners of the land over which the hunt rides, as usual, will be guests of the hunt members at the luncheon. For the first time, general admission tickets will be on sale at $1 each. Parking space for a car, including four admissions, is $5.

The party the Arts club is giving tomorrow to reopen its rooms is certain to be a successful one for every member always welcomes the chance to attend the first party of the season at this popular club. Ordinarily the first tea does not open an exhibition, but this time it does. Pablo Picasso's masterpiece, "Guernica," with related drawings and studies, will have its first showing in Chicago. The American Artists congress is presenting the painting for the benefit of the Spanish Refugee Relief campagin. The club makes no charge for the tea party so the only proceeds the campaign receives is from the sale of catalogs.

Also opening tomorrow with a tea is an exhibition of paintings by Nina K. Griffin at the Lake Shore Athletic club. The All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts is sponsoring the exhibition, which will continue to Nov. 1.

The South Shore Service league will give a bridge luncheon and fashion show on Wednesday at the South Shore Country club for the benefit of the Chicago Maternity center. There will be no excuse for any woman's not being clothes conscious before long, for fashion shows are about the most popular form of benefits at this time of year. Last Thursday the first big one was given, the 13th annual one of the Winnetka board of the Northwestern University settlement. On Tuesday, Oct. 17, the biggest of the year will be given, the 13th annual benefit of the woman's board of St. Luke's hospital. As glamorous and perfectly managed as any professional entertainment could be, is this two-performance show, planned and executed by the women of the board with no professional assistance except a little in training the models to walk. The ballroom of the Stevens hotel will be the setting for the show, as usual.

Depending upon quality rather than quantity are the little fashion shows being given every other Friday at the Yar, which reopened recently, after being closed for the summer. Princess Aleka Rostislav arranges the shows, the next of which will be given on Friday of this week during the luncheon hours. The marvelous gladioli and dahlias that decorated the place on the opening night were from the gardens at Ephraim, Wis., of Col. and Mme. Yaschenko, who walked off with most of the ribbons in the Door county flower show the week before.

The ballroom of the Blackstone will be filled with diners Wednesday night when Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri and Gov. William H. Vanderbilt of Rhode Island speak under the auspices of the League of Women Voters. Mrs. Frank P. Hixon heads the committee that has planned this interesting affair.

What always is one of the gayest and most enjoyable parties of the early season is the one the Chicago committee of Arden Shore gives each year. This time it is to be a Cellophane carnival in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel. Dinner will be served from 7:30 o'clock on, and there will be an elaborate floor show. Mrs. Dwight H. Green is chairman of the benefit and among her coworkers are Mrs. William L. Diener, Mrs. George Mason Jr., Mrs. Carroll Johnson, Miss Helen McNair and Mrs. Lawrence A. Barrett. Cellophane costumes are not necessary.

Saving Minerals.

It is not usually advisable to let prepared uncooked vegetables stand for any time in water; that frequently causes a loss of mineral content.

'I want a cocktail dress-
one of Blum's new five-o'clock fashions'

I like a dash of drama in the dresses I wear from five o'clock on. Not too romantic ...but the subtle rustle of stiff, old-fashioned silks cut to accent a slim bodice and full skirt ... or the sophistication of soft fabrics draped to a siren slimness. I can describe it best by saying it's that inimitable Blum chic.

First Richard Art Exhibition Is Called Vital

By Eleanor Jewett.

The most exquisite, delicate, charming, sensitive, and unusual exhibition in town this October is that of landscapes by Richard [Dick] Richard at the Ackermann galleries, Fine Arts building. Mr. Richard is making a first entrance into Chicago art circles with an exhibition, although as an able draftsman and gifted artist he has been recognized in a smaller group for a number of years.

His paintings are destined to give a great deal of pleasure. Modernism is ignored completely; one might never dream in going over them that the nightmare of surrealism, for example, had ever attacked the world, but, for all that, each picture stands out as a fresh achievement of an art tingling with vitality today. You will find design stressed in these little landscapes and a passion for color [beautiful, sensitive color], and a quick understanding of the exactly right moment for accent.

Mr. Richard takes us around the year with the seasons in his group of fields, trees, houses, sky, and roads. When you encounter a figure it is well drawn, however; for the most part, nature and not man is the artist's concern. Look at the lines of the houses, at the patterns of the trees; watch carefully how the landscape rolls away into muted distances; enjoy the clear detail of the foreground. In every painting note the impression of atmosphere, the veiled warmth that lies behind the surface effects.

Chicago owes Mr. Richard a debt of thanks that he has at last come out from behind the sheltering cloak of the nonexhibiting artist and put his work on view. Richard Richard is undoubtedly THE "find" of the year. Do not let yourself miss his exhibition. It will continue at the Ackermann galleries through Oct. 31.

Another delightful exhibit, though entirely different in character and tempo from that of Richard Richard, is found in the showing of recent work by Peggy Palmer Burrows at the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers. This is the largest exhibit Mrs. Burrows has had in some time, and it includes many old favorites and many new pictures to which one may lose one's heart immediately. Her paintings of children are invariably amusing, invariably appealing. Her sketch of herself working in her studio with her own three infants tearing peace to pieces will not soon be forgotten; it is one of the best of the new things.

A painting rather out of her usual vein is "Enchanted Castle," a very lovely composition full of poetry and imagination. It is a fairy tale picture. "Dancing Class," "Double Choc'lit Soda," "Whee!" "Golfing," "Kitty Kitty," and "The Diver" all show funny little "Peggy Palmer" children doing in a serious fashion the right thing, but with such a dash of humor! They are fascinating.

The caricatures are definitly amusing and clever. A new departure, portraiture, introduces several familiar and unfamiliar faces to us. We will all recognize Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, but to come to a Chicago person who is known to a large audience, we find ourselves greatly entertained by the portrait of Baroness Violet Weiner with its Dali details. The portrait of undecided "Miss Lura Strawn" [Yale-Harvard] is intriguing and "Mrs. Albert Raymond" is another attractive sitter, for she finds time while shooting to do something with her lipstick, even if that does mean the muzzle of her gun is turned straight into the bland face of one of the three hunting dogs escorting her over the autumn fields.

These "Portraitures of Chicagoans" are immensely clever and open an entirely new range to Mrs. Burrows. Also it offers new targets for her wit and her well placed sense of humor. Thank heaven for her kindly heart!

This exhibit has two companion shows in the gallery. In one, flowers and portraits by Mary White Palmer, I liked particularly "Reverie," "Breakfast Table," "Irene," and "Snowballs." The third exhibit is of sculptures by Florence Gray, who was a discovery of the late Lorado Taft. Her work is delightful. It is beautiful in design and beautifully finished. She is showing work in wood, bronze, plaster, and composition. The various birds and animals ["Rearing Horse," "Cranes," "Rabbits," "Ducks"] are most attractive. The "Cranes," for one, is stunning, and the warm, smooth finish of the wood in the smaller figures is very persuasive. The portraits are interesting; one feels they are good likenesses.

The first exhibition this fall in the Katharine Kuh gallery, 540 North Michigan avenue, is an unusual group of photographs by George Kepes, a young Hungarian who was at one time connected with the German Bauhaus and is now teaching at the School of Design in Chicago. The exhibit will run to Oct. 28.

The trustees of the Art institute announce the appointment of Meyric R. Rogers, former director of the City Art museum of St. Louis, as curator of decorative arts and curator of a newly formed department of industrial arts. Mr. Rogers takes up the duties as curator of decorative arts which the sudden death of Miss Bessie Bennett last spring dropped from her shoulders. Miss Bennett was one of the best loved and most distinguished persons in the service of the Art institute. Her death inflicted a great loss on Chicago. She had a sane point of view and a deep appreciation of true beauty and of fine art; under her care the department became one of the important features of the museum; her installations of exhibits, as one looks back, were so many highlights through the years.

''DESIGN'' BY JESSIE FIELD

The first exhibit of the new season in the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, is a one-man show of the decorative paintings of Jessie Field. The exhibit will run through October.

Week Bringing Conclaves in Club World

The first week of October brings several conferences to Chicago, and others elsewhere of interest to Chicago women. A number of Chicago members are going to New York to attend the triennial convention of the Pan-American league tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull will speak at the closing banquet, when he will receive the league's gold medal for "the most conspicuous contribution to the cause of Pan-Americanism." Tuesday will be Pan-American league day at the New York fair.

"The new Pan-Americanism" will be the theme of the convention. Mrs. Clark Stearns, international president, formerly of Chicago, will be interviewed over the radio, and the banquet program will be broadcast. Mrs. J. Dunraven Young, vice president at large, and Mrs. Robert S. Platt, president of the Chicago branch, head the delegation from Chicago.

A forum on "should the present federal social security policy be continued and expanded?" will be presented Saturday afternoon. Helen Hohman, research economist of the Northwestern university faculty, who helped to formulate the present policy, will speak for the affirmative; Leone Carroll, Chicago Zonta member, for the negative. Mrs. Clarence G. Goodwin, parliamentarian and Chicago Zontian, will be moderator.

Dramatic sketches by Myrtyl Ross of Milwaukee and dances by Betsy Ross of Oak Park will be presented at the dinner. Miss Leah Spence, president of the Indianapolis club, and Mrs. Celeste T. Mrs. Florence K. Thacker.

Five states will be represented when, next Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Medinah club, Pilot International, another service organization of business and professional women, holds its first district convention ever to take place in Chicago. The Chicago Pilot club, only about a year old, will be hostess.

Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, will give the invocation at the banquet that evening, and Miss Helen Cirese of Chicago, new national president of the Woman's Bar association, will speak. Marie Mayer, the Mary Magdalene of the Oberammergau Passion play; Carrie B. Allen, field worker of Pilot International; Mrs. Florence Thacker, of Indianapolis, Ind., district governor, and Mrs. Ina Drake, representing the international president, also will be introduced. Mrs. Phyllis Finley Boynton, president of the hostess club, heads a large committee on arrangements for the meeting.

Still another business and professional women's service organization, Altrusa International, is holding its fifth district conference this weekend in Muncie, Ind. Miss Anna Clarke, vice president of the Chicago Altrusa club, is the official delegate from this city, with Mrs. Flora Mee Fox as alternate. Mrs. Edith J. Alden, president of the Chicago club, and a number of others are attending the meeting, at which Mrs. Dessalee Ryan Dudley of Battle Creek, Mich., president of Altrusa International, is a guest.

A report of the conference will be made to the Chicago club at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Chicago Woman's club.

Districts one, two and three of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs will hold a joint conference next Sunday at Elgin, Ill. A highlight of the all-day meeting will be a panel discussion of "Married Women Bills," led by Miss Vera Binks of Kewanee, state vice president, with a representative of each club in the three districts participating. Other round table discussions will be led by state officers and chairmen.

Reports of the member clubs will fill the morning session. Miss Celia M. Howard of Chicago, second vice president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, and Mrs. Alice Applebee of Jacksonville, state president, will speak at the luncheon, at which Mrs. Ruby R. Lavender of Elgin, chairman of district No. 2 and of the conference, will preside. Mrs. Clara Kelly of Chicago, district one chairman, will preside during the afternoon. A tea will close the meeting.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, May 17, 1891.

Mme. Maud Powell.

Dear Julia: These lovely spring days jog one's mind about summer plans. Sandy and Martha are considering several places, which must be near Chicago with so large a family as theirs has become. They will probably need a cottage, but they haven't decided yet what they will do.

Will and I attended a band concert last evening—Gilmore's famous band, at the Auditorium—particularly to hear Maud Powell, the celebrated violinist, who is his chief soloist. A friend in Peru, Ill., where Miss Powell was born, asked me to call with her on the young musician, who is at the Auditorium hotel, on Friday, and I enjoyed the visit so much. It added to the interest in her playing at the band concert.

Miss Powell is a beautiful girl, with large brown eyes and a fine complexion. Her sensitive face is that of an artist and all her movements are graceful. She comes of a fine family, her father now being superintendent of schools in Washington, D. C., and her uncle the famous Maj. Powell, civil war hero and explorer. His explorations in Grand Canyon, you know, are most interesting. Miss Powell talked freely to us about her career. She doesn't think she'll marry, as it would interfere with her career. It would be a divided interest she could ever give a husband, of course.

She began taking violin lessons when the family lived in Aurora, Ill., where her father was then superintendent of schools. Her weekly music lessons were something of a trial, she told us, as the boys followed her first event of the club's season. A along the street, calling her the "gal that plays the fiddle." There were few girls who played the violin and she was conspicuous.

At the age of 13 she showed such talent her parents decided she must go abroad to study and with her mother she went to Liepzig, where she found good teachers. Comparing Germany and Paris, for the music student, she said that Paris made her an artist, but she learned musicianship in Germany. In London, she played in concert, but took no lessons. She was invited to play before the prince of Wales, but had to decline, as she had a concert on that day. She has always been a great worker, rising at 6, while just a child, in order to get in the required amount of practice before school hours.

You may have heard her play in New York with the Philharmonic society, then directed by Theodore Thomas. She is popular in Europe, as well as in this country. There they have heard the most eminent violinists and are very critical; but they are enthusiastic over her. She is said to be kind and generous, especially to young violinists, and to have a devoted circle of friends.

The world seems much out of joint these days. I sometimes vow not to read a newspaper again, there is so much disturbing news. The inharmony in the Presbyterian church is one thing . . . poor Prof. Briggs of the Union Theological seminary being attacked for his views on the Bible. He's no more a heretic than I am, I'm sure. I hope they won't force him out of the church or the seminary.

Then in the world of work, we are having strikes. In Milwaukee the street car men are striking for a 10 hour day, while Chicago has had similar demands from other workers. Why should not they be given these hours? I ask. Surely it is reasonable. I am told that dividends couldn't be paid if all the demands were met. I don't know, but I feel that if any employer tried to live as he asks his employés to live, he'd soon find the demands reasonable enough.

Now, with love, I am
Your faithful,
MARTHA FREEMNN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES

Maud Powell [1868-1920], born in Peru, Ill., lived a number of years in Aurora, Ill., where her father was superintendent of schools. In spite of the views she expressed in 1891, she married H. Godfrey Turner, who became her manager. She died in Uniontown, Pa., while on tour.

Charles Augustus Briggs [1841-1913], professor for many years in Union Theological seminary, New York, was accused of heresy by members of the New York Presbytery, which, after a trial, acquitted him .The fight was carried to the highest body in that church, the general assembly, and Mr. Briggs was found guilty of heresy and suspended from the Presbyterian ministry. Union Theological seminary severed relations with the assembly and kept Dr. Briggs on its faculty. After some years he took orders in the Episcopal church, in which church he remained until his death.

Were You a Fire-Baby?

Writing from New York, Emil M. Scholz, former Chicago newspaperman suggests that we print a list of "fire-babies," people who were born in Chicago during the week of the fire of 1871. If you were a fire-baby, and are willing to have your name in the list, send it in, telling where your parents lived at the time of the fire. We warn you that inclusion in this list reveals the fact that you are 68 years old this October. But what of that?

Marking Fort Dearborn Site

Interest in this project is growing. A reader reminds us that there is a fine portrait of Gen. Henry Dearborn in the Art institute. It was he, then secretary of war, who issued the order March 9, 1803, for the building of the fort. Capt. John Whistler, grandfather of Whistler the painter, built the fort and was commander here from 1803 to 1810, when he was succeeded by Capt. Nathan Heald, commander at the time of the massacre.

Illinois Garden Club to Attend Freeport Exhibit

As a hospitable gesture to garden club members, the Freeport Garden club has shifted its annual flower show from the usual spring date to next Tuesday, when the Garden Club of Illinois will hold its semi-annual meeting at the Freeport Country club.

Winners of the civic awards presented each year by the Garden Club of Illinois will be announced. The awards are made to those of its 120 associated garden clubs which have performed outstanding service to their communities. Prominently mentioned for first prize awards are the Winnetka Garden club, for its wild flower plantings in the Crow Island park just west of Winnetka, and the Freeport Garden club, for its bird sanctuary established a little more than a year ago.

The hostess club has made another hospitable move in setting aside the customary rule that only three from each club may attend the luncheon Tuesday. All members are invited to the noon luncheon and the flower show following. A board meeting will be held at 10 o'clock. The nominating committee for the 1940 election will be appointed. Mrs. George Plamondon of Wheaton heads the Garden Club of Illinois.

Several Clubs Plan Increase in Membership

With another season just beginning, several of the city's most prominent organizations are making special efforts to extend their influence through increased membership. Tomorrow six membership teas will be held in various parts of the city under the auspices of the Chicago women's division of the American Jewish congress. Sectional units of the congress already are in process of formation on the west side, and it is planned to form others.

Three hundred new members are the objective of a drive to be launched today by the National Council of Jewish Juniors, Chicago section, with a membership tea and fashion show at the Standard club. Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, 81 year old founder of the National Council of Jewish Women, will be a guest.

A rally with Louis Adamic as speaker on Monday, Oct. 9, at the Medinah club will bring to a climax the campaign of the council's senior organization for 1,000 new Chicago members. Each member who attends the rally must bring at least one new member as her ticket of admission.

Pasadena Still Has Folk Away on Vacations

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL. Those lucky persons who are still vacationing include Mrs. Philip Schuyler Doane and her daughter, Phyllis, who have been spending two months at Lido Isle, Balboa, and will not rejoin Dr. Doane at their Oak Knoll Circle home until some time this week. Mr. and Mrs. Wiley W. Stephens, former residents of Aurora, Ill., have been summering at the Miramar, Santa Barbara, on the western bend of the coast. They, too, will return this week to open their palatial home in San Rafael overlooking Arroyo Seco and Pasadena.

The George Snow Gaylords, who have been luxuriating in their newly constructed Georgian place at La Jolla, will put off until Nov. 1 their journey home to take up winter's activities. About the time they arrive here, their son-in-law and daughter, the Eugene Leslie Bruces, will set out on a pleasure trip to New York for three weeks.

Back from the beach in time to celebrate the third birthday of the twins, Mary and Jimmy, are Mr. and Mrs. William J. Pringle Jr., of Altadena. She was Bertha Torrence, whose mother, Mrs. J. Findlay Torrence, was Bertha Brown of Chicago. It was a family party and present also were the Torrences and the latter's other daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Browne Woodworth.

Newcomers to Pasadena who are finding a ready welcome in the social set are Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt Jr., who flew in this week and have taken a place in South Catalina avenue. Mr. Roosevelt has been appointed instructor in the humanities department at California Institute of Technology, and to come here gave up an assistant professorship in history at Harvard.

Dr. Katherine True and Miss Edna True motored out from Wilmette to attend the wedding of their niece, Miss Patty Hill Ferron, to Charles Le Roy Bergey Jr. of Los Angeles, last Saturday in the Church of the Angels, Pasadena. They were guests at Hotel Vista del Arroyo and left early this week for home.

The bride is a granddaughter of Mrs. Moses Adams True of Wilmette, who was unable to attend the ceremony. Among those who were present from Chicago were Mrs. Harry Watts and her children, Henrietta, Banda and Leslie Watts. Miss Nancy Boldenwick of Chicago, Eric Havermeyer of Chicago, and James Compton, formerly of that city and now of Altadena, Mrs. Charles Breasted, widow of the well known historian, formerly of Chicago and now of Claremont, Cal., were at the wedding as were the Stuart W. Frenches of Pasadena, who also came originally from Chicago.

One hundred fifty guests attended the wedding, which was held in one of Pasadena's most picturesque churches. Seventy-five were bidden to the reception afterward at the Vista.

Davis Ferron gave his sister in marriage and Miss Betty Wykoff of Los Angeles, a former Chicagoan, was a bridesmaid, together with the bridegroom's sister, Miss Murietta Bergey. Miss Kathryn Boswell, the bride's roommate at the University of Arizona, was maid of honor.

Thomas Moore of Tucson was best man, and ushers were Thomas Dawson of Chicago and Thomas Duque, member of a prominent Los Angeles family.

Fair Lawn at Lake Geneva Is Truly American

By Rose Cour.

LAKE GENEVA, WIS. The simplicity of white clapboard walls and the dignity of white colonial columns combine to make Fair Lawn, the Lake Geneva country home of the late Charles H. Wacker, one of the truly American type houses at the lake. The house is placed well back from the water on a wooded knoll on the south shore of the lake, not far from the Lake Geneva Country club, and is now occupied by Mrs. Charles H. Wacker and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Zimmerman and their children, Jane and Charles. Mrs. Zimmerman was formerly Rosalie Wacker, Mr. Wacker's daughter.

Probably Fair Lawn's greatest charm is its air of informality, comfort, and hospitality. Under its name on the gate post might well be added, "designed for living." That young people find it especially attractive is evidenced by the badminton table on a side porch, tennis racquets in the hall, and a chorus of young voices from the billiard room.

It is said that much of the creative work done by Mr. Wacker for the Chicago plan commission, of which he was chairman, was thought out while he was at Fair Lawn, and even the casual visitor can understand that the restful atmosphere of the place would be ideal for mental work.

It was shortly after the Chicago World's Fair of 1893, of which Mr. Wacker was the youngest director, that he purchased 27 acres of lake shore land. He supervised the building of the house and personally inspected every foot of lumber that went into its construction, claiming proudly that there was not a single knot in the house. The wood throughout the house is remarkable for its delicately figured grain, and this is especially noticeable in the dining room, where the paneling and cabinets have been finished in a warm amber that imparts a rosy glow to that section of the house.

Mr. Wacker himself planted the many trees on the grounds, except the fine native white oaks. One of these is an Indian "marker" tree, bent while a sapling by the Indians, it is said, to mark their path to the lake more than a hundred years ago. The region surrounding Fair Lawn and in fact all of the lake shore grounds are still rich in relics from the days when the Potawatomis had their villages there.

One of the most unusual trees planted by Mr. Wacker is the Chinese Gingko tree, also called the maidenhair fern tree because its fanlike leaves resemble the maidenhair fern in shape and texture. Both the Gingko and the Liquidambar, a species of sweet gum, rarely thrive in this climate, tree experts claim, but those at Fair Lawn have lived through more than forty northern winters without protection and are now veritable giants. Another beautiful specimen tree, the Camperdown elm, was always referred to by Mr. Wacker as the "elm with the sore throat," because of the protective wrappings around its trunk. Looking from the east windows of the house one is impressed by the wide spreading beauty of a large American elm and one is told that that is the "Rosalie Elm," so named by Mr. Wacker, who planted it the day his daughter was born.

In keeping with the southern colonial architectural idea, the service wing is separate from the main house and is connected by a covered and latticed passageway. This section has its own heating plant and water system. Like so many of the country homes at Lake Geneva, Fair Lawn is a year round house and while the Zimmerman family does not spend all of the winter at the lake, they remain as late in the fall as possible, often celebrating Thanksgiving there and it has become a sort of family tradition that Easter vacation must be spent in the country.

Indicative of the carriage era, in which the house was built, is the high step at the porte cochère. This entrance opens into a large square hospitable reception hall from which rises the stairway to the upper floors. One wide arched doorway from the hall leads to the dining room, another to the billiard room, and a third to the living room.

The living room is of generous proportions with French doors and long windows leading out upon a broad pillared veranda looking down upon the lake. The informality of the room, with its soft blue rug, large blue sofas placed at right angles to the wide Georgian fireplace, and pleasantly sociable groupings of other furniture, is attractive. The Wacker-Zimmerman clan is fond of log fires and one is generally blazing on the hearth, throwing vivid gleams over the pale yellow colonial wallpaper, the floral chintz hangings at the windows, and the fine old pieces of mahogany. There are flowers everywhere—great bunches of asters on the tables, bright marigolds on the desk, and blazing zinnias on the piano. There are a number of interesting pictures in the room, among them an original Walt Disney of one of his charming animal subjects. Mr. Disney is a friend of Mr. Zimmerman.

The wide doorway to the dining room is far to the left and the side door connects to a large screened porch where summer meals are served. The porch room is furnished in deep green with soft rose cushions on the chairs. The dining room itself is an unusually pleasant room with cushioned window seats around a bay that looks out upon a delightful vista of smooth lawn, trees, and flower garden.

The charming informality of the house extends to the garden which even with the first frost of autumn imminent presents to the visitor a riot of bloom and color. The low fence is still covered with the delicate green foliage and white stars of the clematis vine. Arched gateways lead from the garden to the natural wild-wood beyond where small armies of squirrels and chipmunks quarrel over the rich harvest of acorns that every breeze sends pelting down upon them.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. W. Binkmeyer at the Bethany Evangelical church. Mr. Miller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Miller of Peoria Heights. Madame Rubinstein has always maintained that there are no two skins exactly alike . . . each has its particular combination of characteristics, in degree of dryness or oiliness, in texture and tone. And each skin requires a particular treatment suited to its needs. That is why she has created such a wide variety of both preparations and treatments, and it is this "personal touch," this "made-to-order" quality that distinguishes the salon of Helena Rubinstein, that accounts for the fact that millions of women to whom she has brought loveliness "swear by" Helena Rubinstein . . . would go nowhere else!

How It Feels to Soar High Over the Sea

By Anson Brown.

SAN JUAN, PORTO RICO. My last day in Haiti was a Sunday and I had to be up with the glimmering dawn to greet a freighter arriving from New York. I had no guarantee that I could book passage, but I wanted to get to Porto Rico as soon as possible.

Most of the population was up ahead of me. They were dressed in their Sunday finest—black women in long lavender formals with yellow hats on their heads, young gay blades in tight fitting trousers and squeaky, patent leather shoes, little Negro girls scrubbed until their faces shone and bedecked in lace wedding gowns that drooped around their white shoes. The little girls were going to confirmation, and it was one of the most important days of their lives.

I hailed a 10 cent taxi. We whirled along with the procession. It was scarcely 6 o'clock, and still cool. Church bells were resounding over the city. Port au Prince seemed a different place. There was peace that the languor of other days did not convey. I was sorry I had not been up every Sunday at that hour.

I arrived at the small ship to find the captain running around in his pajamas.

"What the devil do you want?" he asked.

Loading operations were going on full tilt; he was busy giving orders to the mates.

"I want to go to Porto Rico."

"Not on this boat. We're full up."

"But captain, I've gotta get to San Juan."

My world seemed to come crashing down around me.

"Sorry; we have our quota of 11 passengers."

"Listen," I said, "I'll sign on as crew, I'll polish brass, I'll do anything."

"Look, son," he answered, "if I take on one more crew or passenger I'll be fined five hundred bucks."

"And don't let me catch you stowing away," he added as I walked in dejection down the gangway.

Not another boat for two or three weeks. That was that. Now what?

I sat down on the wharf and counted my money. Maybe I could go by plane, but $55! After paying my hotel bill I'd have $59 total left. That would leave exactly $4 for Porto Rico. Why not? Think of the swell plane ride you'll have. I was arguing myself into it.

I walked back to the hotel to save a dime. Deliberately I packed. The morning dragged by. I couldn't tip my waiter or the room maid. I promised to send tips when I got more money in Porto Rico, but they didn't believe me. I carried my own baggage to the waiting taxi, and didn't even look back as we drove off.

[Anson Brown Photo.]

It cost $1.80 to ship my heavy suitcase to San Juan by boat. That left $2 after I paid the taxi driver.

At high noon I climbed into the huge plane. I settled back with a wave of relief and forgot my worries.

With a roar we taxied out into the bay, turned into the wind, and as the motors revolved into a whine the great ship slowly and neatly lifted herself into the air. What a sensation! Port au Prince became a thing of toy buildings and ribbons of streets before dissolving into the hills.

We rose above the mountains. Tiny puddles of lakes twisted away beneath us. Dense jungles turned to soft mats of green. Distant mountains, like kunckles on the back of a dark hand, soon swept beneath us in a conglomerate mass of ridges and shadows. We were riding as easily as a gull.

Somehow it all seemed detached from the earthbound world. It was so easy sitting in a comfortable chair, with hot, arid plains sweeping below, dark jungles, serpent like rivers, green dots of palms on white shores simmering in the heat. But at nine thousand feet I was cool. After pulling away from the land there was nothing except the gorgeous green ocean below. But there was a sense of security as I chatted with fellow passengers or read the Miami paper—today's paper!—and reveled in the first Sunday comic section in more than a month.

We ascended to 10 thousand feet to ride above a storm. The ocean was blotted out by billows of white snowdrifts floating across the sky. It is enthralling and unreal. I ground away many feet of color movie film. The motors droned on like the purring of a great kitten. We all chewed gum so that our ears wouldn't pop.

Two hours and then a stop at Santo Domingo. We climbed out on the pier and were served black coffee. Then away once again. It was that easy.

As Santo Domingo slipped away, jagged coral reefs appeared plainly underneath the sea below us. A passenger ship in the waves looked less than an inch long. The shadow of our plane fell across it for a moment and then chased on across the waves at 140 miles an hour.

We landed smoothly in the San Juan harbor after four hours—a trip that takes two nights and a day on a freighter. How good to see the American flag flying at the customs dock!

As we walked from the plane landing to the customs house we were stopped by a Negro waiter in uniform, holding a tray of 20 daiquiris—compliments of the local rum distillery. What a welcome! And me with $2.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

"WAYSIDE."

Chicago, Sept. 11.—To the Travel Editor: Some time ago you printed a letter from me about my trip to the house of "Little Women" at Concord, Mass. Here is some more regarding my experience in that town:

After I left the house of "Little Women," I turned to the left and walked a short distance up the road and then came to "Wayside," or "The Home of Three Authors," as it also is called. I did not know then that it was open to the public.

It was raining hard, and I was wet and cold. I walked onto the porch for shelter and then decided I had better ring the bell and ask permission to stay there a while. A charming lady, followed by an English setter, came to the door. I asked her if she minded my intrusion. "Indeed I don't. Why don't you come in and warm up?" she said, with a winning smile.

Through the porch windows I had seen burning logs on the hearth. There is something about a fireplace that has great appeal to me. I accepted the gracious invitation and walked into a lovely old room.

"Come, sit here in my mother's favorite chair, in front of the fire, and dry your clothes," she said. I learned later that this charming lady's mother was Margaret Sidney [pen name], or Mrs. Daniel Lothrop. Her books are well known. She lived in Wayside for forty years, and died in 1924. Nathaniel Hawthorne and Miss Alcott also had lived here. Which is the reason for the name, "Home of Three Authors."

The charm of the house is so great that words cannot tell the story. It is very old. It has hand hewn beams, and wide floor boards, some of them 18 inches wide, placed there about the year 1725. The Alcotts called the house "Hillside." They sold it to Hawthorne, who changed it to "Wayside."

The warmth of the fire dried my clothes. Miss Lothrop came into the room carrying a cup of steaming coffee, with bread and butter. "Please, do take this," she said. "You must be cold, come, sit here in Hawthorne's big chair."

I started to eat. In a little while Miss Lothrop came in again and said: "Do you, by any stretch of imagination, like spinach?"

I laughed and said I did. She then brought me a large plate of hot spinach —green and succulent.

With my lunch tucked away, I began to explore the house. In this same room were quaint old shelves filled with charming old plates. Also Margaret Sidney's writing desk on which reposed Hawthorne's inkwell. The parlor was added to the house by Hawthorne. Here Thoreau and Emerson spent many an evening, and Julia Ward Howe, author of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," visited often. The wallpaper dates from Hawthorne's time, as do the gabled windows and doorways.

Americans Are Rediscovering French Canada

By Alden Powell.

RIMOUSKI, QUEBEC. With the province of Quebec's 36,000 mile system of highways reported in much better condition, more visiting motorists are observed following markers that lead deep into rural French Canada.

The 200 mile lower St. Lawrence region that separates the city of Quebec from the Gaspé peninsula is being rediscovered. Cars from most of the 48 states and from Mexico, Peru, India, Hawaii and the Canal Zone have been observed here in recent weeks.

At Metis, Cacouna, Notre Dame du Portage, and numerous other points beaches provide salt water swimming, boating, and fishing. Several of the province's finest golf courses add to the attractions. Parallel to the river rise the green and purple hued Shickshock mountains that form the northeast tip of America's Appalachian system.

This is the oldest settled land in Canada, and it retains a distinct old world atmosphere. Relics of bygone generations are everywhere. Some of them date to Jacques Cartier's voyages of discovery in 1534 and 1535. The long, narrow fenced-in farms that reach back from the river bank frequently are still tilled by descendants of the original French owners. Habitant families still ply traditional homecrafts, such as spinning and weaving and making catalogs and hooked rugs, lace, and furniture. Here and there a fishing boat, dog cart, or farm wagon likewise bears the unmistakable imprint of home manufacture.

Isolated for many generations and still isolated by deep drifted snow during the long winter season, these self sufficient families have a charm that wins the interest of visitors. Those visitors able to get into a private home for a meal with a native family taste bread, ham, bacon, and other distinctly flavored delicacies.

Artists find much to lure their talent, in the form of ancient mills, century old log houses, stone houses immediately recognized as Norman-French inspired, and in the river scene. There is always the shipping in the St. Lawrence, one of the world's busiest waterways. Up and down its 1,000 mile course between Montreal and the sea floats a steady procession of vessels. In contrast is the restless fleet of local fishermen and sailormen, tacking back and forth in small boats.

The Grandest Fjord.

The Sognefjord in Norway is more than 100 miles long and its cliffs are 4,000 feet above the water. The majesty of the scenery makes the fjord the most popular in that country.

Please tell me something about the Huzi-Hakone National park in Japan. —C. F. A.

The park includes Mount Huzi [Fuji], Huzi Five lakes, and the year around mountain resort of the Hakone district. It is a land of lakes and streams, of paths winding through groves of bamboo over the hills, of splendid views, and of small villages and farms. The hills and mountains that are green in summer change to mellow tints of brown and purple in early winter.

Yes. High reefs surrounding the islands break the force of the Atlantic waves, making bathing excellent in all kinds of weather. The barriers also serve as a protection from sharks and other large fish.

Here's Haven of Peace for Human Beings

By Frederic Babcock.

HOUGHTON, MICH. One of America's most primitive areas is to be dedicated next summer as a national park. It is Isle Royale, and it is situated due north of here in Lake Superior.

Like Bermuda and Mackinac, Royale is still living in the horse and buggy age. But, unlike them, it doesn't even have the horses and buggies. There are no roads on the island. Travel is solely by foot trail and boat.

The new park will be a sanctuary for birds and wild animals, and as such will be an unusual place for the study of animal [as well as plant] life. It is to be kept in its present state. There will be no autos, saddle horses, or highways. So noiseless Royale also will be a sanctuary for human beings.

Establishment of the park was authorized by congress eight years ago. Four years ago federal funds were made available for acquiring some of the land for emergency conservation work purposes. Later the state of Michigan added to these funds, so that all of the 121,000 acres of privately owned land within the project could be taken over. Formal dedication was set for last summer, but had to be postponed because the transfer had not been completed.

As a preliminary to creation of the playground the national park service, through its mainland office in Houghton, has been carrying on a limited program of conservation law enforcement and forest fire protection. Meanwhile, fishing and camping are permitted, and the island is beginning to draw wide attention from sportsmen and vacationists. In the summertime there is steamer service three times a week. Lodge rooms and guest cabins are available at Rock harbor and Belle harbor.

Next to Manitoulin Island in Lake Huron, Royale is the largest between Long Island and Vancouver. About 44 miles long, and with an average width of a little less than 5 miles, it contains approximately 205 square miles. It lies just this side of the Canadian border. Its primeval condition is due mainly to the fact that the rugged formation of its rocky masses has kept man from stripping i' forests.

The island's chief attraction to the sightseer lies in its lakes, open glades, coniferous and hardwood trees, and a shoreline broken by many coves. Traces of mining camps, with the broken "hammer" stones used to crush the rock, indicate that Indians once dug for copper there. White men mined there about 90 years ago.

Park in Memory of Lincoln to Be Dedicated Today

Troy, Ind., Sept. 30.—Dedication of a roadside park—developed by the state highway commission—at the point where Abraham Lincoln once operated a ferry will be held at 1:30 p. m. Sunday. The park is situated on Road 66, west of Troy, where Anderson creek flows into the Ohio river.

Lincoln, then 17 years old, ran a ferry across Anderson creek for nearly a year. The new playground is about 16 miles from the Nancy Hanks Lincoln memorial and Lincoln state park, where the grave of Lincoln's mother and the site of the cabin to which Thomas Lincoln moved his family are situated.

Anson Brown to Talk on Mexico

Anson Brown, writer on travel topics for THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, will open the fifth season of travelogues at the Fair store at 11 a. m. Friday. His natural color movie is entitled, "South of the Rio Grande." Mexican dances, along with the scenic beauty of cities and countryside in the land of the Aztecs, are to be depicted.

The lectures are open to the public. They are given on the seventh floor of the State street store.

Autumn Colors Appear Earlier

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 30.—Autumn colors are creeping over Pennsylvania's mountains earlier than usual.

In northern counties, where the summer was dry, birches on the higher ridges began yellowing early this month. There the reds, greens, yellows, and browns of the foliage will be at their best the last week of September and the first week of October.

The hillsides will be their most colorful over the widest area about Oct. 15, but the woods will be putting on a display both before and after that date.

The Plot to Kill Hitler!

Adolf Hitler is closely guarded when he appears in public. He fears the assassin. In the picture here the men in black uniforms and those wearing helmets are his picked bodyguards, members of the famous Schutz Staffel, or Black Guards. Directly back of Hitler is Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German minister of propaganda. At Goebbels' left is Dr. Robert Ley, labor front leader, and at Goebbels' right is Heinrich Himmler, German chief of police, head of the Gestapo (secret police) and commander of the Schutz Staffel.

Guarding the Dictator Against Assassins!

By WILLIAM J. MAKIN

NEARLY all the dictators in Europe achieved power by subterranean means; some of them began their extraordinary careers as spies. Most of them have served terms of imprisonment and rubbed shoulders with assassins and political informers. As a result of these years of mingling with the underworld characters of Europe, there is not one dictator that does not fear the assassin.

Dictators, therefore, are the most closely guarded men in the world. Because they came into power on a wave of terrorism of their own, they have acquired a knowledge of the usefulness of secret police. They, too, have their brigades of spies and are willing to pay well for useful information. They make regular use of the agent provocateur. A systematic blood purge has to be instituted. The dictator has a constant fear of the murder clubs of Europe.

Only a short while ago Europe boasted seven dictators. Now only three remain. Of the departed, two died in their beds, the hard-bitten old Pilsudski and Kemal Ataturk. The other two, Dollfuss and Alexander, were murdered. Of the chances of the other dictators of escaping assassination, ask the insurance experts at Lloyd's. They are not particularly optimistic. For a rate against Hitler's life being taken by violence you would have to pay more than $50 for every $1,000 of insurance. And this would carry you for only a month. If your interests are in Italy, the charge against Mussolini's assassination would be $20 for each $500 insurance, the period being three months. Insuring the life of a dictator is one of Lloyd's biggest gambles.

The success of the attempts against King Alexander and Chancellor Dollfuss have alarmed those police agents responsible for the safety of their rulers. Incidentally, they have considerably alarmed the dictators themselves. Hitler, Mussolini, and Stalin have each redoubled their guards and faithful followers.

Motives of speed and security render the activities of Hitler secretive and mysterious. Nobody knows where he will be next. Always he appears to be traveling at high speed between the chancellery in Berlin, his mountain chalet near Berchtesgaden, and his flat in Munich. He uses exclusively the airplane and the most powerful Mercedes ever built. As far as possible he avoids railway trains. They are too dangerous.

Hitler's mode of life is military, like that of a general at the front during an offensive, rushing in person or imagination from danger point to danger point, without heed of comfort, meals, and time. Very often he may not turn up at a heralded official occasion or as unexpectedly may descend upon the stunned Nazis; Hitler flew through the night from Godesberg to have Roehm and company shot near Munich. Nobody had any idea that the leader had spent the preceding night seated at a Rhineside terrace with Goebbels, going through the death list. Both men had flown there secretly.

Because of this mode of travel by the leader, Germany has the strictest air control in the world. Any foreign machine crossing the frontier would be observed instantly. It is regarded as a potential danger when Hitler takes to the clouds. Actually the Junkers plane in which the leader flies does not possess a machine gun (Continued on page three.)

Tribune Plane's Adventure

Noses Over in Airport Landing

By WAYNE THOMIS

IT WAS a hot day. The temperature on the ground was in the nineties. It was muggy. The air was light. In the words of flyers, "it had no lift."

Droning along above Long Island, the little bimotored Grumman amphibian reeled off the miles from Newark airport toward Bethpage, the town where the Grumman Aircraft Engineering corporation is situated. The passenger-owner of the little transport plane was interested in seeing the newest products of the company that designed and built his sturdy miniature transport ship.

The passenger-owner was Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune. The airplane was The Tribune's air yacht and aerial news gatherer. At the controls were Howard West, pilot, and Ralph Heimer, co-pilot and flight mechanic.

The passenger-owner watched the scenery below, occasionally listened to the radio, and busied himself with his affairs. The two pilots watched their maps and the flight and engine instruments that told them all was well with the two 400-horsepower Wasp Jr. motors that grumbled away softly, one in each wing.

There was little wind, and as the airplane approached Bethpage, Pilot West circled to land down the longest runway on the little L-shaped, sodded field that surrounds the Grumman plant. It was entirely a normal approach, with flaps and landing gear extended, motors throttled, propellers in low-pitch, high-rev position, and mixture in full rich adjustment.

West, with practiced accuracy, put the little plane on the ground close to one boundary so that he had a long run ahead to lose speed. The Grumman ordinarily lands at 62 miles an hour, and on this day the estimated landing speed was considerably higher—probably approaching 75 miles an hour.

There was the usual thump of alighting on the two forward wheels and the tail wheel. Then came the landing run, in which the chunky little amphibian plane always seems to gain rather than lose speed. It scooted along for seventy yards, then struck a little rise in the field. It bounced ten or twelve feet in the air.

"When we bounced one of the wings went down," said Colonel McCormick in recounting his experience later. "I thought to myself, 'O, O, that isn't so good.' The tail went up. Then the nose hit and the sharp prow, designed for good characteristics on water, dug a furrow as neatly as a plow. The wheels touched again.

"Then there was a lot of dust and we slid to a stop. I thought to myself, 'Just as well to get out of this before it starts to burn.' I fumbled with my belt, opened the fastener, and then discovered for the first time that we were upside down.

"I fell right on my head. Fortunately, beyond a solid jolt no other harm was done. I scrambled around and then tried to look for the door. It seemed I was in an entirely strange room. I was walking on the ceiling, and the positions of the door and the seats were unfamiliar.

"About the time I found the door and began opening it the cockpit door opened and Howard West poked his head into the cabin. 'Are you all right?' he asked. 'Yes, I'm all right; are you okeh up there?' I replied. 'Sure we're all right,' Heimer answered, and we all climbed out.

"There was the ship over on its back, with about $15,000 worth of damage done to the motors, propellers, the top of the wing, and the bow, not to mention the vertical fin and rudder. The insurance company had a bad moment when we went over.

"The only effect upon myself that I noted was this: When I awakened that morning I'd had several twinges of rheumatism, and they'd bothered me during the day. After the crash I noticed I didn't have a one."

The field at Bethpage is a rough one at best, and the Grumman lands fast, almost too fast for safe operations from such an airport. The Grumman engineers explained that the high landing speed of the early models of the amphibian—the Tribune ship was one of the first five production planes of this G-21 type—had been considerably reduced with later G-21s by the introduction of flush type rivets in the leading edges of the wings.

The rounded rivets that project above the smooth metal skin of the leading edge, they had discovered, had played havoc with the air flow over the wing at low speeds. When flush rivets were used a smooth flow—which is essential for lift—was maintained at considerably slower speeds than when the rounded projecting rivets were used. Consequently the landing speed of later models was slower and more like other airplanes.

"When we bounced," said West, "we were completely stalled. None of the controls answered. Of course, we had been losing speed on the ground for seventy yards and it was not to be expected that we should have control.

"When the wing went down the tail came up and the nose dug in. We had enough speed finally to somersault forward and slide to a stop. Lucky the Grumman is as strongly built as it is, otherwise one of us might have been hurt.

"The exhaust manifolds and cowlings on the top of the wing, the propeller tips, and the fin were damaged, and the bow was somwhat crumpled by our cartwheeling on it. It'll take about three weeks of work at the factory to put the plane in tiptop flying condition again."

Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

Bette Leads Parade of Stars

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood.

THERE was a time in the history of the cinema when the patricians of the legitimate stage refused to demean themselves by accepting employment in the movies, and if circumstances forced the legit stage to sell their heritage for a mess of pottage they worked under various aliases. Of course, that condition was eliminated years ago, but the impression has persisted vaguely that the legitimate theater was somewhat more respectable than the screen and that the top stage plays, freed of censorship and other handcuffs which shackled the wrists of the movies, were better for that and allied reasons.

The movies never have disputed the comparison violently.

Your west coast sentinel never would have argued the point, either, but for the fact that within a short span of weeks he saw Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story," Katharine Cornell in "No Time for Comedy," Tallulah Bankhead in "The Little Foxes," and Helen Hayes in "Gentlemen of the Jury" (at least that was the title when I saw it). Now these four plays, starring the Misses Hepburn, Cornell, Bankhead, and Hayes, are the super-super-super-productions of the legitimate theater of 1939, and they can be accepted as typifying the very best in the legit theater.

Katharine Hepburn

Helen Hayes

So it is important to recognize that such a motion picture as "The Old Maid" is infinitely better than any one of these stage plays; that "The Women" is far defter as comedy than any of these; that "Wuthering Heights" was more sensitive in implication—in other words, it is vital to recognize the fact that the movies have outstripped the legitimate stage.

In all of these stage plays the producers and directors have been given the broadest possible latitude. There has been no censorship to delete oaths, no censorship to object to situations and suggestions that the movies could not employ. Yet the fact remains that the movies, handcuffed by censorship and studio precautions, have done a far better job.

BETTE DAVIS

Quietly and without any sounding of alarums the movies' Bette Davis has taken over the No. 1 spot once disputed by Katharine Cornell and Helen Hayes. The greatest actress in the United States arena today is Miss Davis. Regardless of the protestations of the stagers, the parade now originates in Hollywood, and at the head of the parade is Bette. It is not because Miss Cornell and Miss Hayes have slid back, but that the Davis girl has come along so rapidly within the last eighteen months. While the stars of the legitimate theater restrict themselves to one play a season, Academy Award Winner Davis has the stimulation of three or four rôles a year, the stimulation of different directors, different casts—and that stimulation shows results in the broadening of her dramatic powers.

It has been argued that the monotony of playing a scene over and over again in the movies is detrimental to Art. May I point out, then, in answer that the monotony of playing a part over and over again on the legitimate stage is detrimental to Art also? You can say that the stagers are stimulated by different audiences at each performance, but that is only a half-truth. As between a movie performer's opportunity to play three or four rôles a season and a stage star's opportunity to play one rôle in eighteen months, the advantage obviously rests with the movie performer. The freshness of Bette Davis' characterizations and her rapid dramatic development indicate the validity of my argument.

Katharine Cornell

Tallulah Bankhead

It has been said that the legit stage always must play comedy more expertly than the screen, because comedy timing demands an audience. Yet Director George Cukor's "The Women" is so much more gay and effervescent than any stage comedy that the argument again is discredited.

The picture, I'm afraid, has changed. From this point on the stage must carry the burden of proof. There are mechanical reasons that enter into this changed frontier. As the result of talking pictures and the radio the national hearing has been rendered less acute. When you go to a stage play, unless you are fortunate enough to get a seat down in the first eight rows it is difficult to hear the dialog of the actors, and it is a discomfort. The movies, which afford fine sound and equally fine vision, have emphasized the oral and visual inadequacies of the legitimate theater, which also suffers from the inconvenience of rickety old playhouses.

The movies, in other words, have taken the lead. Let's hear no more about the supremacy of the legitimate stage, because that supremacy, once a fact, now is fiction.

Terror of the Assassin

Drives Hitler to Cover

or any other form of armament. But when on the ground it is closely guarded day and night to prevent sabotage.

More than once Hitler has had narrow escapes in the air, but not from assassins. There was the occasion when he was flying to Danzig, where he was due to make a speech. The weather was bad, and the pilot flew straight into a storm. Soon he lost himself in low cloud and fog, and, taking the wrong direction over Denmark, was flying out to the North sea instead of along the Baltic.

Hitler looked at his watch and found that he was already a quarter of an hour overdue for his meeting. Realizing that his pilot had lost his way, he gave the order, "Turn in your tracks and fly southward." Thanks to the Fuehrer's sixth, and in German eyes divine, sense of self-preservation, they regained land and came down safely.

Hitler considers his safest retreat is the Hans Wachenfeld, looking down on Austrian Salzburg. As a result he spends most of his time in this mountain retreat preparing to launch those week-end coups which upset the diplomatic week-ends of other nations. The road leading to his mountain chalet is heavily policed and only those with special permits are allowed to enter it. Moreover, the whole estate is surrounded by barbed wire, with armed patrols at strategic points.

Hitler knows all the wily ways of the underworld. He is one of the dictators who began his political career as a spy. So the business of espionage comes naturally to him. The story as told by Heiden relates how Hitler, serving as a noncommissioned officer, was in 1919 detailed to attend labor meetings, mingle with workers' groups, and report to his superiors the state of popular opinion. It was while on one of these missions that he heard a man named Gottfried Feder speak. He was impressed by Feder's violent economic theories. He came again to hear him and joined excitedly in the discussion. He even spoke against an opposition speaker. He attracted notice and was soon one of the leaders of this new political party, which eventually became the Nazis. At the same time Hitler continued his espionage work, having then become the double spy.

There have been doubts cast upon Hitler's personal courage. It is related by his enemies that when he and his men were fired on in the Munich putsch of 1923 Hitler flung himself to the ground with such violence that his shoulder was broken. Whether this be true or not, the fact remains that Hitler sees that every precaution is taken to save him from the lurking assassin.

When Hitler drives in his high-powered seven-seater car three of the Black Guards sit directly behind their leader, who sits beside the chauffeur. When he addresses meetings four of them always keep him in sight from a position near the platform. If the bodyguard are not actually in his car they follow close behind, often standing on the running boards. Photographs show that their right hands are usually resting on pistol holsters. When Herr Himmler was appointed chief of the German police orders were given to double the leader's bodyguard. An extra car of armed guards was assigned to accompany him wherever he went. At the same time the route along which the leader's car will pass is lined with Black Guards alternately facing inward and outward.

Hitler has his own special guard at the chancellery. It consists of about a hundred Black Shirts. They wear steel helmets and carry rifles. Two are stationed at the main gates. A group is in the reception hall. Two more guard the archway to the inner court. And two more guard the courtyard doorway. Inside the building the corridor's in the vicinity of Hitler's office seem to swarm with guards carrying automatics.

The story is told of a British politician who was invited to lunch with Hitler at the chancellery. Talk and the lunch proceeded. The British politician was nervous. In the course of making a gesture he knocked a large vase off a pedestal. Instantly from behind each curtain in the room appeared Black Guards with leveled weapons.

It was when Hitler adopted the use of a double that his enemies chuckled and the assassins were bewildered. This double was Julius Schreck, a Bavarian, aged 38, who also acted as chauffeur in the giant Mercedes. Schreck bore a certain resemblance to the Fuehrer—he had the same type of small black mustache—though he was of sturdier and more powerful build. During the nine years he was Hitler's chauffeur he drove him for many thousands of miles to every corner of the Reich. Joining the Nazi party in 1921, he was one of its oldest members and had taken part in many of its street battles, including the Munich putsch.

Julius Schreck

Adolf Hitler

Unofficial "double"

During election campaigns Julius Schreck sometimes slept in his clothes for weeks at a time, taking a short nap at the wheel while the Fuehrer was delivering a speech—and then on again through the night. Schreck in German means "terror," and he was nicknamed "der Schreck der Landstrasse" (the terror of the highway). Hitler, for various reasons, preferred to travel fast on the open highway, but his chauffeur was too good a driver to justify his nickname.

The fact that Schreck could pose as double for Hitler enhanced his reputation in the eyes of the leader. He was not only one of the highest-paid officials in the Reich, but he also formed one of the triple suicide pact. Three men were bound together to kill themselves if, despite their vigilance, something should happen to Hitler. The three men in this suicide pact were Bruckner, Schaub, and Schreck.

Lieutenant Bruckner is the immensely tall Black Guard who was at Hitler's side when he personally arrested Roehm in the blood purge of June 30, 1934. He sleeps in the next room to Hitler, always armed. Schaub, the second of the trio, has the job of planning the route for Hitler when he leaves Berlin. He has to confer with police chiefs and make certain that roads will be clear or else well guarded against assassins. Julius Schreck drove the car and at certain parts kept his foot down on the accelerator.

In June, 1936, came the news of the death of Schreck, the double, from meningitis. Hitler was reported to have visited his chauffeur in the hospital and wept when the news of his old friend's death was brought to him. When, instead of being buried in the normal manner of one of his rank, Schreck was interred with the highest military honors, strange rumors began to circulate in Germany.

It was said that Schreck had been killed by the secret anti-Hitler organization known by the initials R. R. Since that grim night in June, 1934, when Hitler had his right-hand man, Ernst Roehm, put up against a wall and shot, Roehm's friends have sworn revenge. They formed an organization called Roehm's Revengers. This murder club was feared by Hitler more than any other danger.

Mysteriously, on walls and bridges, the sinister letters "R. R." appeared overnight. Government officials scanning documents found "R. R." scribbled in the corners. It was because of the growth of this murder club that Hitler commanded that his guards be doubled and began to use Schreck as a puppet for himself in certain public appearances.

On May 15, so the whispered tale tells, the two sat side by side in a car that was taking Hitler to Bernau. To all appearances Hitler sat in the passenger's seat while Schreck drove. But this time Hitler, his lank hair drawn back, a chauffeur's hat pulled forward, was driving the car. Schreck, his hair drawn forward in the Hitler manner, sat in the leader's place. They reached a railway crossing and slowed up. As they did so, shots fired with unerring accuracy burst from the roadside. The man in the passenger's seat slumped. The wrong man had been assassinated. What truth there is in the story is difficult in these strange German times to discover. The fact remains that Schreck is dead, as a search began at once for another double of Hitler. There were no volunteers for the post.

A bomb was thrown once at the supposed leader's car at Nuremberg in 1932. Only Julius Streicher was in the car. Then a year ago there were strong rumors that the Fuehrer had been wounded in the arm by a young woman. Certainly about that date he canceled all engagements save one, the New Year's reception of the diplomatic corps. A film of that ceremony shows the central figure holding stiffly his left arm.

The only bravado that Hitler permits himself is to take tea in the public lounge of the Berlin Kaiserhof nearly every day when he is in the capital. It is seemingly possible for any one to enter that lounge and take a table for tea in close proximity to the leader. But should any one do so he would be the cynosure of all eyes. It is usual to leave all tables adjoining that used by Hitler unoccupied. At the same time a dozen black-coated guards, each with an automatic and each a crack shot, may be observed lounging about the room. Thus under such conditions Hitler is able to enjoy a modest cup of tea with toast.

But there are murder clubs other than Roehm's Revengers ready to seize an opportunity of assassinating Hitler and overthrowing the dictatorship. J. C. Little, president of the Amalgamated Engineering union, recently excited a gathering of trades unionists at Morecambe by telling of a secret group of Germans whose object was to overthrow Hitler. Mr. Little elaborated this statement in an interview.

This secret organization, he said, was formed about a year ago. Former trades union leaders began the movement. Only trusted members of works committees, corresponding to shops' stewards in England, were elected. Each was given a number, and elaborate precautions were taken to prevent incrimination. The international collecting committee had been formed, with headquarters in capitals abroad. Funds collected from trade unionists and individual subscribers in many countries, including Britain, France, the United States, Italy, and Spain, were forwarded to the distributing committee.

The new movement consisted solely of Germans. It met periodically and frequently changed its headquarters in Switzerland, Belgium, and Holland to prevent detection. Arrangements were made to smuggle the funds into Germany. The German authorities knew that 15,000 pounds was distributed among supporters in Berlin alone last Christmas, but that was all they knew. They did not know who distributed the money. Some of it had been spent in relief and some in propaganda.

Plans were being formulated to extend the operations of the agents outside Berlin. An immense amount of organization was involved, but a wonderful system had been set up. The chain of agents had been extended by innocent looking identification disks which conveyed nothing to the uninitiated. There was also a system of punching the disks to indicate the receipt of funds. "The definite object of this movement is the overthrow of Hitler," he said. "The German authorities are making frantic efforts to stamp it out. Nearly three weeks ago 600 persons were arrested in one Berlin suburb. Fewer than ten agents of the secret body have been rounded up, and they have resolutely refused to give away any information. I am convinced that in the near future more than 2,000 agents will be working in Germany for this movement."

NEXT WEEK—Guarding Mussolini.

JUST DESSERTS

This isn't an ordinary pie—it's a peach marmalade ice cream dessert.

By MARY MEADE

HAVE A LOOK at this picture of a pie. Does it look like an ordinary pie? Certainly not, because it is far from being an ordinary pie. It's an ice cream pie, topped with toasted almonds, and it has a layer of peach marmalade just under the ice cream and over the crust. What's more, that's a butter crust.

PEACH MARMALADE ICE CREAM PIE

(Serves six)

- ½ cup peach marmalade or jam
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream
- ¼ cup toasted salted almonds
- 1 cooled baked pie shell

Spread the marmalade thickly over the bottom of the pie shell. Just before serving pile the ice cream over it and sprinkle the toasted almonds on top. Cut and serve immediately.

BUTTER CRUST

(2 single nine-inch shells)

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ⅝ cup (½ cup plus 2 tablespoons) butter
- ⅓ cup ice water, approximately

Sift flour and salt. Cut in butter until the mixture has the consistency of cornmeal. Add water gradually until a dough is formed. Roll out to ⅛ inch in thickness. Fold and fit into the pan without stretching. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees, for ten to twenty minutes, or until delicately browned.

The other dessert pictured is unusual, too. Bran pastry and apple butter are made into sandwiches, or "stacks," and spread with cream cheese.

APPLE BUTTER STACKS

(Serves four)

- 1 cup apple butter
- 4 ounces cream cheese
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 recipe bran pastry

Roll out bran pastry to an eighth inch in thickness. Cut with large cutter into circles or squares. Bake in a hot oven about ten minutes, or until light brown. Cool and put together with apple butter, using three rounds or squares for each serving. Spread with cream cheese softened with lemon juice and serve.

BRAN PASTRY

- ¼ cup bran
- 1½ cups flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup shortening
- 4 tablespoons cold water, approximately

Roll bran until fine; combine with flour and salt. Cut in shortening. Add water a little at a time until dough will hold together.

Apple butter and bran pastry "stacks" are good with cream cheese topping.

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Men and boys learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the seventeenth of the series.

WASHINGTON

THE BATTLE of Long Island was fought Aug. 27, 1776, between American troops under Gen. George Washington and a British army under General Howe. Although the British forced the Americans to fall back to their fortified positions on the site of the present borough of Brooklyn, they refrained from attacking these defenses. On the night of Aug. 29 Washington successfully extricated his troops from their positions at Brooklyn, withdrawing them to New York. General Washington on the eve of the battle of Long Island addressed his soldiers as follows:

"The time is now near at hand which must probably determine whether Americans are to be freemen or slaves; whether they are to have any property they can call their own; whether their houses and farms are to be pillaged and destroyed, and themselves consigned to a state of wretchedness from which no human efforts will deliver them. The fate of unborn millions will now depend, under God, on the courage and conduct of this army. Our cruel and unrelenting enemy leaves us only the choice of a brave resistance or the most abject submission. We have therefore to resolve to conquer or to die.

"Our own, our country's honor calls upon us for a vigorous and manly exertion; and if we now shamefully fail we shall become infamous to the whole world. Let us, then, rely on the goodness of our cause and the aid of the Supreme Being, in whose hands victory is, to animate and encourage us to great and noble actions. The eyes of all our countrymen are now upon us; and we shall have their blessings and praises if happily we are the instruments of saving them from the tyranny meditated against them. Let us therefore animate and encourage each other and show the whole world that a freeman contending for liberty on his own ground is superior to any slavish mercenary on earth.

"Liberty, property, life, and honor are all at stake. Upon your courage and conduct rest the hopes of our bleeding and insulted country. Our wives, children, and parents expect safety from us only; and they have every reason to believe that Heaven will crown with success so just a cause. The enemy will endeavor to intimidate by show and appearance; but remember they have been repulsed on various occasions by a few brave Americans. Their cause is bad—their men are conscious of it; and, if opposed with firmness and coolness on their first onset, with our advantage of works and knowledge of ground, the victory is most assuredly ours. Every good soldier will be silent and attentive, wait for orders, and reserve his fire until he is sure of doing execution."

Pre-battle speeches such as Washington's have played their part in human affairs as long as there have been wars between organised groups of men. This type of speech is most important when it is addressed to the supposed under dogs of the forthcoming struggle. Its purpose: to make the soldiers believe that their future and the future of their nation depends on their fighting; to convince them that they will win because Heaven is on their side. In this speech Washington fulfills the time-honored requirements of such occasions with a dignity and vigor that make the speech well worth rereading.—Comment by Martin Maloney of the Northwestern university school of speech.

If You Don't Like Corsets—

The numbers on the pictures correspond with those preceding the exercise descriptions in the accompanying article.

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

AT THE MOMENT the feminine world is all agog about the new corseting idea. Whether or not the wasp-waisted, ample-bosomed, full-hipped figure fits into our modern scheme of design is a live topic over tea tables. We have a sneaking feeling that the wasp waist will be accomplished more often by dress lines and wide shoulder padding than by corset boning, for the great majority of us older sisters, anyway.

Again we drag out our old argument that those certain styles that have been ushered in on a radically different note, such as the upswept hair, the most recent one, tend to lose to the older woman the youth she feels she's earned in other directions.

We still insist that the way to get a waistline you love is to rob it of its adipose trimming by the good old exercise route. Then you do feel young and have the joy of free, easy movement, with your fat-free muscles as the good old boning that never fails.

We are offering you today four exercises we would beg you to try out on that thickened waistline to which you hate to claim ownership. We give you four, but if you'd rather, just choose two of them, but work at them longer. The rocking horse one you might leave alone if you're long out of exercise practice. Number one we do beg you all to try conscientiously. It leaves you unwearied and with an almost immediate sense of a lesser waistline. Numbers two and three aren't too strenuous, either. But do them regularly morning and night, extending your time period every few days. With the aid of exercise number one given here, believe it or no, one woman took a fraction over two inches off her waistline in two months' time, feeling in the interim such a state of waistband joy and freedom as she hadn't known for over five years. We measured her before and after, so there's no fraud about this loss.

Exercise No. 1—This is the equivalent of a two-way stretch. You stretch from the waist up and from the waist down, this way: Stand with feet apart, arms at sides. Now raise arms to front, up overhead, on toward back of head, and while raising the arms up that way bend the knees slightly and stretch down. Stretch up to finger tips, and stretch down with the knees bent. That's all there is to it except to go back to position and do it over and over and over again.

Exercise No. 2—This is the most difficult for beginners, but what it does for wasp-waist candidacy is somethin' particular. It's just the rocking horse roll, doing your roll with arms lifted off the floor and feet also off the floor. At first you may try it with the feet on the floor and arms up.

Exercise No. 4—Here you simply raise your arms and hands overhead, clasp them slightly, and swing from waist to one side and then the other. Let the hands and arms do the stretching, so that you feel a pull on the waistline.

How Armor Plate Guards Warships of World

By GREER WILLIAMS

THE HISTORY of armor plate runs in counterpoint to the development of the cannon projectiles it is intended to stop.

The need of armor plate on warships in Napoleon's time was scarcely felt, since solid shot from a smooth-bore cannon would bounce off a two-foot oak hull at all but point-blank range. But during the Spanish-French siege in 1782 of the British fortress Gibraltar the French engineer D'Arcon saw that a warship might withstand even direct fire from the great rock if it were clad in iron.

D'Arcon had the sides of ten heavily gunned ships covered with iron bars and cork, between which wet sand was packed to prevent fire starting from the red-hot shot used by the British. The gun deck was tented over with thick green hides, from which the round shot were expected to roll.

He was correct in the use of iron sides. As the armored squadron closed in on Gibraltar, shot after shot glanced off. But the hot shot pierced the hides, and by the second day of the siege all ten ships were burning and sinking, with a loss of all but 487 of their 5,260 men.

In the next half century American, French, and English naval men did considerable thinking about armor plate for warships, but their plans sounded too radical for the traditionalists. In 1824, however, explosive shells were introduced in naval guns, and the warships became much more vulnerable.

Armor, however, did not come of age until the Crimean war. The Russian coastal batteries at Kimbark had been impregnable against the unarmored French-British fleet. Then the French built three steam-powered floating batteries encased in iron plates. On Oct. 17, 1855, they sailed within 800 yards of Kimbark. Four hours later half the enemy cannon had been destroyed and the Russians were ready to surrender. The ironclads suffered slight damage.

Three years later France produced the first armored battleship, the 5,000-ton wooden-hulled Gloire. It carried a 4.75-inch belt of wrought iron along its water line and similar armor on its batteries.

The famous battle of the Monitor and the Merrimac during the American Civil war was the first for two ironclad vessels. The Confederates' Merrimac was made by cutting a frigate down to the water line and belting and housing it with iron plates four inches thick. The federals' Monitor, built to contest the Confederate threat, was virtually an iron barge with five-inch sides, one-inch water line deck, and a turret made of eight-inch iron. Both had iron pilot houses and weak steam engines.

The Merrimac had done great damage to the federal fleet when the Monitor arrived to engage it at Hampton Roads on March 8, 1862. The battle ended indecisively, with neither vessel damaged by shell, when the Monitor's pilot sight-hole was hit, blinding the commander and causing him to withdraw. They did not fight again.

The important result was the neutralization of one armored ship by another. The episode, indeed, might be called the first modern naval armament race, since the purpose of building warships is either to outnumber or at least offset the enemy fleet, ship for ship, gun for gun, and armor for armor. Equal naval forces seldom fight each other.

The modern armor processes were developed in the last half of the nineteenth century in response to the introduction in 1860 of rifled guns of greatly increased range, velocity, and penetration. The competition frequently placed the steel manufacturers in the rôle of making a shell to pierce the armor and the armor to stop the shell.

The first practical armor plates were made of wrought iron, but with the replacement of round shot with cylindrical, pointed shells, such thicknesses were needed that warships could not carry the weight without a great sacrifice of speed.

Carbon steel superseded wrought iron. While they had a far superior ability to withstand a shell's penetration, steel plates were so brittle that they often cracked and broke under the impact. The weakness was first met by compounding a steel outside plate with a wrought iron inside plate, combining hardness with toughness. This compound armor plate was 25 per cent stronger than wrought iron alone.

In 1889 the Frenchman Schneider added 3 to 5 per cent nickel to steel and made an armor plate about 30 per cent stronger than wrought iron. Its superiority had hardly been proved before an American, Harvey, found a way of hardening the face of nickel steel.

He had discovered that tool steel could be hardened greatly by covering the steel with carbon, sand, and fire brick and then heating it in a furnace for several days. The carbon was fused into the face of the plate, and the product was then tempered with water. The same face-hardening process in armor produced a "Harveyized" plate that was 50 per cent higher in resistance to shell fire than wrought iron.

An armor-piercing projectile is intended to punch a hole in a ship's armor and explode inside. Harvey's plate was more effective than nickel steel against this cutting action, but it was susceptible to racking—that is, it was not not tough enough to absorb the shock of the hit without vibration tending to loosen the plate and make it susceptible to further bombardment.

Krupp of Germany found the answer to this in 1894 in the last of the basic steps in developing modern armor plate. He perfected a process of adding chromium to nickel-carbon steel, increasing its hardness and toughness simultaneously. The chromium, which is very sensitive to heat, enabled him to improve on Harvey's method of face hardening with carbon. "Krupp cemented" armor plate, which remains the standard for measuring shell penetration today, is heated with carbon on one side until the surface is as hard as glass while being kept cool on the other side to increase its toughness.

It contains 3.9 per cent nickel, 2 per cent chromium, .35 per cent carbon, .35 per cent manganese, as well as small amounts of silicon, phosphorus, and sulphur.

The initial gain of K. C. over Harveyized armor plate was 10 per cent greater resistance. By the end of the World war this was increased to 20 per cent. Perfection of guns and armor since the World war remain largely naval secrets. It is believed, however, that improvements on the Krupp process have produced armor plate which at a thickness of 10 inches would at least equal 25 of wrought iron.

The manufacture of armor plate is as delicate as it is massive. The armor for the typical 35,000-ton battleship weighs more than 14,000 tons, ranging from 3 to 16 inches in thickness. The greatest thicknesses are used in the belt along the water line amidships and for the gun turrets.

Belt armor steel is poured and molded in ingots usually weighing 100 tons, turret armor in ingots of more than 200 tons.

The ingots are reheated and rolled by huge machines into rough plates up to 20 to 25 feet in length and 10 to 15 in width. The plate then goes through a preliminary carbon hardening process, after which it is planed and bent to the design of the ship in machines which exert as much as three tons pressure to the square inch. The long and complicated cementing or hardening of the face is then undertaken. The process from start to finish takes about nine months.

When a group of plates is finished an inspector goes over every square foot testing the uniformity of the face hardening. X-ray machines are used to determine the internal quality. "Coupons," or samples, are broken from each plate and subjected to breaking, cutting, and other tests of toughness and hardness.

In the final test the inspector selects the weakest plate of the group. It is placed on an artillery range. Three shells whose diameter approximates the thickness of the plate are fired at it. The entire group is rejected if any of the three projectiles get entirely through the plate or cause cracks to the edge of the plate or to the edge of another shell impact.

Above: The effect of three 12-inch armor-piercing projectiles on a 14.4-inch Krupp face-hardened plate in tests. Two shells were broken up and the third remained imbedded. None caused cracks. Compare this with the 14½-inch nickel steel plate at the left. Two 9.2-inch shells were hurled back, but the upper hit penetrated the entire thickness and caused bad cracks.

It has been set forth as a general rule that armor plate will stop a shell of the same thickness at a distance of 1,000 yards multiplied by the thickness. Thus at 16,000 yards a 16-inch armor, the heaviest belt so far carried by a United States battleship, would stop a 16-inch shell, the largest fired by American naval guns at present.

This is in keeping with the tendency of gun and armor toward equality at battle range, but it is a rule of thumb subject to any secret exception one power is able to obtain over another in gun and armor experimentation.

The table of the principal guns of the United States fleet given in the 1938 "Janes' Fighting Ships," an authoritative register of world navies, gives no penetration figures for the 16-inch guns. These fire 2,100-pound armor-piercing shells at a speed of 2,800 feet a second and have a maximum range of 19 miles. Complete figures are available only for standard guns 12 inches and under.

The table credits the 12-inch Mark VII. gun with a K. C. armor penetration of 17.5 inches at 3,000 yards, 13.9 at 6,000, and 11.0 at 9,000. It may be seen that 12-inch K. C. armor has much to spare in stopping the shell of this gun at 12,000 yards.

The possible deception of such figures is indicated, however, by a table in the 1922 International Encyclopedia which credits the same gun, firing the same weight of shell, with 22 inches penetration of K. C. armor at 3,000, 18.5 at 6,000, and 15.5 at 9,000. This suggests that the shell might pierce K. C. armor at 12,000.

In actual battle the penetration depends on the angle at which any one shell strikes. While the shells seldom strike at right angles, they are equipped with soft caps tending to make the flat nose of the shell stick and bite in at the point of contact.

Projectiles travel in an arc, and, since airplane observation has lengthened the effective range of indirect fire, curve so high that they are more likely to drop on the deck than to hit the side. Airplane bombs also increase the danger to the deck.

The principal development in the distribution of armor in warships, therefore, has been to increase the thickness of deck armor. The six 35,000-ton battleships of the North Carolina class now being built by the United States navy are expected to have a 6-inch plate for the upper deck and 4 inches for the lower deck. The thicknesses were only 4 and 2 inches in the three 31,500-ton battleships of the Maryland class built in 1920-'21. The purpose of the thicker upper deck is to stop the shells. The lower deck is to stop fragments following the explosion.

The function of both belt and deck armor is principally to protect the vital parts located amidships. A honeycomb of bulkheads and not armor is relied upon for protecting the bow, stern, and bottom from submarine torpedoes.

Armor has two major military uses. One is for fortifications. Since weight is not such an important factor in immobile defense, great thicknesses of chilled cast iron are used for domes over artillery and machine guns.

The other use is for military tanks, which employ armor plates of the same general composition as warships. The greater the speed, however, the less armor either a ship or a tank can carry.

Armor of more than 1¼ inches is seldom used in tanks, and this thickness only in the heavy class, ranging over 30 tons. Such a plate is easily pierced by the 75-millimeter field gun (nearly 3 inches in caliber) at 1,000 yards with a direct hit.

In the light tanks, under 10 tons, and the medium tanks, from 10 to 30 tons, the armor is usually an inch or less in thickness. As demonstrated in the Spanish civil war, a 37-millimeter (1.4-inch) quick-firing anti-tank gun will readily penerate an inch of armor at 500 yards. The 47-mm. (1.8-inch) gun will penetrate 1.7 inches at that distance.

Judging from these facts, bigger tanks or better armor must be built if the naval axiom of armor equaling guns at battle range is to apply to "land battleships."

America Has No Need to Import

ALTHOUGH the present European war will hamper the importation of show and breeding stock, the United States today is in such a dominant position, due to importations made in the last fifteen years, that American dog fanciers will get along all right without new blood lines for their kennels.

Twenty-five years ago when the World war started the big kennels in this country were quite dependent upon foreign blood lines in a majority of the breeds then recognized by the American Kennel club. It was impossible to get dogs from abroad, so American fanciers had to mark time until the end of the conflict. In fact, in some cases American kennels had to wait years after the war ended before they could get the breeding stock desired, because the food shortage in Europe depleted the dog population in leading German, French, and Belgian kennels.

How well American breeders have utilized foreign stock since then to breed better show specimens is seen in the number of victories scored by American-bred animals in dog shows. During the first six months of 1939, when there were 104 all-breed shows held under the rules of the American Kennel club, in sixty-six, or more than half of the shows, the coveted "best in show" award went to a dog raised in America. Dogs bred in the British Isles triumphed at nineteen shows, German-breds accounted for seventeen victories, and two went to Canadian-bred specimens.

Sox of Chicago, Staffordshire terrier owned by Francis M. Gunn, has been winning many ribbons in shows. Its most notable win was best of breed at the 1939 Morris and Essex show against a field of twenty competing dogs.

In former years some kennel owners and show enthusiasts liked to scour Europe for new dogs and then bring them in just in time to make their debut at the big Westminster Kennel club show held annually in New York City. An excellent example of this procedure occurred last February at the Westminster Kennel club show in New York when Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge, owner of the famous Giralda Farm kennels at Madison, N. J., sprung Ferry von Rauhfelsen, the big Doberman, at the New York show. Ferry was brought in from Germany just in time to get ready for that show. He won best in show and later repeated his triumph at the Chicago all-breed show. With a war in Europe, there will be no chance for breeders to do this.

The European conflict affects dogs in England, France, Germany, and other nations in a way that few of us Americans realize, for European nations use dogs on the battlefield. Hundreds of trained animals which were enjoying a peaceful life now are faced with death in the present conflict. During the World war Airedales, German shepherds, Belgian shepherds, collies, and other breeds played hero rôles on battlefields. Dogs were trained to work with Red Cross units to search for wounded and dead. They mounted guard with sentries and, due to their remarkable ears and noses, often were able to warn sentries of attacks before the latter could detect the enemy's movements. Other dogs ran through shot and shell carrying messages. Then, too, dogs were trained to carry small loads of ammunition for machine gunners. As message bearers dogs sometimes got through when humans could not survive the hazards of an open battlefield.

Champion Kinsman Jinny is a 13-inch beagle owned by Lee S. Wade of Cleveland, O. The merry little beagle is known to thousands of sportsmen and dog fanciers as a useful hound of excellent disposition.

SHE WAS A NATURAL BLONDE

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1939, by News Syndicate Co., Inc.

Chemical blonde. Her curly locks have been retouched year after year till they have almost ceased to be hair.
The long-faced blonde. Does the heavy siren, the blonde menace. Would love to be cute and kittenish, but knows she's the wrong type.
Dumb blonde. Never sure whether she's being kidded or not. Says, "And so what," when in doubt.
Reading from the left, we have three blondes from the dark ages: 1908, 1918 and 1928.
The dumpy blonde. This type will go cute on a male if given a minimum of encouragement.
A blonde with a head cold. This is the most unappetizing type of blonde beauty.
The blonde with the head of hair that a permanent won't stick to. Hair waves never last through a party. Spends about two-thirds of her life going back to beauty parlors to complain.
The large, jolly blonde—a great asset to any gathering. Everybody likes her.
The strawberry blonde with the peppery disposition. Boy friends have to watch their steps pretty carefully.
The queenly blonde. Was considered something of a beauty thirty years ago, and still carries on. Thinks of herself as a Helen of Troy Jr.
The ash blonde, sometimes called the mouse colored blonde. Not dangerous like other blondes.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine)

Angle Shots Add Zest to Album

● Questions of general interest to camera fans will be answered in this department. Lack of space makes it impossible to print replies to inquiries of a purely individual character. Address questions to "Know Your Camera," Chicago Tribune.

An ordinary beach snapshot gains new interest if made from an elevation.

TRY "ANGLE SHOTS" if you are looking for pictures that command immediate attention because they are different from the run-of-the-mill snapshot or "record" shot. You may have to go through some odd contortions and occasionally even lie flat on your back to get this sort of picture, but the result will justify your efforts.

When you got your first camera you were told to be sure and always hold it level or you would ruin your pictures by distortion. And so you will if the distortion you get is not outspoken enough to bring about a new artistic effect but merely creates the impression of faulty composition. A building leaning slightly backward in the picture, tilted horizon lines and trees are no credit to the general appearance of your photos.

But by stressing these distortions, by deliberately strengthening them, you can create those novel effects that are known under the general description of "angle shots." They shock you at first sight by their unusual appearance, and they certainly get your attention. After that the good angle shots will continue to hold your interest by means of effective composition, while the poor ones soon will be recognized as worthless snapshots and the work of mere curiosity seekers.

Angle shots strike you as unusual because you are accustomed to conventional pictures taken at eye level. The human eye itself sees pictures in an entirely different perspective when it looks up or down. In some cases it sees bird's-eye views, in others a worm's-eye perspective. By making pictures from similar angles you get results which are refreshing to the eye because they are so different from conventional "head-on" photographs. They are filled with dynamic force, with interesting perspectives, and they disclose sides of your subject unseen in more conservative pictures.

While you can take angle shots of most subjects, not all are equally good for this type of photography. Some are outspoken "naturals." Foremost among these are action shots of sports and architectural pictures.

The most dramatic sports pictures are taken from low angles. No eye-level shot of a baseball pitcher could give you the impression of motion and power that you get when you shoot him from a low angle as he leans back to throw the ball. The same holds true when you photograph jumpers, divers, runners, and even cars in an automobile race.

If you look up at a tall building you will see the lines converging toward the top. Your camera is apt to stress this effect, especially if you step up close to your subject. You will get the impression of powerful lines actively piercing into space, and by tilting your camera and placing these lines diagonally in your picture you will enhance the effect.

The same holds true when shooting straight down from a high position. Many a fascinating picture has been taken by merely leaning out of a window or selecting an elevated spot. But while angle shots are certainly worth getting, don't let your enthusiasm carry you away to the extent of risking your neck by perching in precarious positions. Even without endangering your life you will have to do quite a bit of gymnastics to get a variety of angle shots. Practice will soon teach you that certain pictures can only be had if you lie down flat on your back, crouch on the ground, or lean far out of a window.

Portraiture is another important field for taking angle shots. The farther removed the angle of your picture is from normal the more strongly your lens will stress certain features of your subject. Unless you are deliberately striving for odd effects you should take care that you stress the good features at the expense of the bad. Low angles make the hips and chin appear heavier, the nostrils wider; high angles increase the size of the head and the width of the shoulders.

Any type of camera is suitable for taking angle shots. In some cases you may have to turn the camera upside-down to focus on your subject from the desired angle, but this is a minor trick easily learned.

In taking pictures of this kind you should remember that the odd angle alone does not make the picture. Here, too, you need imagination and must compose your picture carefully if you want to get good results.

LENS NOTES

Film will take writing in pen or pencil if you first rub the area to be lettered with an ordinary pencil eraser.

Most pictures gain by cropping. To find the most effective section of your picture, use an adjustable mask formed by two rectangular strips cut from stiff cardboard.

Science shows how to "UNCORK" YOUR CORN ROOT* AND ALL!

SCIENTIFIC research shows that corns are caused by pressure and friction—often grow big and ugly. Home paring only gives temporary relief because it merely affects the surface. But now it's easy to get quick relief—remove corns root and all! Just put a scientific Blue-Jay pad neatly over the corn—it relieves pain by removing pressure. The special Blue-Jay medicated formula acts on the corn—gently loosens it so it can be lifted right out. Then simply by avoiding the pressure and friction which caused your corn you can prevent its coming back. For real relief follow the example of millions—get Blue-Jay Corn Plasters today. Only 25¢ for a package of 6. Same price in Canada.

THE HOUSE OF WORSTED-TEX

EXCLUSIVE MAKERS OF

The British Lounge Model*

$30 • $35 • $40

This new and modern type of clothing design, the British Lounge* Model, effects remarkable improvements in your figure. It seems to add inches to your height, depth to your chest and slenderness at the hips.

The longer jacket, lower button placement, lower waistline and tapered sleeves and trousers create the taller look. Extra fullness of fabric at the chest, plus the wider sweep of the lapels heighten the illusion of more athletic chest. The slimmer-hipped look is achieved by the modeling at the waist and by the contrast to the wider-seeming shoulders.

The British Lounge* Model is available in all suits made by the House of Worsted-tex in the fabrics described below.

SAXON-WEAVE SUITS

$35

There are pure worsted and pure worsted-cheviot fabrics featured in Saxon-weave Suits. They are of fine texture and much higher in quality than you would ever expect at the modest price of $35, both in fabric and in excellence of tailoring. Saxon-weave Suits possess a quiet but definite distinction for the well-dressed man who appreciates richness of styling handled with restraint.

WORSTED-TEX SUITS

LINED WITH SUPER CELANESE RAYON

$40

Many textile experts have described Worsted-tex cloth as the finest example of worsted suiting woven in America and comparable to many imported fabrics. It is made from the best pure worsted yarns, has a wonderful softness of texture and a resilient pliancy of drape. The patterns are of correct English design and woven exclusively for Worsted-tex Suits. The tailoring is as fine as the fabric.

"BRASHY" TWEED SUITS

University men and younger men generally will be attracted to these colorful "Brashy" Tweeds – which are exact counterparts of the finest Scottish Tweeds in which the rare color effects were obtained from the juices of herbs, berries and other native vegetation. Unlike most tweeds, "Brashy" Tweeds will wear very well, hold their shape and never look or feel bulky.

Every detail of these clothes is refined. Even the trousers' closure is the fabric-covered Kover-zip—no metal shows.

Paris Chic for Winter Evenings

● At right: Soft and flattering, this black evening gown by Chanel is gracefully accented with cobweb-thin black lace as the only relief. Bands of the lace serve as shoulder straps; a double band of material and lace slips down over the arm in the picturesque off-the-shoulder decolletage.

● Molyneux cuts stiff white satin brocade with a softly shirred, fitted bodice to accent a wide-flaring full skirt and thus effects a handsome evening gown. A dramatic design of flowers and leaves woven into the heavy silk against a self-colored background is the only decoration.

IMPORTANT for men who shave with ELECTRIC RAZORS

IF YOU'RE ONE of the two million moderns who use an electric razor, these facts will interest you and help you get a perfect electric shave every time. No experimenting. No white scuff.

The problem with an electric razor is to dry the oily film off whiskers so your shaver can clip them off crisply and closely. That's why many men need this kind of preparation for a proper electric shave.

A dash of Aqua Velva before electric shaves dries off oily sebum and sweat. Whiskers are left in position for your shaver to "mow 'em down." Try a cool dash of Aqua Velva before your next electric shave. Thousands agree there's nothing like it to remove gritty oils from your face . . . bring each bristle smartly to attention. A second dash of Aqua Velva after shaving leaves your face smoother, cooler, more refreshed—and free from all white scuff.

We'll set you up to a FREE bottle Find out for yourself (at our expense) how Aqua Velva simplifies shaving with any electric razor. Just send your name and address to: The J. B. Williams Co., Dept. CR-3, Glastonbury, Conn., and we'll send you postpaid a generous free bottle of Aqua Velva.

New way to keep regular
LEMON with SODA

Taken first thing daily on arising or the last thing every night, it's beneficial in two ways. It has a natural, gentle laxative effect for most people, hence, aids elimination.

Second, it helps keep the system normally alkaline, and adds the additional protection of vitamin C found abundantly in lemon juice.

1. Squeeze juice of one Sunkist lemon into tall glass half full of water. 2. Put half teaspoonful of bicarbonate soda in another glass. 3. Pour back and forth rapidly. 4. Drink when foaming subsides.

It is non-habit forming, non-irritating. Try it 10 days. See if you don't benefit.

"HERE'S A PICTURE OF ME as a one-man bucket brigade! The kitchen drain was clogged and I was bailing out the sink so I could go to work with a wire and plunger. But right below is . . .

"A PICTURE OF THE MONKEY my neighbor made of me—by cleaning that clogged drain with a little Drāno! That Drāno is great stuff—you just pour it down the drain and it gets down deep and actually digs out the clogged part. And from now on, I know how to keep the drain clear, fast-flowing—with Drāno! Put a teaspoonful of Drāno down the drain each night—when the dishes are done!"

Now, through sheer perfection of cut . . . without tight lacing, heavy bonings or other instruments of torture . . . Flexees makes this new "figure" yours . . . at the mere flick of a Flexzip! Too much Exercise?

BACK STIFF AS A BOARD?

It's FATIGUE ACID in your muscles!

AFTER heavy exercise, certain waste products called fatigue acids form in your muscles. As a result, your muscle swells up inside its sheath. No wonder pains and aches follow!

The thing to do is increase your circulation in the aching muscle so that a fresh supply of blood can help carry those fatigue acids out. Just rub famous Absorbine Jr. thoroughly over the affected parts three or four times a day. Accepted laboratory tests prove Absorbine Jr. speeds the blood through the tissues, helping to drive those acids out. Swelling goes down—pain eases. Millions of people like Absorbine Jr. because it is

1. QUICK ACTING 3. PLEASANT
2. QUICK DRYING 4. ECONOMICAL TO USE

Why do reporters drink COFFEE?

...You'd be surprised!

REPORTERS have to work late hours—and they drink a lot of coffee.

Putting 2 and 2 together, maybe you've jumped to the conclusion that coffee keeps them awake.

But the fact is this: Late work causes fatigue—and coffee overcomes fatigue—it actually removes the cause—gives a reporter a lift when he's tired—eases nervous tension—helps his brain work faster when he has a job to do.

But that lift lasts only two hours—so if you're like 97 out of 100 people,* you can enjoy coffee and a good night's sleep too.

RIGHT or WRONG?

Can you score 100% in this 1-minute Coffee Quiz?

COFFEE AIDS DIGESTION Right? ☐ Wrong? ☐

Coffee is prescribed by doctors and dietitians, and regularly served to patients in hospitals. For it stimulates the flow of the digestive juices in the stomach and helps the digestive organs to function properly. Check "Right" above.

COFFEE CALMS THE NERVES Right? ☐ Wrong? ☐

Coffee, for centuries, has been the mainstay of men working under pressure — firemen, seamen, Red Cross workers. They drink coffee to relieve the nervous strain, for better mental and physical coordination. Check "Right" above.

COFFEE IS HABIT-FORMING Right? ☐ Wrong? ☐

Of course, coffee is a stimulant. Yet it is a very beneficial one. For it relieves fatigue instead of merely dulling the sense of fatigue as a narcotic does. And when the pleasing effects of coffee wear off, there is no feeling of depression—no physiological craving for more. Check "Wrong" above.

OUR NEW FALL

Wishmaker's House

AGAIN MAKES YOU YOUR OWN DECORATOR WITH EVERYTHING FOR YOUR HOME IN SEVEN SMART CO-ORDINATED COLORS

The perils of color-matching make shopping for home furnishings no bed of roses. Small wonder we heard so many heart-felt alleluias when we opened Wishmaker's House last year. Here, in one central spot, you'll find everything you need to furnish a home. You can match everything you buy, or select different colors — they'll blend with each other perfectly. Make your selections for quality, style and price alone. Color harmony is as sure as two-plus-two-make-four.

And here it is, brand-new for fall — smarter, more highly styled, with more colors and greater selection. Colors, designs and fabrics are our own interpretation of the Edwardian era of elegance. (House and Garden was so enthusiastic about them that it devoted pages to them in its current issue.) Everything from carpets to closet accessories has been designed and made especially and exclusively for us. The furniture is small in scale, beautifully designed, some of it Victorian in feeling. Smart though it is, nothing is expensive. We have sternly kept our prices to the middle of the road. To see it will excite you with its dramatic possibilities for your own home. Do come in tomorrow

WHEN we say the colors blend we mean just that. Technically speaking, they are constant in value and intensity, change only in hue. Consequently they can be used together with complete harmony. The color schemes we suggest above have hundreds of variations. Come in and see for yourself.
